

DETECTIVES COME HERE FOR EVIDENCE

Garrard Deaf-Mute Girl May Testify In Mysterious Murder Case In Louisville

Search by Louisville detectives for evidence in connection with the mysterious murder of Rebecca Loveall, deaf-mute in a park there a few weeks ago, led two of the Falls City sleuths to visit Richmond a few days ago. They then went on to Garrard county where a young lady who is a deaf-mute, living near Buckeye, is said to have been interviewed by them.

It seems that the Louisville detectives are endeavoring to connect John H. Mueller, a deaf-mute printer, of Louisville, with the crime. He was arrested but afterwards released on bond. However the authorities have not given up their idea that he knows something about the girl's death. He is said to have been seen in Cincinnati with her, although he is a married man and of family. The Garrard county girl is said to have seen him in Cincinnati together and it was her evidence on this point that was wanted.

Anderson Agee, Richmond's well known deaf-mute talked to the detectives while they were here. Both were able to converse with him by the manual language. Mr. Agee knew neither Muller or the dead girl, and could give them no real information. It was reported in Louisville papers that the deaf-mute girl who was reported to have seen Muller and the dead girl together in Cincinnati lived here, but it proved that she is a resident of Garrard. The Louisville Post had this to say about it:

A young woman living near Richmond, Ky., is expected to appear as a witness for the state at the examining trial of John H. Mueller, the deaf mute charged with the murder of Rebecca Loveall in Shawnee Park.

Prosecuting Attorney Robert H. Lucas shares this belief also. The prosecution expects to show that Mueller was suspended from Gallaudet College, where he studied for the ministry for misconduct.

The young woman now living near Richmond is expected to give important evidence.

Mueller's case comes up for examining trial in City Court Thursday.

Brent Overstreet, attorney for Mueller, said:

"All the evidence they can get against my client will be in his favor, as there is no doubt as to my client's innocence."

Mr. Overstreet said that W. Hickman Carter, of the Kentucky School for Deaf at Danville, will arrive tomorrow night to represent Mueller as interpreter.

The blackboard will be used at the trial for the benefit of the mute witnesses alone.

Changes In R. R. Schedules

The L. & N. is announcing two important changes in train schedules as affecting Richmond, to take effect February 1st. The early morning train from Ravena going toward Frankfort, will arrive at 6:10 instead of 7 as in the past, and the night train from Frankfort will arrive at 7:22 instead of 6:45. A number of changes are made in the mountain line schedules out of Winchester also.

Bryan Replies To Edwards

(By Associated Press) Asheville, N. C. Jan. 30.—Replying to Gov. Edwards, of New Jersey, who said Wm. Jennings Bryan sought a "death harmony" in the democratic party with San Francisco as the "morgue," Bryan said here today he hoped Edwards would "keep on talking" as "no champion of the liquor traffic can talk long without insulting the conscience and sense of decency of the country." The more Edwards talks," said Bryan, "the more ashamed Chairman Cummins will be of giving respectability to his candidacy for the presidential nomination."

LOUISVILLE POLICE PROTECTED GAMBLERS

Louisville, Jan. 30.—Indictment of Police Captain Charles Stucker on a charge of protecting favored gamblers in open violation of the law, publication of similar charges against Police Captain Arthur Guelda, and a search for a gambling house in which it is alleged a well known professional male gambler "deals" to women only, were among the day's developments in Louisville's gambling scandal.

No indictment was returned against Guelda, the year limit of the statute having expired in allegations against him.

The trail upon which the grand jury is still working came from the following leads which form highlights in the indictment record against the accused officer:

Open gambling in the pool room of Roscoe Ogden, brother of Congressman Charles F. Ogden, at 226 South Third street, where stakes as high as $1,600 were lost, and its alleged protection by Capt. Stucker and Captain Guelda.

The killing by a patrolman of Roy Samuels, who operated a rival place across the street from Ogden, and the alleged remark by Capt. Guelda that "nobody was killed but Roy Samuels and the one brought to have been killed long before."

Alleged instructions from both Stucker and Guelda that "everything is all right in Ogden's place and don't make any arrests before calling up."

Mercer Girl Inherits Estate Of Somerset's Indian Doctor

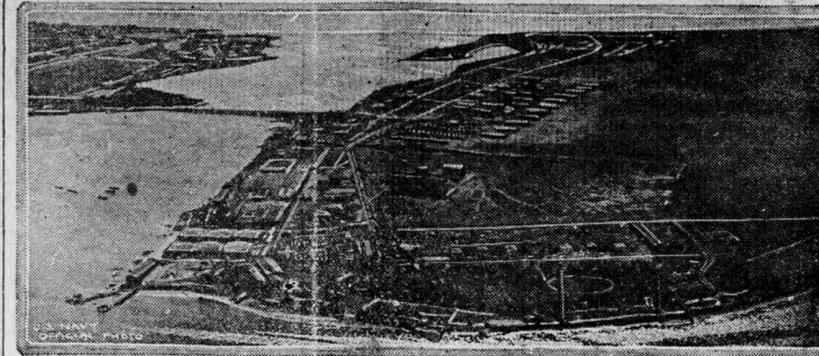

Harrodsburg, Ky., Jan. 30.—A Mercer county girl and her two sisters have inherited the bulk of the big fortune of Dr. J. S. Anderson, Choctaw Indian herbalist, who recently died at his large sanitarium at Somerset.

Among the people who went from this county to be treated at the Indian's sanitarium was Miss Bessie Darland, a school teacher. She became his secretary, and by his will, just probated, she is chief beneficiary. She receives in fee simple four houses and lots, a barn and garage, at Kingston, Tenn.; three farms in Pulaski county of 123 acres, 78 acres and 173 acres, respectively. The land lies near Somerset and is said to be worth $100 an acre. Miss Darland also receives an automobile, all bequests being to "my faithful and efficient secretary," Misses Myrtle and Bertha Darland, her sisters, receive a house and lot jointly in Ferguson, Pulaski county. They are daughters of Martin Darland, who for two years has been manager of Dr. Anderson's farms.

NO GREAT ACT OF HEROISM REQUIRED

If some great act of heroism was necessary to protect a child from croup, no mother would hesitate to protect her offspring, but when it is only necessary to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and give it as soon as the first indication of croup appears, there are many who neglect it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is within the reach of all and is prompt and effectual.

SHACKELFORD ACTS AS SPECIAL JUDGE

Judge W. R. Shackelford has gone to Mt Sterling to preside as special judge in murder cases against three negroes, John, Lizzie and John Evans, Jr., charged with slaying S. English Anderson, a prominent Montgomery county farmer. Judge Henry R. Prewitt, of Mt. Sterling had been counsel in the case before being appointed circuit judge after the death of Judge Will A. Young, and so was ineligible to preside. Gov. Morrow thereupon designated Judge Shackelford as special judge to hear this case. There was considerable trouble in getting a jury, as public interest in the trial is great.

In order to facilitate matters, Judge Shackelford held a night session of court Thursday. The jury found the negro guilty of murder and gave him a life sentence in the penitentiary. Evans, Sr., and his wife were given terms of three years each in the pen.

NOT IN THE BURLEY SECTION, ANYWAY

(By Associated Press) Washington, Jan. 30.—Decreased farm production next year and a consequent increase in the cost of living, due to dissatisfaction of farmers, was predicted before the Senate postoffice committee today by Jas. I. Blakeslee, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General. More than 40,000 answers to 200,000 questionnaires sent to farmers, he said, indicated a condition of "disquieting and portentous of disastrous consequences."

The high cost of wearing apparel, of staples not produced on the farm, of farm implements and fertilizers, all of which seemed to fill the farmer's mind with discouragement and resentment, is certain to result in curtailment of food production, Blakeslee's report said.

HOUSE MEMBERS ALMOST AT BLOWS

Frankfort, Ky., January 30.—Great sport was furnished to members of the House of Representatives today when Representatives Harry Meyers, of Covington, and John T. Murphy, of Kenon county, aired their personal differences in a debate on a bill to abolish the office of detective for Commonwealth Attorney in counties having cities of the second class.

Cheers, hand-clapping and laughter greeted the invitation of Representative Meyers to Representative Murphy to "step outside" and settle their differences.

Representative Murphy had declared that "Meyers' name stands as a synonym for treachery and deception, and he always had brought reproach upon the Democratic party."

Senator Brig H. Harris offered a resolution directing Lieutenant Governor S. Thurston Ballard to appoint a committee of three Senators to advise and assist Governor Morrow to prepare bills, abolish useless offices.

Favorable reports were made in the Senate on the bill of Senator Frank Eives to permit corporations to have capital stock with no par value, and provide organization tax on a basis of $100 par value; of Senator Jacob Metzger, requiring polls to remain open until six p. m., and increasing compensation of registration officers from $2 to $5 a day; of Senator Newton Bright to provide for a bond issue of $300,000 for the State Fair; of Senator J. H. Branstetter, to allow eight peremptory challenges to defendants in felony cases and three in misdemeanors; of Senator Branstetter, forming the office of Special Commonwealth Attorney, and another by Senator Branstetter, fixing penalty for seduction of girls less than 16 years old to term of from 3 to 20 years.

CHILDREN'S MASS MEETING SATURDAY

Great crowds gathered at the Methodist church to hear Dr. Morrison yesterday. Under the leadership of Mr. Biere the choir has been doing excellent work. The changes of the weather has some what tested Mr. Biere's throat but he was in shape for a fine solo last night.

The afternoon audience looked like a Sunday morning congregation. Last night the church was packed to its capacity, many chairs being used to accommodate the people. Several went forward for prayer. The service was of unusual interest.

Dr. Morrison preached on the "Signs of the Times", and showed how they pointed to the end of this "dispensation", the coming of the Lord and the setting up of a new and better order. The key note of the preaching of this meeting has been an appeal to the people to seek after the fullness of Christ's salvation, to live consecrated and holy lives and to devote themselves to the great work of winning lost souls to Christ.

The regular services will be held today at 2:30 and 7:15. There will be a children's mass meeting Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Parents are urged to send out their children. The meetings will close Sabbath. The ministers are expecting three great services. Morning service at 11, after service at 3 and the evening service at 7.

Musick Goes To Chair

Gov. Morrow has declined to interfere with the death sentence of Charles Musick, convicted in Boyd county of murder, and he will be electrocuted March 10th. Musick killed Charles Hatfield, a police officer of Ashland, March 29, 1919, after he and a man named Bradley robbed Charles Hall, a night clerk at a hotel in Ashland.

They're Still At It

(By Associated Press) Washington, Jan. 30.—Likelihood of an immediate break in the peace treaty compromise negotiations apparently diminished today as the unofficial bi-partisan conciliation committee of Senators prepared to resume deliberations. Leaders indicated that at today's session, which was expected to last until late in the afternoon, only collateral issues of the reservation controversy would be taken up, and that any decision of troublesome Article 10 will be postponed until next week.

THINKS MARS IS TALKING EARTHWARD

(By Associated Press) Rome, Jan. 30.—Inter-planetary communication as suggested by the mysterious waves caught by wireless plants throughout the world is not a subject for ridicule, says Prof. Argenti, a widely known scientist. He asserts it is possible to send messages from the earth to other members of the sun's family because they will convey electric waves, as readily as air. "These mysterious communications," he said, "scientists believe are due not to mechanical but to intelligent forces."

LOCAL BREAKS CLOSE TILL MONDAY

The tobacco market in Richmond adjourned Friday morning over for Monday. There is still a great lot of weed on hand, and sales the coming week promise to be brisk. COURT'S OPINION COVERS CASE FULLY

History Of Clay's Ferry Bridge From Legal Aspect Given By Court Of Appeals

Receipt by attorneys interested in the case of the opinion of the Court of Appeals in the Clay's Ferry Bridge toll suit, verifies newspaper dispatches that the highest state court's action has finally disposed of the matter so far as prevention of the collection of toll through legal action is concerned. The appellate court's opinion holds that the right to collect toll was a transferable right and having bought it the Clay's Ferry Bridge Company has the right to collect tolls at its bridge.

The appellate court reviews the history of the bridge in its legal aspects and covers the case fully in its opinion. What it says in full will be of much interest as the public has been so generally interested in this test case. The opinion of the Court of Appeals reads as follows:

The Court of Appeals of Kentucky, January 23, 1920.

Madison County etc. Plaintiffs. On motion of the Defendant to dissolve Injunction granted by the Circuit Judge of the 25th Judicial District.

Clay's Ferry Bridge Company, Defendant. Opinion of the Court by Judge Settle sustaining motion and dissolving injunction.

The object of this action, brought in the Madison Circuit Court by the Plaintiffs, Madison and Fayette Counties, against the Defendant, Clay's Ferry Bridge Company, was and is to prevent that Company from charging and collecting of the traveling public tolls by way of tolls for the use by the latter of an iron bridge spanning the Kentucky River at Clay's Ferry, Kentucky, owned and operated by it. On the hearing of the plaintiffs motion therefor, a temporary injunction was granted by the Madison Circuit Court restraining the collection by the defendant of the tolls complete and the latter, by proper means, to the plaintiffs and motion made for that purpose, now seeks at the hands of the writer of this opinion, a Judge of the Court of Appeals, the dissolution of that injunction.

A brief statement of the facts out of which this litigation arose is essential to a proper understanding of the questions of law presented for decision by the motion of defendant to dissolve the injunction. The Richmond and Lexington Turnpike Company, which was incorporated in 1834 by an act of the General Assembly, under the charter powers conferred by its charter constructed the present turnpike leading from Lexington to Richmond, which crosses the Kentucky River at Clay's Ferry. The charter permitted the erection of toll gates and the charging and collecting of tolls by the corporation for the use of the turnpike by the traveling public, and prescribed the rate of tolls to be charged. For several years after its completion the turnpike was used for travel without a bridge over the Kentucky River at Clay's Ferry; during which time, as for many years prior to the construction of the turnpike, a ferry, of which the Richmond and Lexington Turnpike Company was not the owner, was there operated by the boats of which all persons, vehicles or stock finding it necessary in traveling the turnpike to cross the river, were ferried over it. In 1836, however, by another act of the General Assembly, amendatory of that of 1834, the Richmond and Lexington Turnpike Company was authorized to construct a bridge across the Kentucky River at Clay's Ferry and necessary approaches for the use of the traveling public in connection with its turnpike. The act of 1836 empowered the Company to charge and collect tolls for all travel over the bridge, in addition to tolls collected for travel on the turnpike, but limited the bridge tolls to such amounts as were, or before the construction of the bridge, had been paid by users of the turnpike for ferriage across the river. Land on each side of the river for providing the necessary approaches to the bridge, was acquired and the bridge constructed by the Richmond and Lexington Turnpike Company shortly after the passage of the act; and from its completion until 1898 the bridge and approaches were owned and maintained by it and used by all travelers of the pike in crossing the Kentucky River by the payment of the turnpike Company of the bridge tolls fixed by the act of 1836.

By an act of the General Assembly of 1898, conferring among other enumerated powers, authority upon the fiscal Courts of the several counties in which turnpikes were maintained to purchase and maintain them for the use of the traveling public free of tolls, that part of the turnpike lying in Madison county was purchased of the Richmond and Lexington Turnpike Company by the Fiscal Court of Fayette county, and that part of the turnpike lying in Madison county was purchased of it by the Fiscal Court of Madison county. Deeds were duly executed by the Richmond and Lexington Turnpike Company to the counties named conveying the interests named conveying the in-
