

Who Threw The Bomb in Wall Street?

The police were baffled, the newspapers puzzled, the public confused, when the roar of a deadly engine of destruction shook the financial center of America. It dealt death to many persons. It threw a panic into the heart of the nation.

It represented the policy of organized Bolshevism. It was the outcropping of materialism, anarchy, atheism and avarice. It was the flaming up of the spirit of destruction which smoulders in the hearts of radicals whose stock in trade is agitation and anarchy. This spirit is blasting at the foundations of society.

Its Roots in Moral Illiteracy

We do not know who threw the bomb. But we do know how to put an end to the bomb-throwing business and to banish the bomb-throwers—anarchists, Bolsheviks and red revolutionists.

Let Christian Education become dominant in America and bomb-throwing will cease, because there will be no bomb-throwers. Christian Education triumphant in this country will banish anarchy, radicalism and Bolshevism.

The Christian college stands for law, order, co-operation, brotherhood, religion, Christianity. It produces leaders who believe in these fundamentals, and who will build on constitutional government and the free institutions of our fathers.

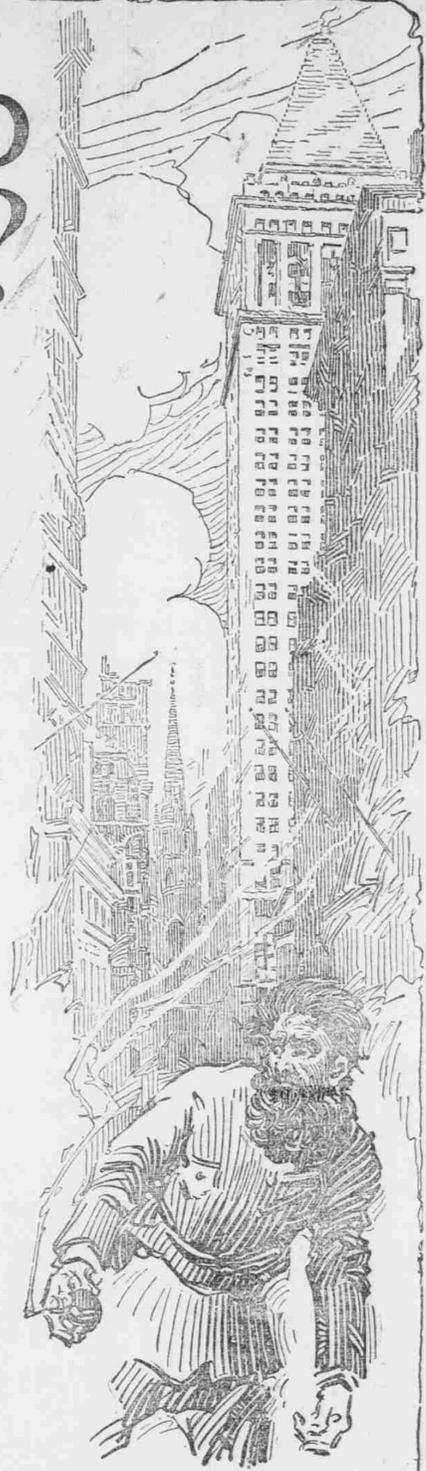

In the products of the Christian college lies the hope of a stable social order. From it alone Christian leaders come. Its influence in the nation is always on the side of orderly government.

To the maintenance of America's finest system of schools and colleges, the M. E. Church, South, stands pledged.

PICTURE OF COL. D. WALLER CHENAULT

in Richmond, Va. Will be Placed in Kentucky Room of Confederate Building

One of the notable features of the historic city of Richmond, Va. the Capital of the Southern Confederacy, during the war between the states, is a handsome, three-story War Memorial building. In this building, each of the fourteen Confederate States, has a room bearing the name of the state, and in these rooms have been collected and preserved, many portraits, trophies, and other mementoes of the heroic men who laid down their lives in that bloody conflict.

During a recent visit to the city of Richmond, Miss Belle H. Bennett, of this city, met Rev. Fred Chenault, a prominent young member of the Virginia Chenault family, the forebears of the large family of the same name in this county. At his urgent request, and accompanied by Dr. Chenault and his wife, Miss Bennett visited this Memorial building, especially the Kentucky room.

The memorials of General John Morgan, and a well executed portrait of the late Senator and twice Governor of Kentucky, James B. McCreary, were the striking features of the Kentucky room. Other things of interest and note were there, also, but the room did not have in it many things that should have been there.

During a recent visit to California, Dr. Chenault heard of the valor of the two Chenault men, Col. D. Waller Chenault of the 11th Kentucky Cavalry, and the younger man, scarcely more than a boy, Captain Joe Chenault, both of whom were killed in battle at the Green River Bridge, Ky., July 4, 1863; the latter standing on the stump of an old tree, cheering on his men, when the fatal shot struck him.

Dr. Chenault, on learning that these men were close kinsmen of Miss Bennett, made an appeal to her to try to secure pictures or other souvenirs, such as pistols, swords, or uniforms of these two men, that the children of the next generation might know something of their connection with those who fought so heroically for a great ideal.

Miss Bennett returned to Richmond, Ky., and found in the Traynor family, a beautiful picture of Col. D. Waller Chenault, which came down to them through their mother, who was an adopted daughter of Col. and Mrs. Chenault. This picture has been beautifully copied, and when framed, will be sent as a gift to the Memorial Building, in Richmond, Va.

At present it stands on an easel in the window of the Madison National Bank, and the men who fought with him from this county, and many who knew and were related to him, will be glad to look upon the strong, fine face of this Confederate officer, of whom Madison county may well be proud.

Irvine Man Dies

Lexington, Ky., May 31—W. M. Dunaway, well known business man of Irvine and active Odd Fellow of that city, died at St. Joseph's Hospital here last evening. He is survived by a widow and four children.

Why Not Just Deed

'Em The Sheps, Too (By Associated Press)

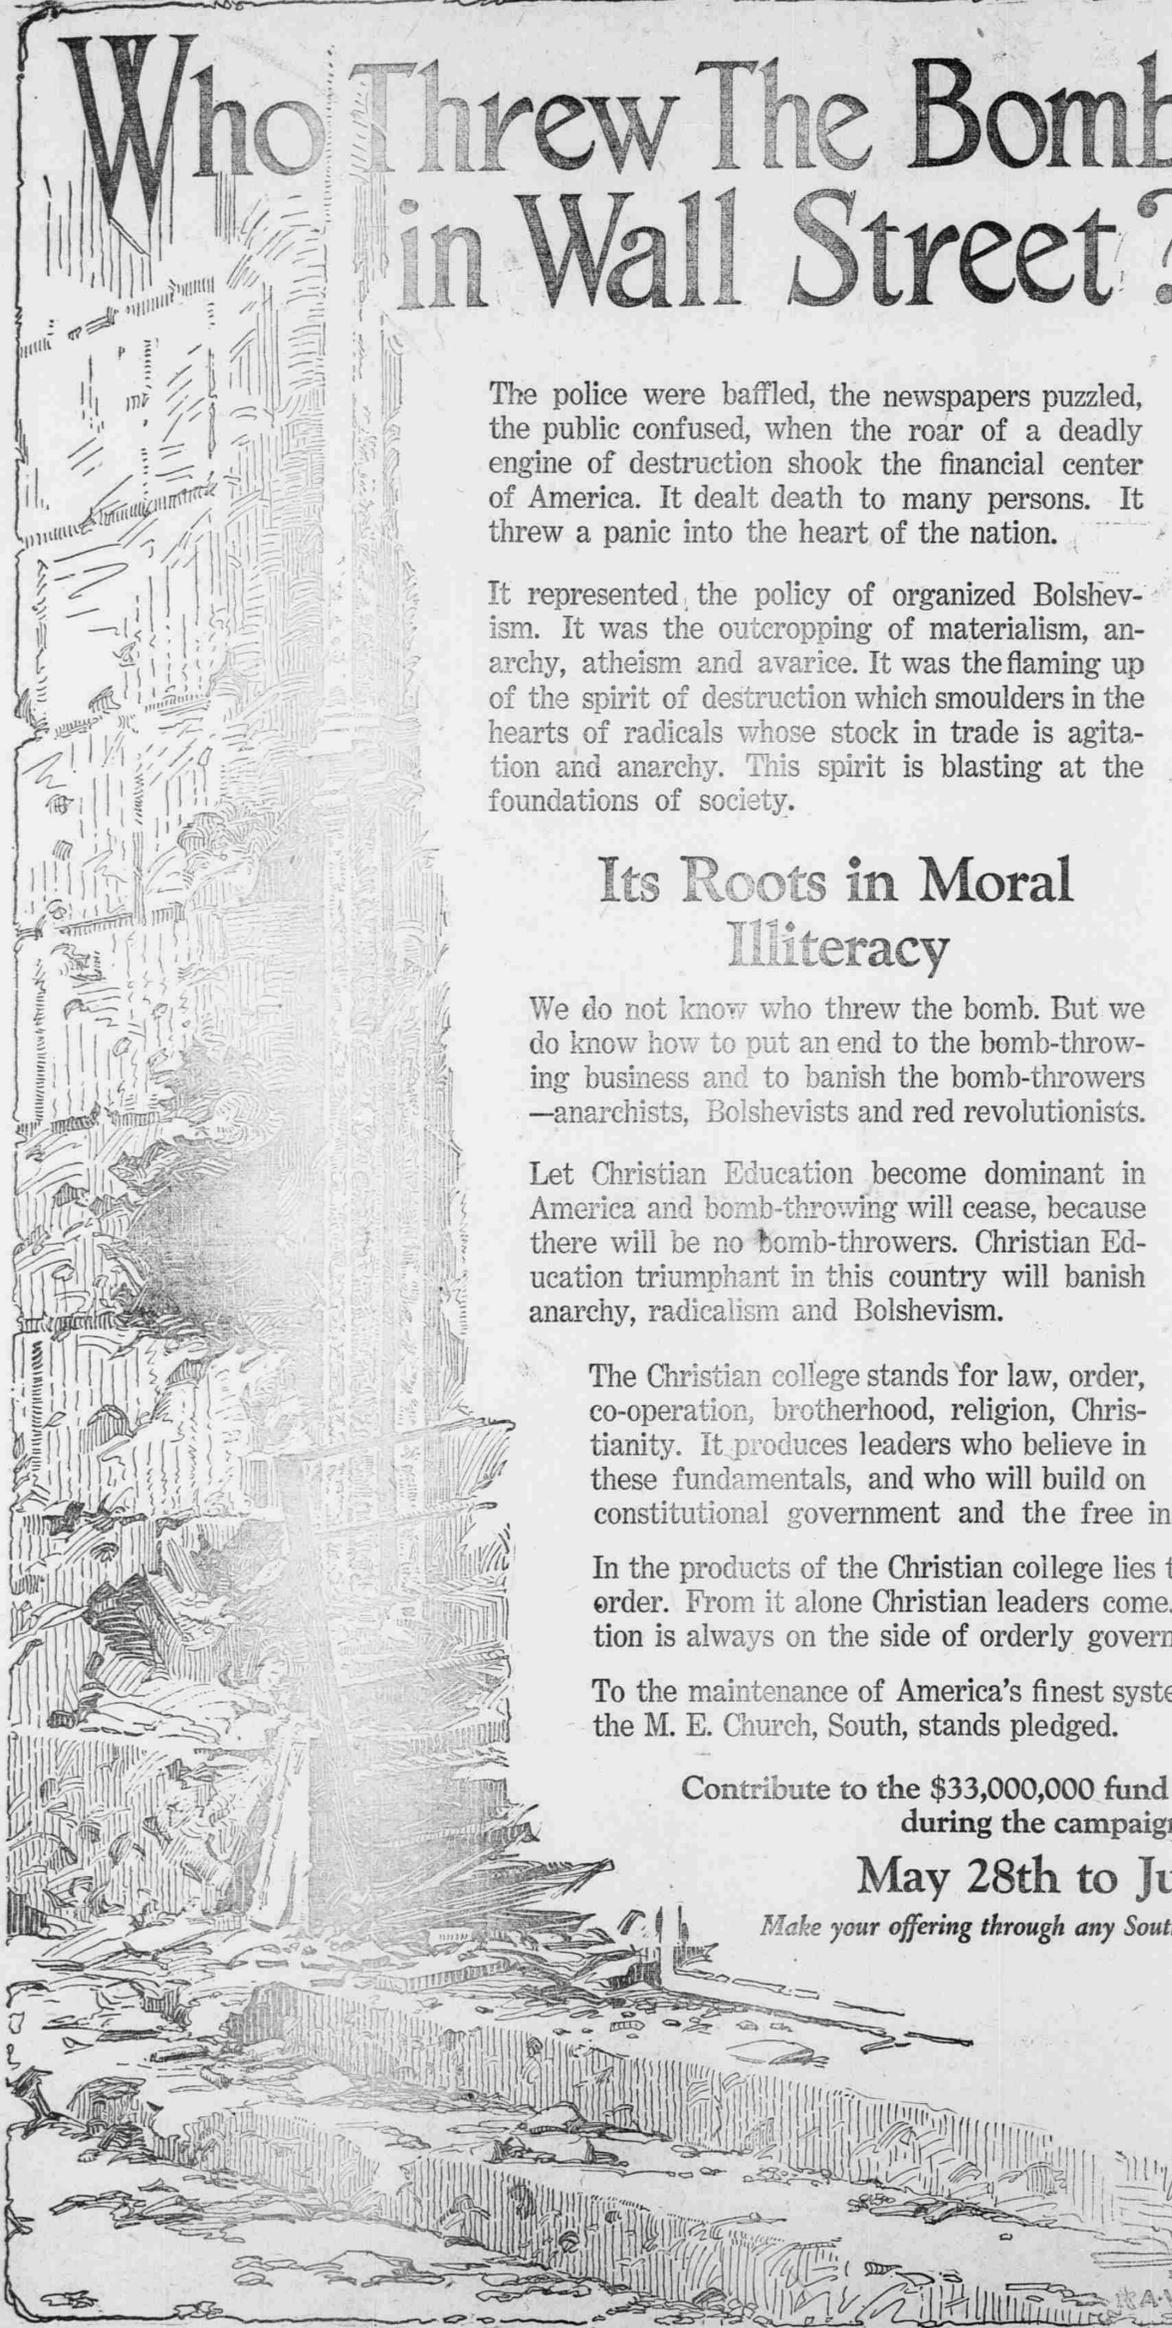

Louisville, May 31—A hundred and fifty Louisville plumbers will strike tomorrow, according to a statement today, if their demand for $10 a day, time and half for overtime and double time for Sunday and holidays, and a 44-hour week, is not met. Secretary Matlack, of the Plumbers Association, said today the demand will be refused.

Mrs. Patsy McCord has returned from Mary Baldwin where she was a student the past year.

Prof. A. C. Duncan, of Irvine, was a visitor here Monday.

About Rheumatism

People are learning that it is only a waste of time and money to take medicine internally for chronic and muscular rheumatism and about ninety-nine out of a hundred cases are one or the other of these varieties. All that is really necessary to afford relief is to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. Try it. It costs but 35 cents per bottle. Large size 60 cents.
