

RICHMOND POST GETS BIG REVENGE

Local Legionnaires Slaughter Bera 18 to 0 in Ball Game Here Wednesday

(By Edgar T. Higgins) Jesse M. Dykes Post of the American Legion, of Richmond, on Wednesday, secured ample revenge for the defeats upon the football gridiron and basketball floor administered to her last year by Cleveland M. Frost Post of Berea.

Due to the magnificent twirling of Jim Parks, who shut up his law office in Lexington, just to come back and pitch for the boys of the old home town, the visitors were completely outclassed. Parks had everything needed to stop them to a walk which he did with the utmost ease and polish.

The crack twirler didn't have to play the game all by his lonesome though. He was given some real gilt-edge support both at the bat and in the field. The game was a very long one, due entirely to the heavy slugging of the local batters, but the big crowd which went out to see the legion boys enjoyed it thoroughly.

It did seem that the game was going to be a real tight one from the way it started off. For the first two or three innings, Martin pitching for the visitors, had the local batters guessing. But when they did get him, they came in a hurry and he retired from the slab amid a volley of long hits which would have discouraged any less optimistic a player than the clever young twirler from southern Madison.

There was one bad accident during the game, when a spike from Mainous' shoe cut a long gash in the left cheek of Stocker at second, for the visitors. The cut was deep and painful, but a Berea doctor here, gave first aid and Strickler gamely went on with his work in the infield.

The visitors used three pitchers in their efforts to stop the onslaught of the local legion lads but only to see the last one hit harder than the preceding one. The visitors gave their slabsters good support in the field but failed totally at the bat.

Jim Parks pitched his usual fine game on the mound, letting Berea down with three hits, and struck out 16. Not a visitor reached third.

The work of Combs, Eastern's star shortstop, was of a high class both in the field and at the bat. In the seventh he cut in with a home run with two men on. It was a long smash between left and center fields.

Harold Oldham also started with the stick, making two doubles and being robbed of a possible home run in the eighth. Frank Gentry was another Church Leaguer who "leaned on 'em" with powerful effect.

Prose Poem

The people are hard to satisfy in the good old summer time, when everyone has plenty, but it is very strange they voted for a change in 1920. While it is strange, we have the change, and we may become very, very sore, but they must bear the blame and keep in the game, and vote for a change in 1924. W. T.
