KENTUCK'S PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM.

(St. Louis Journal of Education.)

The Commonwealth of Kentucky is to be most sincerely congratulated on the organic and permanent work, which has been done to establish, extend, and perfect her system of common school education since 1891.

These efforts, resulting in a renewed and wide spread interest not only among the parents of the children and the tax payers, but among the 35,000 school officers and teachers who look to the head of the department of Public Instruction for guidance and for inspiration, involve acts of great scope—work on a long future with such immense results for good to all the people, that they honor alike those who initiate and those who receive and co-operate to make them permanent and effective.

Certainly it has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of all reasonable men that the officer directly in charge of this great interest has wisely and efficiently availed himself not only of the experience of the past, but of every agency that promised help, and that would promote harmony and efficiency in securing needed improvement.

Rarely has a man been found so well fitted for the events and circumstances by which he was surrounded. Confronted with new and untried conditions, with material changes in the school district in the State, with 35,000 school officers, and with the necessity to give full, prompt, and adequate explanations of the law; all too with a limited and an entirely inadequate office force, Mr. Thompson has shown an ability that rose to meet the needs of the position, with an integrity, incorruptible, his mind mastered in its detail as well as its extent, the problems confronting him, and as the problems grew so did his quick comprehensive mind seem to seek out and to work out the right solution, showing that he had a prodigious faculty of performance. With a clear, strong sense of his duty he has proved to be a great, cheerful, persistent worker able for the most part, to dispose of the various questions and complications arising from the applications of the new school law, without delay, and to the satisfaction of people interested.

A good worker is so rare that when we find one willing to accept public position with the responsibility such positions involve, it seems to be the part of wisdom to hold on to such an one, with the tenacity which shows he has some courage to know the riches of his worth. He seemed to comprehend clearly as any general would that his place was at "headquarters," directing the forces from there. The constitutional convention resulted to show Mr. Thompson's wisdom in holding on to him.

The hap-hazard, go-as-you-please plan of running schools, sixty days in one district, eighty days in another, and one hundred days in another, the children bearing all the blighting influence, and consequences of this utter lack of system,—all this has been changed so that every school district in the State, has now at least five months of regular systematic teaching, with competent instructors to guide and inspire the pupils and provisions for extending the term to six, nine and ten months by local aid. Formerly it has been the case that the most inexperienced and indifferent teacher, one holding the lowest grade certificate, and being perhaps but of childish age, was an even terms of competition with the ablest and most experienced, in seeking employment in the largest and best paying districts, if the trustees could be influenced by nepotism or other forms of favoritism to set them at work. This was not only immediately to the detriment of the State, but it was fast driving ability and ambition from the ranks. Now we are informed that teachers are paid in accordance with grade of certificate, and incompetency is no longer the competitor of experience, attainment, and capacity. The true teacher in Kentucky is now recognized and protected; and there is an incentive for those who begin, to strive constantly to rise in the scale. This itself is a quiet force that will work a revolution.

Another protection and encouragement is all honorable and true teachers, is the suppression of the villainous theft and traffic in the State Board of Examiners, against which State Supt. Thomson early began a war which he has continued unremittently.

It is now extremely difficult for ignorance and enmity to obtain the State's license to play teacher and grievously wrong children. Supt. Thompson has also added still another thing to the teaching force of the State which will give the schools strong and able recruits, and which is developing the professional spirit largely, by the granting of certificates, (good for eight years), and Diplomas, (good for life), by the State Board of Examiners.

These are high grade certificates, requiring attainments much beyond those requisite to obtain first class county certificates, and they are good, too, in every county in the State. Those who hold county certificates are thus incited to strive for promotion. We are glad to learn that last year more than 50 per cent. of the teachers held first-class county certificates, and the Board have issued about 60 of these State Certificates and State Diplomas already.

Then, too, a law has been passed providing for the widest competition in the matter of school books, in Kentucky, which will result in giving the people the best books, on terms which legitimate competition always insures.

We have been conversant with, and a careful student of "blank forms" for a school purpose—for more than a quarter of a century, and we have never examined a series of forms by which persons of the commonest attainments would be better enabled to keep a comprehensive and accurate record of the public business than those sent out by Supt. Thompson; even down to the grade-look and "Course of Study," and daily program the teachers' use.

County Associations have been established and are not only largely attended by the people, but the teachers are obliged to avail themselves of the growing power and advantages of these instructive meetings. District libraries have

ABSOLUTELY PURE

The Connecticut House of Representatives has probably been overawed by some of the extraordinarily righteous people about Hartford. It has displayed less regard for the interests of its constituency than the Senate. The latter body passed a bill permitting twelve days' pool-selling per year at trotting meetings, the roots of course to be on trotting at the tracks where they were to be sold. This was an extremely moderate measure, but would have done much for the breeding interests of the State. The fanatics at Hartford seem, however, to have the ascendancy. They attacked the Senate in the bitterest terms, one member asserting in his public that the Senate was bought. He has been cited to appear before that body and make his charge good, which of course he can't do.

Two weeks after the bill had passed the Senate by a vote of twelve to eight it was brought up in the House and defeated, the vote being twenty-two in favor and one hundred and twenty eight against the bill.

These wise legislators seem to be incapable of discriminating between moderate pool-selling on the tracks and the unmitigated nuisance of city pool-rooms. The latter institution is what originally excited the Hartford people, who seem to dominate the House, against trotting races. And the city-pool-room in this case, as in many others, has proved itself the most dangerous foe to trotting interests.

There is but one opinion in the country, on the subject of city-pool-rooms, foreign books, and all that will breed so far as we are informed, all classes are against them and favor their immediate abolition. They are productive of nothing but evil, and it is impossible that they can long survive the intense popular feeling against them. It is extremely probable that the next legislature of Kentucky will pass a stringent law against them. They have been able to beat the law here, and the Court of Appeals has decided that the present legislation is not prohibitory. But it cannot be doubted that their days are numbered, and everyone will rejoice when they are finally abolished, and no one more than the friends of the trotting business.

In Illinois the situation is scarcely better than in Connecticut. No pool-selling at trotting races is allowed under the present legislation. An attempt was made to relieve the situation by what is known as the Humphrey bill. That measure was, if it really was designed to be of any benefit, very hastily framed. It allowed sixty-day meetings with the privilege of foreign books and pools. It would probably have passed both houses of the Illinois legislature if the limit had been thirty days and foreign books and pools prohibited. It was unquestionably gotten up in behalf of the gambling element. It received no better sanction of the Senate. Here is what the Chicago Times-Herald says of the probability of its passing the Senate:

When the House adjourned this evening it cut off all possibility of the enactment of any race track legislation at this session of the General Assembly. It is determined if they can not get everything back to the House and have it acted upon before the session expires. The bill has only been read one time in the House, and two more readings are required before it can be put upon its passage. Under the constitution these readings must be on separate days, and only one day of the session remains, there is no possible way in which the bill could be snatched through the House during the next two years.

Here is another debt which the trotting-horse men owe to the gamblers. The fight in Illinois has been a bitter one. The gamblers of the running turf determined if they could not get everything they wanted, nobody should have anything. Their policy was that of the dog-in-the-manger. This time they have succeeded. It is somewhat of a consolation to know that their "merry-go-rounds" and their foreign books and pools must go. They have inaugurated a war that will end in their own extermination. The better class of racing men are now strongly against them.

In Pennsylvania the law at present altogether prohibits betting at race tracks in any form and to any extent.

In New York, as every one knows, betting is under close restriction, but on the whole the regulations are not deemed unsatisfactory. What little betting there is, can have no demoralizing tendency. It is far better than total prohibition, which was what the more liberal people of the State feared when the new constitution was adopted.

In some other States the legislation is more or less discouraging to horse interests.

But as we have repeatedly admonished our readers there is now merely setting down to a solid and safe basis. We are not surprised that the better elements in community should have become disgusted with some of the parasites that had attached themselves to horse races. These things were so natural to the interests of the trotting horse, that they were repulsive to society. People who had not paid much attention to the subject could hardly be expected to discriminate closely between what was necessary a part of the business itself and the more unwholesome excesses that had grown out of it. In their zeal to destroy the bad they neglected to inquire whether there was not a possibility that they might go too far. But horsemen need have no fear of the ultimate results. The masses of the people, who ultimately control in this country, are neither bigots nor fanatics. Although at times they may rush into precipitate and one-sided decisions, they generally settle down at about the right point. Their sober second thought is usually about right. No one disputes that city pool-rooms and foreign books should be abolished and yearling colts legal racing and pool-selling everybody is in favor of these reforms. These are the things that have awakened the virtuous indignation of the people and fanaticism has attempted to turn this sentiment to its own advantage. The masses of the people cannot long be deceived. They will soon see the difference between legal racing and pool-selling regulated betting and the gambling halls into which some race tracks have been converted. And they will also see that it is practicable to destroy the evil without at the same time destroying the innocent and, indeed, salutary sports of the people.

THE SITUATION AS TO BETTING.

At the meantime, under whatever temporary and local difficulties, trotting will still continue. We are now at the opening of what promises to be the most brilliant trotting season we ever had. The tastes of our people run strongly to trotting as a means of amusement. It is a short time in certain localities, but it will prove stronger than such legislation. In a free country like ours where the people rule, laws made in defiance of popular sentiment must finally yield to that sentiment. This is absolutely inevitable. Passion, prejudice, puritanism, may for a short time in certain localities prevail. But they cannot long hold sway with a people so thoroughly accustomed to assert their own independence. Our people love the reign of law, but they also love to see the law kept within proper bounds, and they will see that this is done.—KENTUCKY STOCK FARM.

MIND READER JOHNSTONE.

Since the news of Mind Reader Johnstone's proposal to recover a necelle from the bottom of Fairmount Lake has spread he has received many offers of dates from theatrical and summer resort managers. One offer was received from the officials of the B. & M. railway at Omaha, asking him to make a test for the benefit of the road. This morning details were sent to General Passenger Agent Francis at Omaha. The Mayor of Omaha is to write a complimentary letter to the Mayor of Denver. This letter will be given to a trusted official of the road who will take it into four parts. Each part will be placed in a sealed envelope and the envelope sewed around the seams and edges on a sewing machine. Three of these parts will be hidden in any three towns or cities along the road between Omaha and Denver. The fourth portion of the letter will be hidden in Denver. Two days later, Johnstone, Mindfolds, will enter the car of a special engine and will run the engine to Denver, stopping on the way to recover the torn portions of the letter secured by an official sent out for that purpose. He will carry the letter to Denver where the last quarter of the letter is hidden. After putting the parts together Mr. Johnstone will still be blindfolded, carry the letter unopened to the Mayor's residence and read the contents to the executive. Mr. Johnstone has secured the co-operation of local Burlington officials in the test.—Kansas City Star.

PARKER WAT HARDIN.

P. Wat Hardin was born on June 3, 1841, in Adams county, near Columbia, Ky. His father was a noted lawyer of that county, Judge Parker C. Hardin, and had been a practitioner for years. It was in his office at Columbia that the present nominee for Governor studied law, and he was but little past age when he was admitted to the bar. Very soon after he moved to Springfield, Washington county, and there met Miss Mary Salts of Wayne county, whom he shortly afterward married. In a few years young Hardin moved to Monticello, in Wayne county, and later to Harrodsburg, in Mercer county, his present home. His son, Martin E. Hardin, has been named the orator of the South. Two daughters, Misses Jane and Julia, are at present at school at Oxford, O., and his married daughter, Mrs. Carrie Harris, lives at Big Stone Gap, Va.

Gen. Hardin has four brothers and three sisters living: Ben Lee and Charles Hardin, practicing attorneys at Harrodsburg; John Hardin, who lives in Tennessee; and Cabell Hardin, connected with the Franklin penitentiary. Mrs. Hatcher, wife of the postmaster at Columbia; Mrs. Carrie McElver, of Anderson county, and Miss Sarah Hardin.

Personally there is hardly a more popular man in the state than Mr. Hardin. He is full of personal magnetism, and to that quality is attributed his success in politics. He was three times elected Governor of the State—first in 1881. He was a candidate four years ago for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

GURNEY PATENT REFRIGERATORS

Reasons Why the Gurney Outalls All Competitors:
First—The Gurney, having a removable galvanized ice compartment, makes it the only cleanable refrigerator, and being free from damage by the ice pick, overcomes a common fault of refrigerators. The Gurney is an experimental test, have proven that a pound of ice will cold and hold at a lower and more even temperature more cubic inches of space in a Gurney than in any other known refrigerator.

Second—When the dryness is tested preference is given to the Gurney.

Third—Experimental tests have proven that a pound of ice will cold and hold at a lower and more even temperature more cubic inches of space in a Gurney than in any other known refrigerator.

Fourth—Standard authorities show by actual tests that mineral wool, with which the Gurney is packed, is the only perfect insulator or non-conductor for filling walls.

Fifth—A test will show that the Gurney has the freest circulation.

Sixth—The Gurney, by reason of its free circulation, will show, in one-third the time, from two to four degrees lower temperature than any other refrigerator on the market. Yours in improvements, SHACKELFORD & CENTRY. (37-29)
