PORTER CALLS A "SPADE A SPADE"

Tells Dry Voters They Should Stand By Their Friends On Election Day

Danville, Ky., Oct. 12—Declaring that if any business in the world was run with "half the incompetency and political favoritism that has marked the conduct of the national prohibition department," it would "go broke in three months," former Chief Prohibition Inspector J. Sherman Porter, of Lexington, in an address to the state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union here Tuesday night, told of some of his experiences as a federal prohibition officer in Kentucky and declared that "the state law is not only ample for the punishment for all kinds of whisky crooks, but it is even stronger and a better law for that purpose than the Volstead act."

Mr. Porter, of the many unpunished violations of the prohibition law, told of a "king of the bootleggers in Northern Kentucky," who has so far "not even been arrested or accused in any warrant, though there is enough documentary evidence on file in Washington to convict him of fifty crimes against the liquor laws," and of what he called "evident reluctance at Washington to proceed against this fellow, while the prohibition department of Ohio continues to issue him wholesale drug licenses under which he can camouflage his bootlegging business."

Mr. Porter repeated his statements, made in an interview on his retirement from the government service August 1, that almost all of the warehouses and distillery robberies were "fakes," pure and simple, and that the same applies to "truck robberies, in which it is only one set of bootleggers robbing another, sometimes by prearrangement."

Mr. Porter said that in the hearing of charges against druggists and physicians at Owensboro and Paducah, "the good work of the Kentucky department was set aside by Commissioner John F. Kramer on the request of Kentucky Congressmen and Senators, who had the revocations of permits, an evidence heard by Kentucky inspectors set aside and relicensed some of the worst offenders in Kentucky."

Mr. Porter called attention to the effort to stop whisky selling in the cities and declared that this will never be done "until the women and decent men in the cities show themselves at least as good citizens as saloon keepers, bartenders and gamblers in the matter of exercising the right of suffrage and standing by their friends in politics."

WASHINGTON GIVES APPROVAL TO ROAD

Pike Out of Richmond One of Favored Projects In $2,828,794 Allowance

Nothing stands in the way now of work beginning on the seven miles out of Richmond on the Lexington pike, except the moving in of the equipment of the Carey-Reed Company, contractors. Word was received from Washington Tuesday that almost three million dollars worth of road projects in which the federal road department will co-operate, have been approved. In the list is the Lexington pike out of Richmond. The dispatch from Washington said:

Twelve Kentucky road projects calling for an expenditure of approximately $2,828,794, of which 50 per cent is to be allotted from federal aid funds, have been approved by the Public Roads Bureau, Department of Agriculture, during the three-month period from July 1 to September 31, it was learned today.

This, according to officials of the bureau, is one of the most extensive road improvement programs initiated in any state under the federal aid plan within so short a period. The total mileage to be covered by the twelve Kentucky projects is 166.7 and the total federal aid funds to be allotted is estimated at $1,414,319.21. ## DR. COLLINS URGES GROWERS TO SIGN UP

Former Madison Man, Home on Visit, Tells of Great Results Obtained in Colorado

A stirring message from Colorado to the burley tobacco growers of Kentucky and other states is brought by Dr. P. P. Collins, a physician of Denver, and owner of a large farm in Madison county, who is here on a visit to his mother, Mrs. William Collins and brother, May Collins.

Following the organization of cooperative marketing association among the fruit growers of Colorado's fruit belt, Dr. Collins says that land prices jumped from $100 an acre to $300 and $400 within a year or so, and now these same lands are selling at $1,000 an acre. He predicts the very same result will be had here in Kentucky if the burley growers have the foresight and good business sense to become members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association.

"My brother and I bought some fruit land in Colorado at $100 an acre several years ago," Dr. Collins said today. "At that time we were just from Kentucky, where $100 an acre was a very high figure to pay for land. We thought it steep. But the marketing association was formed, and land commenced to go up. The association was a great success. The farmers began to receive better prices for their products and all 'got on the band wagon'; in fact, there was a great rush to join the association by those who had held back while their brothers were going forward in the big work. I sold out my holdings at $350 an acre and thought I was making a nice profit. Now the same land is selling for $1,000 an acre."

"I cannot urge too strongly upon the tobacco growers of Kentucky the wisdom of joining this association. They will never regret it. It will prove the greatest thing they ever did to make things better for them and their families. It will mean prosperity for Kentucky in a measure that her people have never known."

BURLEY PRODUCTION DROP SEEN FOR 1921

Production of burley tobacco this year will be only 161,670,000 pounds, according to figures made public last night by Dr. W. F. Bryant, head of the Bureau of Crop Estimates for Kentucky. This represents an average of 190,200.

According to Mr. Bryant's figures, the yield is very light this year, averaging only 850 pounds, whereas 1,000 pounds is considered an average yield. This, combined with the unusually small number of acres planted, will cause the crop to be one of the smallest in several years.

The production last year, when prices reached an unusually low level, was approximately 225,000,000 pounds. Much of this tobacco was bought by speculators and sold during the summer and fall at advances ranging from 4 to 10 cents, the report stated.

NATIVE OF MADISON DIES IN CLARK

At the time of her death she was making her home with her daughter, Mrs. William Johnson, near Elkin Station. She was a daughter of James F. Jackson, of Madison county, her mother being a Miss Sallie Tribble before her marriage. Besides her immediate family she has a number of relatives in this and adjoining counties. A number of negroes today asked the committee to order an investigation.

Says They'll "Get" Simmons

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 12—Five shots were fired last night at Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, assistant chief of the propagating bureau of the Ku Klux Klan, according to reports to the police, but while the bullets smashed her bedroom window, they failed to hit her. An investigation resulted in no indication of who did the shooting but a few minutes after the incident a man called the Atlanta Constitution on the telephone and said:

"I just want to say that we got Mrs. Tyler tonight and we will get Simmons (the imperial wizard who is in Washington) tomorrow."

Washington, Oct. 12—Digging into activities of the Ku Klux Klan, the House Rules Committee developed by testimony today that the organization had taken in $1,488,710 since its foundation.

Though news letters said to have been sent from Klan headquarters, and not intended for general publication, the statement also was made that the Norfolk police chief had promised 200 rifles to the Norfolk order "in time of trouble," and that Representative Wm. D. Upshaw, democrat, of Georgia, in whose home district the Klan was born, had been "put to it to deny membership in the Klan and at the same time square his conscience as a preacher and church member."

The imperial wizard of the order, William J. Simmons, of Atlanta, set all day in the crowded committee room and heard witnesses declare that he was not its actual head; that all powers seem vested in Edward Young Clark, head of the publicity or propaganda bureau, and Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, his assistant.

Available records, the inspector said, showed collections amounting to $860,393 from June 1, 1920, to September 24, 1921.
