

JOUETT PLEADS FOR CHRISTIAN UNITY

Gives Strong Arguments For Cooperation Among Churches To Win the World

(By Associated Press)
Louisville, Ky., Sept. 21—A plea for Christian unity with all of the churches teaching the principles of Christ acting in unison to "win the world," was made at the opening session of the Kentucky Christian Missionary Convention here today by E. S. Jouett, of Louisville, president of the organization. Mr. Jouett spoke on "A Layman's View of the Disciples of Christ," the missionary convention being held in conjunction with the general convention of the Kentucky church.

After reviewing the history of the Disciples of Christ in Kentucky Mr. Jouett declared that the question of right living is for the individual's conscience and that it is the duty of the church to "arouse the individuals conscience and teach the principles that taught by Christ." He then called to the attention of his auditors the unity that won the war for the allies and continued: "The lesson to the divided armies of God in the present contest is plain. Jesus, the Christ, knowing what was in store for us, and expressing the wisdom of God himself, not only announced it as a fundamental in his plan for world salvation, but he definitely warned us, his disciples, against the danger and weakness of disunion and besought us to stand united in the accomplishment of our task of Christianizing the world. So earnest and deeply concerned was he about it that he did not trust even his own powers of persuasion but definitely prayed to the father that his disciples might be united. * * * The crisis has come and now, more than ever before, this seems to be the greatest outstanding need of the Christian world, just as the spirit of co-operation is dominant in the political world. The problem for each denomination and especially ours is not whether we can accomplish the thing, but whether we are doing our part toward its accomplishment."

Mr. Jouett declared that the responsibility rests upon the humblest layman as well as the preacher. He then recalled the Unity convention in St. Louis last February when representatives of 22 denominations met asserting that on fundamental facts the various denominations were practically agreed. He pointed to the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the American Bible Society, and the Christian Endeavor Society as examples of what can be done when dogmas are laid aside for greater work.

"We understand," he said, "at the outset that we get nowhere on the assumption that orthodoxy is my doxy and heterodoxy is all the others. * * * We are now broad enough to recognize that in all other Christian bodies, there are devout followers of Christ who are just as truly saved as we; just as earnest and sincere in their Christian service; just as honest in the opinions which they entertain concerning the construction of the scriptures."

"Now is the time for us as a people to decide whether we are ready to step forth into the rightful position of responsibility and the laity shall be informed and inspired to back the enterprise," he said, after declaring that every church should get back of the association for the promotion of Christian Unity, which has its headquarters at Baltimore.

Recalling the steps already taken whereby various denominations fraternize, Mr. Jouett declared that when the time comes for a general union "I, for one, and I believe I speak the sentiments of the great majority of the laymen of our church, am ready to enter this union, with Christ as the center and circumference, retaining my views as to controverted questions of scripture interpretation and giving the same right to every other man. Thus, and thus only, can the task ever be accomplished. No one would thereby stultify himself. No one would needlessly surrender his honest opinions. Once granting that my Presbyterian, Methodist or Episcopal, Methodist or Congregationalist brother is a follower of Christ, no good reason can be shown why we two should not join hands and unite our hearts, sympathies, labors and money in the effort to take and keep the world for Christ."

MAURICE GALVIN MAY NOW HAVE TO TELL

Covington Attorney Who Secured Blair's Pardon Is Indicted By Grand Jury

(By Associated Press)
Frankfort, Sept. 21—Maurice Galvin, republican state committeeman, was indicted by the Franklin county grand jury here today on a common law charge of conspiracy with Frank Blair, a convict, to whom a pardon was granted by Governor Morrow at Galvin's alleged solicitation. Blair was indicted with Galvin. It is charged that they conspired together to obtain a pardon for Blair and remove him from the boundaries of the state and prevent his arrest by Postoffice Inspector W. C. Lytle, by falsely representing to Governor Morrow that Blair had never been in trouble before and that Blair had a clear prison record.

800 KILLED IN DYE PLANT EXPLOSION

Most Terrible Industrial Accident In History Is Reported From Germany

(By Associated Press)
Mayence, Germany, Sept. 21—Eight hundred persons are reported killed and many injured in an explosion in the Badische anilinfabrik works at Oppau, near Frankenthal, in the Rhine palatinate today.

The disaster appears the most terrible in the history of industrial catastrophe. The explosion occurred when shifts were being made this morning in a laboratory where 800 men were working. A are reported killed.

Other explosions followed with concussion so terrific they were felt here, 35 miles away. At Mannheim, 13 miles distant several persons were killed and 36 injured by debris. Some persons were killed at Ludwigshafen, across the river from Mannheim, where the houses were unroofed. Oppau itself is nothing but a heap of ruins.

Reports from the scene say the disaster was due to an explosion of a gas or spirits tank. The plant manufactures explosive nitrogen compounds.

Terribly Woeful!

A young Californian swain took his lady love—two lovers they were—to church one evening. When the collection was being taken up the young man explored his pockets and found he was absolutely penniless. He whispered to his sweetheart "I haven't a cent, I changed my pants." Meanwhile, the girl had been searching her bag, finding nothing, blushed a rosy red, and said, "I'm in the same predicament."

IT WILL BE A BIG DAY IN RICHMOND

Leading Business Men To Make "Boosters' Day" One Long To Be Remembered

The Boosters' Day which will be put on in Richmond about October 12th, promises to be one of the biggest events ever pulled off in Richmond. For the past week a special advertising man has been calling on the merchants, and after going into details of Boosters' Day, the merchants fell right in with the proposition, and at the close of the canvass, it was found that practically every merchant in Richmond had become a member.

The idea of Boosters' Day is to set aside one certain day to be known as "Trade Day." At that time every merchant joining the club agrees to give away free of charge a handsome and expensive gift. As there are close to seventy-five merchants in the Richmond enterprise, there will be seventy-five prizes given absolutely free, and after tabulating the value of these presents it is safe to say that their value will approximate $750.

In addition to the prizes which are given on Boosters' Day, the management of the Daily Register gives fifty dollars in gold in order to induce the people to read the advertisements of the merchants which will be printed in 2 editions of the paper. Trade Day is beginning to be on the tongue of every citizen and everyone is looking forward to the big event. Further particulars of this wide awake project will be published in the Daily Register Thursday.

Below is a list of the merchants who have united in making this Boosters' Day a success. There are still a few more names who have not fully signed up, but they will be announced from time to time as the project progresses.

LAUREL FARMER'S DEATH A MYSTERY

James McClure, Found Near Boreing With Skull Crushed—Did 'Shiners Do It?

London, Ky., Sept. 21—Was James McClure, wealthy farmer of Laurel county, murdered by a gang of moonshiners; was he the victim of jealousy or was he slain for his money?

These are the questions which have been puzzling the authorities of Laurel county since McClure's body was found last Saturday at his home near Boreing with the skull crushed like an egg shell from a blow with a carpenter's hammer.

Three men and one woman are in jail here at the present time facing charges of murder. Their examining trials will be held Thursday in county court. The four were arrested soon after the discovery of the crime.

Janie Sasser, about 30 years old the daughter of a tenant on McClure's farm, and said to have been a sweetheart of McClure, is the woman in the case. Harvey Reynolds, a former lodger at the home of McClure and a friend of Miss Sasser; Perry Lawson, a brother-in-law of Miss Sasser, and a boy named Gilbert, related to the Sasser family, are also held for the crime.

The body of McClure was discovered by Reynolds and Miss Sasser, according to their story Saturday. On that day they declare they went to the murdered man's home for some vegetables. Upon their arrival they found all the doors locked. A note was fastened to the front door reading: "Look for the keys about the —," the last word having been erased.

They then looked through the window and saw McClure's body lying on the bed. Later the keys to the house were found in a water gourd near the spring.

McClure, according to the authorities, was last seen Friday when he ate supper at the Sasser home.

Death is thought to have come without warning to McClure. His skull was crushed and his brain penetrated by a heavy carpenter's hammer. The hammer was found near the bed upon which the body was lying. The hammer used to commit the crime, belonged to McClure.

No signs of a struggle could be found in the room. It is believed that the assailant struck McClure before the dead man was aware of the impending danger.

Authorities thus far have offered no explanation for the murder. Three theories are held, however. One is that a clan of moonshiners operating in the vicinity killed McClure to prevent him from opposing their activities. Another is that he was the victim of a plot to seize his estate, valued at between six and ten thousand dollars. The third theory is that McClure was slain through jealousy by a discarded lover of Miss Sasser.

McClure, who was a cripple, was a widower.

Ask Democratic Nominee For Judge To Withdraw

Somerset, Ky., Sept. 21—The Democratic Executive Committee of Pulaski county, at a called meeting, set an unusual precedent when it unanimously adopted a resolution requesting E. E. Bell, of Monticello, democratic nominee for circuit judge of the district composed of Rockcastle, Wayne, Pulaski and Clinton counties, to withdraw from the race. This was done for the reason that it was felt his continuing in the race would materially lessen the chances of the two democratic nominees in Pulaski county, M. L. Singleton for jailer, and Jack Edwards for sheriff.

LARGE CREDITORS TO TAKE OVER CONTROL

Judge Cochran Sets Aside Previous Order For Appointment of Receiver

Attorneys representing several Richmond banks returned from Maysville Tuesday where they appeared before Judge A. M. J. Cochran, of Federal Court, and had him dismiss proceedings in the case of Lee Congleton for want of jurisdiction. One of the attorneys informed the Daily Register that the large creditors of Mr. Congleton will take steps immediately to take charge of his property for their benefit. He said that the largest creditors are Richmond banks to the amount of about $20,000, and Lexington banks to the amount of about $70,000. He estimated Mr. Congleton's liabilities at around $120,000, unsecured; $100,000, secured. He expressed the opinion that his assets would net about $125,000.

Original proceedings, when it became evident that Mr. Congleton was in financial difficulties, were taken by Robert Peters, a small creditor of Indiana. He filed a friendly suit for a receivership. Mr. Congleton filed an answer admitting his insolvency and the need for a receiver for his business. Henry Maguire was then appointed by Judge Cochran. Mr. Maguire now lives in Lexington but is formerly from Beautyville. The larger creditors feeling that their interests should be more fully represented, took the action referred to above.

Mr. Congleton is one of the best known farmers and business men in this and Fayette counties. He converted much of his property into high-priced farms in Fayette county during the period of inflated values of the past few years and this is said to have been largely the cause of the difficulties in which his business has become involved.

FAMOUS TEXAS ATTORNEY

To Soon Visit His Former Law Partner, J. A. Sullivan, Here

Hon. Harvey B. Herd, attorney at law of Fort Worth, Texas, has written from Battle Creek, Mich., where he and his wife now are, that they will, during this fall, visit in Kentucky, and while so doing, will come to Richmond. Mr. Herd says Richmond is to him a sad place to visit as all his old college chums here are either dead or have moved away, except Mr. Sullivan and Robert K. Berman.

Mr. Herd and Mr. Sullivan both returned from the University of Virginia in September, 1883, and as a firm entered the practice of law. But Herd soon concluded that Richmond was entirely too slow a proposition and went to Fort Worth, Texas, and has made a great success there, and is rated as a millionaire. His wife will accompany him on his visit here. She is a daughter of John Lewis, who with his family, emigrated from here to Texas many years ago. She is widely connected in Madison county.

Used Tobacco For Fertilizer

(By Associated Press)
Lexington, Sept. 21—Many replies are being received by workers on behalf of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association in reply to questions as to how much tobacco growers raised last year. One Boyle county farmer in reply to the question said that he did not know, as he had used his tobacco for fertilizer when the market opened and he found how prices were going.
