COLLINS CASE MAY GO TO LAST COURT

Appeal To Be Taken At Once From D. L. Moore Distillery Robbery Convictions

Altho Hum Collins, of Louisville, and the other defendants were convicted of the robbery of the D. L. Moore distillery in federal court Friday, it may be eight years before a final decision is reached whether or not Collins will have to pay a penalty in this case.

Attorney Clem Huggins, who remained over in town as the guest of Col. R. C. Oldham, said Saturday morning that the cases of all who were convicted will be carried to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which has headquarters in Cincinnati. Should the judgment of the lower court be affirmed there, the Collins case will go to the Supreme Court of the United States, Mr. Huggins said. He asserted that Collins was convicted with no evidence against him and he is determined to carry the case of his client to the court of last resort before he will let him be punished.

MAY 7 IS GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY

Louisville, Ky., Apr. 29—Sunday, May 7, is "Go-to-Sunday-School-Day."

The Kentucky Sunday School Association has set for Sunday School workers of the state a two fold goal for that day.

The first goal set for workers is a Sunday School membership of one hundred thousand for Kentucky by May 7. The second aim of the campaign that is being carried on over the state under the direction of Kentucky Sunday School Association from headquarters in this city is an attendance of 1,000,000 persons at Sunday School on "Go-to-Sunday-School-Day."

Reports received at state headquarters from all but ten counties of the state indicate that the Sunday School attendance on May 7 will be the largest in the history of Kentucky.

Suggestions for the best methods to be used in insuring the maximum attendance at Sunday School on that day, together with a program especially worked out so as to fit practically all Sunday schools, are being sent out by the state organization. In addition many of the counties are putting into effect plans that their organization had evolved for the purpose of making the campaign a success.

In Mason county the total Sunday School attendance for the day before is published each Monday. In this way a spirited competition between the different Sunday schools has been launched. In Webster county the taking of a religious census is well under way.

In Clark county those persons in charge of the work have secured speakers to visit every Sunday school in the county and carry the "Go-to-Sunday-School" message. The workers estimate that 5,000 persons will attend Sunday school in Clark county on May 7th.

Madisonville has a population of approximately 5,300. Recently there were 4,200 persons in attendance at Sunday school there and the goal for May 7 has been placed at 5,000.

"Go-to-Sunday-School" day observed first on May 3, 1914. At that time one million people were given a personal invitation to attend. Nearly half of that number accepted. The next year another try was made for an attendance of 1,000,000. This time the campaign was a success, many schools trebling their attendance.

This year, it is expected, the attendance will set a new high mark for the history of the institution.

The locals arrived so late at their destination that the play had to be limited to seven innings. The game was fast until 7th inning when both teams seemed to blow up. Each scored four runs in the last round. Chambers was on the hill for the Madison nine while Davis was working for the hosts. Chambers worked well but received poor support in all departments while Davis shared the same fate. Madison took the lead in the second round when they shoved one run across. Mt. Sterling soon took the lead. In 7th inning they were leading by a 3 to 2 score but Madison got busy in their half of the seventh and scored four runs, when Mt. Sterling's team cracked. This gave Chambers a three run lead. In the last half of the seventh the cracking began again but this time on the part of the Madison fielders. Mt. Sterling ran in four runs which won the game. The winning run came in by errors. Mt. Sterling will be in Richmond for a game soon.
