This is the fourth time the store has been robbed, and the second time within three weeks. A rail was taken from a tobacco barn nearby and used to break three windows open. DANVILLE GOLFERS ENJOYED VISIT HERE

Col. W. Vernon Richardson in his good paper, the Danville Advocate, tells what the Danville golf players thought of their visit to the Richmond golf club last week. It will be read with interest. He wrote:

Danville golf players were victorious over the Richmond players last Saturday afternoon. Seven players representing Danville Club drove over and played. They were Messrs. A. B. Massey, President of the Club, George A. McRoberts, E. H. Pearce, James Bean, Bowman Myers, W. V. Richardson and Dr. E. V. Moulton. The course at Richmond is much longer than the one at Danville and is a great deal harder to play for that reason. The greens are not quite in the best shape yet, but will be, as the spirit in that city is running high. This is their first year and they have one hundred and seventy-seven of the most enthusiastic members, who make for the success of the Club. The scores of the Danville players ranged from 44 to 58. Messrs. Bean and Myers making the best showing for the local team. The Richmond Club has just let a contract for a commodious club house and everything points to Richmond as being the golf center of Central Kentucky ere many months roll around. The caddies of Richmond Club are well trained and all are gentlemanly little fellows—they outdid themselves for the Danville visitors. President Elmer Deatherage of the Richmond Club was making the rounds of the course, visiting each section of the players and seeing that they were all made to feel at home. Mr. Deatherage is sheriff of Madison county and it is no wonder for he is one of the most clever gentlemen we have ever met. The club is indeed fortunate in having such a courteous official at the helm. Saturday of next week the Richmond players will play a return engagement in this city when the same uniform courtesy will be extended as was shown by the Danville players in Richmond. Attorney Jennings Greenleaf gave a delightful buffet, supper, in compliment to the Danville visitors, which in the absence of Mrs. Greenleaf, who is in New York, was presided over by Mesdames Warfield Bennett and H. B. Hanger. This was indeed most pleasant and was greatly enjoyed by all fortunate enough to have been present. After the delicious repast the party was invited to go out to the handsome Hanger home where further hospitalities were extended. The entire Danville contingent was urged to and did spend the evening, four with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Neale and three with Attorney Greenleaf. The hospitality was so genuine and generous that those who were there will long remember their stay in that splendid city.

MRS. DAVIS "FIRED" BY GEORGE COLVIN

Rockcastle School Superintendent Will Take Appeal to Courts From His Action

News comes from Frankfort that State Superintendent George Colvin Tuesday revoked the teacher's certificate of Mrs. Alice Davis, superintendent of Rockcastle county, who will immediately question his authority in court, it was announced by her attorneys, C. C. Williams, of Mt. Vernon, and John D. Carroll, of Frankfort.

They served notice on Superintendent Colvin at the beginning of the hearing, that Mrs. Davis denied his authority to revoke her certificate. She may institute proceedings for injunction in the Franklin circuit court, or, since the revocation destroys her qualifications for the office of county superintendent, the action may be the nature of a suit against her as county superintendent in the Rockcastle circuit court.

The specific charges brought against Mrs. Davis by Superintendent Colvin were that she permitted cheating in county teachers' examinations, and suffered the manuscripts handed in by applicants at the examinations to be changed; that she recommended Virginia Mullins for teacher in Jackson county when the certificate held by Miss Mullins was fraudulent, and wrote to the state superintendent stating that Virginia Mullins had passed an examination in 1919 and setting out the grades received by her; and that she had recommended Ronald Swineford, son of the vice chairman of the county board, to a position as teacher, and paid him his salary when he was under 18 years of age and had no certificate.

It transpired at the hearing that Irvine Bullock, accused in the affidavits of students at Eastern State Normal, Richmond, of taking June examination questions to the school, had been one of the county teachers' examinees under Mrs. Davis. Bullock back in Rockcastle county whence he disappeared for awhile after his arrest on a warrant from Madison county.

The Mullins certificate, Mrs. Davis admitted, was a palpable forgery. An affidavit from Mrs. May Virginia Mullins was in evidence, declaring that the certificate had been given her by Mrs. Davis. The latter denied this. She admitted friting the letters recommending Miss Mullins, and informing the State Superintendent that Miss Mullins had passed the 1919 examinations with the grades set forth in the letter. Miss Mullins in her affidavit stated that she did not take an examination in 1919.

Mrs. Davis said her record books show that Miss Mullins took an examination in 1919, but whether she passed she did not know. She said she was not sure she knew Miss Mullins. The grades were not entered until 1921, when she sent for teachers to bring in their certificates so she could make a record of them and the grades. The grades she gave to Miss Mullins probably were given in this way. She admitted that the certificates issued and the grades had not always been entered on the records until recently. "We've been careless in keeping our record books," she said, and explained the greater care being exercised now by the statement, "Because you have pinned us down to it."

Magoffin School Head

To Answer Charges

Frankfort, Ky., July 19—J. S. Adams, county superintendent of Magoffin county, has been cited to appear before George Colvin, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, at 10 o'clock Thursday morning to show cause why his certificate should not be revoked. The grounds, according to Mr. Colvin, are "fraudulent conducting examinations for teachers' certificates, neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming a superintendent."

According to Mr. Colvin he has confessions from two men, who said they acted as helpers at the teachers' examinations in May. These helpers, Mr. Colvin said, told him they were paid to assist certain applicants for teachers' certificates.

COATES TELLS NORMAL STUDENTS OF N. E. A.

Was Guest At Second Oldest Normal School in the U. S.—Others Make Chapel Talks

President T. J. Coates is lecturing this week during chapel hour to the students of Eastern Normal giving his observations and experiences at the National Educational Association which met several days ago in Boston. In his lecture on Tuesday morning he read a part of the speech which Secretary of State Hughes made asking the school heads to not allow school work to degenerate into something easy and attractive but to make it necessary that energy and effort must be spent so an education would be of real worth because nothing is of great value which is gotten without effort.

President Coates told of his visit to Hyannis, which is second oldest normal school in the United States. All state superintendents of the United States were entertained at this school by its president, Dr. Bradford, who has held this position for 40 years. At a dinner in the evening for the visiting superintendents, Mrs. Bradford presented a box containing two bayberry candles. Such candles were used by the Pilgrims to furnish light in the home. She requested that each person present should light these candles on Thanksgiving night of this year and think of all the others who were doing likewise. She made a beautiful speech of presentation in which she stated she believed in the unity of people and to all working together, and she desired this spirit especially in school work.

President Coates told of other interesting events and experiences which occurred on this trip.

Dr. R. L. Telford led the devotional and his niece, Miss McGloaghlin, of Virginia, sang a beautiful solo.

Miss Golda Johnson, supervisor of primary schools of Ashland, who is giving some special classes at the Normal school during the summer term in primary work, gave the principal address at the chapel exercises Wednesday morning.
