Our Great Progress in Fifty Years.

While in 1860 the United States held a low place among the countries in most of the great interests, it has a long lead among the nations in nearly all of them today. Although it has only 5 per cent of the world's population, it produces 20 per cent of the world's wheat, 22 per cent of its gold, 30 per cent of its silver, 35 per cent of its manufactures in the aggregate, 37 per cent of its pig iron, 40 per cent of its coal, 43 per cent of its steel, 53 per cent of its copper, 60 per cent of its petroleum, 70 per cent of its cotton and 80 per cent of its corn, while it has 40 per cent of the world's railway mileage. How has this tremendous expansion in the country's activities in the past half century helped the average wage-earner, who constitutes a majority of the people? Here is one way and a very effective way, of answering this query. While the number of depositors in the savings banks of the country was 963,000 in 1860, it was 9,142,000 in 1910, and the amount of their deposits was $140,000,000 in the former year and $4,970,000,000 in the latter.—Lealie's.

It has long been a Democratic custom in Madison county to give a second term to those officials who perform their duty well during the first term of office, and you can make no mistake by deciding to cast your vote for R. B. Terrill for re-election to the office of County Court Clerk. His record is open for the closest inspection.

"My Boy."

By request of one of our subscribers, we are publishing Edward Leigh Pell, Jr., "My Boy." Every mother and father should read and heed it. The world has no room for a boy. He is too rough for its taste and in his awkwardness he often rubs it the wrong way. We treasure our men, our women and our girls, but we only tolerate our boys—tolerate them with the hope that they will soon come to be boys.

But a boy is like a cocoon—out brought to us fresh from the tree, enveloped in its great shaggy covering. The goodness is all within, and you must crack its very heart to find it. You never know what is in the heart of a boy until it has been cracked by some hard vicissitude of life.

When I was taken sick my boy squared his frail shoulders to bear his father's burdens. Day after day he went to the office and tried to take his father's place, and when they gave him business worries to bring home he would often hide them in his pocket and meet his father with a smiling face.

His father should not be worried. One day he came home in pain and laid down his work. When they were about to take him away to the hospital I went to him and said: "My boy, you know how I have always loved you with all my heart."

"And I have loved you with all my heart, too," he replied; "but papa don't worry; I don't mind the operation, I am only afraid you will worry and it will make you worse. Don't worry, papa."

And day after day there came a message of love from the hospital with its admonition not to worry.

When at last he began to realize that he must go, he sent for me.

"God has been good to us," I said to him, "and we can trust him."

"I am trusting him," he said.

"We've had lot of good times together, my boy, and we are going to have many more; for I am coming to you and we shall live together forever."

And he gave my hand a squeeze that broke my heart.

At the last moment, while talking to his mother, his brilliant mind as clear as it had ever been in all his life, he looked up suddenly and exclaimed:

"They are coming!"

"Who are coming, my child?" asked his mother.
Oh, the angels, the angels, I see them!"
"And won't you come for me, my boy?" asked his mother.
"Yes, yes; good-bye."
And he passed within the veil as peacefully as a babe drops to sleep on his mother's breast.

Good Sense from Woodson.

The present campaign in Kentucky must not be permitted to degenerate into one of personal abuse. There is no occasion for it. There is nothing at stake warranting acrimonious language between Democrats. Every man in the party, for the party's welfare and in the interest of good citizenship, should immediately lend his influence toward stopping a personal controversy that is without justification and deplorable from every standpoint.—Owensboro Messenger.

Silly Denominationalism.

A contributor to the Florida Christian Advocate advises his readers to draw denominational lines in selecting their candidates, i. e., if a man is a member of your church, other things being equal, vote for him. We do not think this advice of the reverend gentleman is wholesome. Politics and religion are bad things to mix together. A man's moral character certainly should be considered in selecting a public servant, but the church he attends, or the form of worship he employs, is a matter concerning which none has a right to dictate or interfere with, but which rests solely with his own conscience. That is the spirit of our free institutions.—Lakeview Evening Telegram.
