Court House Liable to Meet With Great Damage. Place Guards.

A gentleman, whose honesty can not be questioned, who removed from Madison county some time ago, was visiting in this city last week and gave out this startling information: He resided here when the handsome Madison county court house was erected and watched the work closely. When time arrived for erecting the large pillars supporting the portico, it is wisely suggested that something should be placed therein, as is customary on such occasions. The gentleman says it was decided to place a five-gallon keg of the best whisky therein, and instead of one, a keg was placed in each pillar. The liquor was the best to be had—but, for that matter, all whisky was good in those days.

Now, the reason we put scare headlines over this item is we believe that, considering the "drought" in this locality, and the scarcity of good liquor, our people will awaken some morning to find those pillars torn away and the liquor gone. Who wouldn't dig through cement for a nip of something as good as that liquor must be? County Judge Turpin, if you want to protect the court house, you had better telegraph Governor Wilson for state troops, and that quickly.

Sparks Captured.

Wm. Sparks, who killed Joe Jake Collins, and who has been a fugitive from justice since the tragedy, was captured Monday night at Cat Creek in Powell county by George Stevens, judge of that county, and brought here and lodged in jail Wednesday. Immediately after committing the crime, Sparks made his way to the place where he was found, and has been living in an old deserted house, being kept in food by relatives. Stevens worked on the case several days, after hearing of Sparks' whereabouts, and on Monday night went to the old house and placed a net under the door. Sparks' arrest and Stevens will get it.

Now The L. & N.

The L. & N. took charge of the L. & A. road Friday morning at nine o'clock, and the latter road is now under the protecting wing of the greatest system in the South. The Climax made inquiry, but no information as to any possible changes was given out, and it is presumed that trains will run as usual for some time yet. A corps of surveyors are running lines from Versailles to Frankfort, bearing out the prediction of the Climax that the company would have another through line from the mountains to Louisville. It is reported that the company will make a union depot, but where and when is not to be learned. There are some wise old fellows at the head of the L. & N., and while it is safe to say that every change is mapped out, yet the officials never give out anything until they are ready to act—a mighty good idea. There have been no changes made in the list of the L. & A. though we understand many are on the anxious seat. The change in ownership means, we believe, much for the business interests of Richmond, as the road will be extended into the mountains beyond all doubt.

Man For The Place.

Nicholasville News.—Hon. J. A. Sullivan is again announced as a candidate for legislative honors from Madison county. Kentucky needs just such men in the legislature as Sullivan. He is not only an active worker, but a law-maker—and a good one. Democrats of Madison, send him back by a rousing majority.

Humane Society Needed.

Among the many needs of Richmond, one of the greatest needs is a well organized Humane Society. Scarcely a day passes but that something happens that should be looked after by a society of this character. We have seen horses whipped until blood would almost stream off of them. Only a few days ago a team was seen going up Main street pulling a heavy loaded wagon and one of the mules was so lame it was almost impossible for it to walk. It is to be hoped someone will take this matter up and give a society that will be the dumb brute's friend.

The School On The Hill.

We take pleasure in calling attention of our readers to the fact that Prof. Cassidy, the new principal of Madison Institute is on the ground and is at work for the school. He proposes to build up an institution of high grade, and we bespeak for him the hearty cooperation of this community. The faculty has been selected with greatest care, and his music department will have as its head a graduate of the Boston Conservatory, who has taught there for three years. The building is being repaired and renovated. Prof. Cassidy will convene the community in the near future. Catalogues may be had on application.

A Serious Accident.

Last Friday, as Mrs. Kate Paik and two children of Irvine, were returning from a visit to friends in Ohio, they stopped to spend the night in Cincinnati. They were registered at the Garden Hotel, and in some manner, the youngest child, aged three, fell into the elevator shaft. The elder child, nine, screamed and jumped after him, hoping to save him. The mother became frantic and could scarcely be restrained from following them. Assistance was quickly summoned and the children found at the bottom of the shaft, bleeding and bruised. They were given medical attention and the party came on to Richmond, when the children were removed to the Gibson Infirmary. Both were badly cut and bruised and suffering intense pain. They have gone on to their home in Irvine, where the family are well known and prominent people. Just as Mrs. Paik reached Richmond she received news that her husband, Wm. Paik, had died at Irvine. Mr. Paik was a well-known and popular man.

Nominate Full Ticket.

The Republican convention, at court house Saturday, was largely attended, and, after discussion, it was decided to put up a full ticket for the Democrats to bury under an avalanche of votes next November. The meeting was presided over by Prof. L. V. Dodge, Mr. E. B. Smith, of the Pantagraph, being elected secretary. The following nominations were made: For county judge, Squire M. C. Moore; circuit clerk, Virgil Weaver; county attorney, A. R. Burnam, Jr.; Squire J. H. Jones; jailer, W. H. Hendren, superintendent schools, Prof. L. V. Dodge; representative, Minon Young. We understand that candidates for magistrate will also be nominated in every precinct, making the ticket complete. The resolutions ordered the adjournment of Friday night and the meeting adjourned.

Delightful Meeting.

Kentucky Editors Meet at Estill Springs. Business and Pleasure Combined.

Laying aside the countless cares and worries of their offices, the newspaper men of Kentucky assembled at beautiful Estill Springs last week for their annual outing and business sessions. The main body of scribes mobilized at Louisville Monday morning. The Southern Railway had prepared an elegant special train which bore the party to Versailles. Here the L. & A. took charge, and they were soon being whirled over this splendid road through most picturesque portion of Kentucky. The Riddell Brothers, in their usual business-like manner, had prepared carriages, buses and wagons, and the party was driven to Estill Springs, where the Kentucky Press Association was organized many years ago, and as meetings are held twice each year, the editors have become thoroughly acquainted. In fact, the editors, who are here to get together and discuss the ups and downs in the tread-mill existence in a country print shop. President Tim Needham, some time ago, appointed two committees of experienced newspaper men to arrange for this gathering. It is the custom to devote the forenoon to business, the afternoons and evenings to pleasure. The first committee made up a program of addresses and discussions of a strictly business character. The second committee arranged for the pleasure of the party.

Beginning promptly at nine o'clock, the editors talked shop until the dinner bell put a quietus on the proceedings. There were many talks on matters of the greatest importance, not only to newspaper people, but the public at large. These served to instill new life into the quill-drivers and all returned home with new ideas and with renewed determination to do all within their humble power to build up good government and bring about the betterment of conditions in their several localities.

Tuesday evening the Eighth District Publishers League gave a brilliant reception to the State Association. Refreshments were served, and the League was highly complimented on the success of the stunt. Immediately thereafter, came the German, the big social event at each meeting. This was led by Mr. Thos. H. Pickels and charming wife, of this city. The German was participated in by about fifty couples, and the beautiful girls, handsome young men and gallant men presented a scene long to be remembered.

On Wednesday evening, Messrs. Riddell gave an elaborate banquet, and the menu was, without doubt, the most tempting ever served in Central Kentucky. Each course was served with a promptness and elegance which, as a slang expression, "got next to" the party. The spring orchestra played during the repast, which added a charm not easy to describe. Mr. Jonett Shouse, of Lexington, as toastmaster, a brilliant young man and fine speaker, introduced the speakers in capital style, and his wit and humor brought forth much applause. The feature of the banquet was the toast by Mrs. A. Louise Babbs, of Cloverport. She is the daughter of editor John Babbs and is a young woman of great beauty and rare intelligence. Her toast, "Dressed Up, But Not Worried," was the decided hit of the meeting and she was applauded.

planted to the echo. Mr. Shouse very appropriately introduced Miss Babbs as "The sweetheart of the Kentucky Press."

Each afternoon was devoted to athletic stunts, and it certainly was amusing to see the scribes run, jump, throw balls and cut up like a lot of boys out of school, but that was what they wanted—to get as far as possible from the hum drum, the grind and rush of business.

As Estill is our next door neighbor, we took special note on the expressions of opinion on the famous resort and the treatment received at the hands of Riddell Brothers. The writer has attended almost every meeting of the Association in the past sixteen years and we have never seen a crowd more highly delighted, better pleased and happier than was that of last week. Estill Springs is a most delightful resort in every particular. Situated in the beautiful mountains, it is cool and inviting. The health-giving qualities of the waters are unmeasured. The table is elegant, being supplied with every substantial and delicacy a large farm and garden, together with quick service from the city markets, can afford. The rooms are cool, neat and inviting. There are plenty of servants ready to respond to every beck and call. The rates are very reasonable, and it is very place for those worn out by illness and toil to recuperate. It is well known fact that Estill Springs is one of the very few summer resorts where gamblers and questionable characters are positively forbidden. Ladies and children, unaccompanied by male escorts, are just as safe there as in their own homes. The grounds are shady and inviting, you have the Kentucky river at hand for boating, bathing and fishing, while the dance hall is considered to be the finest in the State. An orchestra of six Cincinnati musicians give two concerts daily, plays during the meal hours and for the dancers.

Ernest Hays, who killed his brother-in-law, Jas. Allen, in this county some time ago, has been arrested in Indiana and returned.

The city of Irvine is wide awake and check full of business. The people are a whole-hearted, honorable, clever set, and have a word of cheer and welcome to every visitor. There are many good stores, all filled with up-to-date merchandise, and business is always good. First-class concrete pavements run all over the town, in fact every street is bordered on both sides. This monument of public-spiritedness was highly commended by the newspaper men and such expressions as "wish our town would wake and do this," were heard.

Ernest Hays, who killed his brother-in-law, Jas. Allen, in this county some time ago, has been arrested in Indiana and returned.

Mr. T. C. Underwood, of Hopkinsville, was elected President for the ensuing year.

Mr. A. D. Miller, of the Climax, was elected Vice President, and, according to custom, will be elected President next summer.

As a tribute of their high esteem, members of the Eighth District League presented Mr. H. R. Smith of the L. & A. Railroad, with a set of handsome knives and forks.

man and is highly thought of by all guests at the Springs Hotel.

Mayor Woods was highly complimented on his masterly address for State-wide prohibition. It was conceded by all that he got the better of the argument. Mr. Woods is a fine speaker, and, as his whole heart and soul go out in this noble cause, his eloquence at times was sublime.

Elliott Riddell, who is "behind the counter" at the Springs, is a lovable and charming gentleman. Polished in manners and conscientious to a fault, he quickly wins the friendship of every guest. His charming young wife takes a keen interest in the success of the resort, and quickly won a warm spot in the hearts of the party. She is a most delightful lady, handsome and accomplished.

A noticeable feature of these gatherings of newspaper men is the total absence of liquor and liquor drinking. We are personally acquainted with a number of newspaper men in Kentucky, and there is not a booze artist in the crowd. Occasionally a fellow may take a little nip to cut the cob webs from his Irish channel, but such a thing as intemperance is unknown. At Estill last week even the customary nail was not driven into the punch.
