RAIL HEADS REJECT PRESIDENT'S PLAN

Declare All Principles of Justice Prevent Restoration of Seniority Rights

New York, Aug. 2—Railway executives Tuesday firmly but courteously rejected the program advanced by the Harding administration for settlement of the rail strike.

Willing to accept conditionally two suggestions put forward by the White House—that both sides abide by the wage decisions of the railroad labor board and that law suits springing out of the strike be withdrawn—the heads of 148 roads declared emphatically that it was impossible to reinstate strikers with unimpaired seniority rights, the third provision in the President's plan.

After being told by Robert S. Overt, of the Union Pacific, that there was no moral or practical reason for budging from their position, the executives disabanded, indicating that they are going ahead and would operate their roads with the forces they had assembled since the shopmen walked out July 1st.

The decision not to yield as to seniority was made known to the White House by telegraph after the rail heads had listened to a 20-minute address by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, who, as direct representative of the President, told them in effect that the administration held the seniority question of minor importance in comparison with that of upholding the labor board.

Warning From Harding Read

This action was taken in the face of a letter from President Harding addressed to T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the American Association of Railway Executives, embodying the "terms of agreement, as I understand them, on which the railway managers and united shop craft workers are to agree, preliminary to calling off the existing strike."

President Harding had closed his letter with these two sentences:

"I need hardly add that I have reason to believe these terms will be accepted by the workers. If there is good reason why the managers cannot accept, they will be obligated to open direct negotiations or assume full responsibility for the situation."

In addition, Secretary Hoover had urged on the executives at their morning session, when the text of the Harding letter was read, that settlement of the strike was imperative in view of the complicated conditions introduced by the coal strike.

It became apparent from the opening of Tuesday's conference that the seniority question would be the wedge which would divide administration and railway executives.

After setting forth reasons why they held this to be an unsurmountable obstacle, railroad chiefs ended their reply to President Harding as follows:

"It is submitted that the striking former employees cannot be given preference to employees at present in the service without doing violence to every principle of right and justice involved in this matter and without the grossest breach of faith on the part of the railroads to the men at present in their service. Under these circumstances, it becomes apparent that the railroads cannot consider any settlement of the present strike which does not provide protection in their present employment, both to the loyal employees who remained in the service and to the new employees entering it."

NOTHING NEW IN RENAKER MYSTERY

The Winchester Sun said: Detectives from the Cal Crim Detective Agency who were called into headquarters on Sunday afternoon, arrived in Winchester again on Monday night and began further investigations in the slaying of Leon Renaker which occurred Tuesday morning at an early hour at his home on Lexington avenue.

Additional evidence has been secured since Monday afternoon, but will not be made public by the officers and detectives. Every possible clue that has been given the officers is being sifted to the bottom and it is felt that by keeping the information which they have secured from the public that they will be able to secure more valuable information than they would were it spread broadcast.

The theory has been advanced by a number of residents that there is a well organized band of law-breakers who have representatives that are securing all data that is being secured by the local authorities and are turning it over to them which tends to keep the guilty party or parties posted as to just what procedure is being made from time to time. Winchester, as all residents fully realize, is not free from a law-breaking element that would not leave a stone unturned to protect a member of the band who had committed a crime and for this reason certain information which has been given out has been detrimental to the progress of the officials who are bending their every effort to see that the murderer is apprehended.

The detectives have some well founded clues that they are sifting to the very bottom and have information that it is thought will eventually lead to an arrest. Suspects are being shadowed in an effort to secure information that would clear up the mystery.

The proposals are understood to be the same as those which the railroad executives refused to accept in full at their meeting in New York Tuesday. Union leaders refused to speculate on the effect their action might have on peace prospects.

SLAYER SURRENDERS AFTER EIGHT YEARS

The Stanford Journal said Tuesday: Early Monday morning, Dudley Shelton, who some eight years ago, shot and killed Attorney J. Mort Rothwell, of Lancaster, at Crab Orchard, walked into County Clerk M. C. Newland's office and said to that gentleman that he was wanted and he was ready to give himself up. Mr. Newland informed him that he was not the proper person to surrender to, and went with him to the sheriff's office where officers took him in charge. He was immediately taken before Judge Sam J. Bell, who allowed him bail in $5,000, which he readily gave. A number of Rockcastle gentlemen, including Magistrate F. F. Robins, of Brodhead, accompanied Shelton to town and went on his bond. For a long time search was kept up for Shelton and it seemed as if the earth had swallowed him. He says he has spent a great deal of the time since he killed Mr. Rothwell in coal mines in North Carolina. He has recently lost his wife, he says, and that he felt that he could better take care of his motherless children if it were possible to get rid of the charge of murder pending against him. There are several versions of the killing, but Shelton says Rothwell struck his father a severe blow and was in the act of drawing his pistol when he fired to save his father's life. Shelton will appear before the November grand jury and probably be tried at that term of court, as he says he is anxious to prove the justification of his acts.

NO STRIKE AMONG STATE TEACHERS

Tho' Most of Them Will Have To Work Seven Months For Six Months' Salary

(By Associated Press)
Frankfort, Ky., August 2—The desire to obtain further knowledge, as evidenced by the hardships endured by many teachers of the state in attending the teachers' summer training schools which recently closed, has convinced Charles D. Lewis, state director of teacher training that Kentucky is on its way up the educational ladder.

During the summer 3,500 men and women were enrolled in the 69 white schools, and the negro schools had an enrollment of between 600 and 700. In addition there were close to 1,500 in private normal schools and as many more enrolled at the University of Kentucky and at the state normal schools, Mr. Lewis said.

The teachers didn't go to and from classes in automobiles, as is the custom with students at many universities. On the other hand some rode mules, others walked several miles daily and still others drove a horse and buggy over dirt roads in order that they might acquire knowledge to pass along to their pupils during the coming session.

In Fleming county, for instance, Mr. Lewis said that one woman daily packed and forth to school in a buggy, a distance of 14 miles each way. She also kept house, attended to her two children, washed and ironed and with the exception of four days that she was absent to take care of her household duties, did not miss a call.

In the same county was a man 61 years old who has been teaching for many years. He was adept at teaching the "three R's" by physical education with a new subject to him. However, he was undaunted after weeks of physical training had failed to equip him as well as he desired to be equipped for teaching the children to play games. So he requested permission to take two more weeks of physical training and for two additional weeks he played tag, ran relay races and the like with the younger teachers.

Each morning in Cumberland county a crippled man rode back over twelve miles of mountain road and returned over the same route after the last class in the afternoon. Another man in the same county walked 15 miles to town Monday morning and returned Friday evening, while a woman who had been teaching 40 years went the same distance on horseback Monday morning and returned home at the end of the week.

Mr. Lewis pointed out that as a result of the summer training schools approximately 7,000 teachers of Kentucky are better prepared to teach the boys and girls of the state during the coming winter.

George Colvin, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, commenting on the eagerness shown by teachers to acquire further knowledge, said many in the backward counties had come to him with tears in their eyes, admitted they had not been qualified in the past to teach and said they now wanted to do everything in their power to right the wrong they felt they had done.

The teachers' training schools, Mr. Lewis said, have been substituted for the old weekly institute, where no study was done. These schools mean hard work, the teachers reviewing the subjects they are to give instruction in and studying supplementary text books along with them. "Everything is focused on the problems of turning out better teachers," Mr. Lewis declared.

In close to 90 per cent of the Kentucky counties, Mr. Lewis is, the teachers during the coming session are going to teach seven months for the same annual salary they previously have taught six months—and they are not complaining. There is not going to be any strike, he said.

This condition was brought about by the General Assembly, which lengthened the school term but did not provide any means for raising additional taxes for school purposes. As a result, the poorer counties will not be able

GOLF RECORD SET AT 39 BY VISITOR

Clyde Darrough, of Hamilton, Ohio, who is the guest of L. B. Weisenburgh, made a record on the Richmond golf course that will cause local golfers to go some to beat it. He made the course in 39 Tuesday afternoon, which is the best that has been made on the local links during this season. He links that he will return to Richmond to make another visit just as soon as some one lowers his record. All expect that the links will be crowded both early and late with aspirants endeavoring to have the local record made by a local man.

MANY TEACHERS TAKE ELEMENTARY EXAMS.

Elementary examinations were held Friday and Saturday. Those who took these examinations at the court house at Richmond, under the direction of County Superintendent B. F. Edwards, were Miss Lucille Vandiver, Richmond; Miss Ethelene Wilson, Waco; and Mrs. Clara Yates, Brassfield. About 75 students at the Normal School took the same examinations. Annie Gentry and Elizabeth Thompson, colored, both of Richmond, took the examinations.

WORK ON NORMAL GYM TO BEGIN AT ONCE

The contract for the new gymnasium for the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School has been let to Lewis W. Hardin, local contractor. Bidding was very close with only a few dollars between this and bids made by two other local contractors. The work is to begin immediately. The contract calls for a substantial frame building 67.4 feet by 106.4 feet. There will be a twenty foot space for basketball. The floor will be of hard wood maple. The building is to be so constructed that it may be converted into an auditorium which will seat 1,100 people. This will be of great service during the terms when the enrollment is large, as the chapel seats only 600. This will be used on special occasions when the town's people are invited.

As this is to be a frame structure it is to be built back off the ball diamond near the Gibson line. This is to relieve the fire hazard.

Praise For Sam Reid

In a story on the Kitty League teams and their players, the other day, the Mayfield Times had the following mention of Sam Reid, son of June Reid, of Richmond: The Madisonville Miners the team that really looks like the pennant contender, is putting up a good battle and soon will be up among the elect. In Reid, the 17 year old kid pitcher, it looks like they have a find. Reid, Donovan and Holley can pitch good enough ball to keep any team in the race. Just now the Miners are without the services of firstbaseman Freshour who is a cripple.

BEER AND WINE CANDIDATE WINS

Republican Senatorial Nomination In Missouri—Results of Other Primary Races

(By Associated Press)
Chicago, Aug. 2—United States Senator James A. Reed, democrat, of Missouri, Claude Swanson democrat, of Virginia, and Howard Sutherland, republican, of West Virginia, today apparently had safe leads in the tabulation of ballots for their party nominations for United States Senator in the respective state primary.

In Missouri William Sacks, an oil man, running on a beer and wine platform, had overcome the lead of R. R. Brewster, republican organization candidate, for the republican nomination for United States Senator.

Contests for governor are in some doubt. In Oklahoma, J. C. Walton is leading H. Wilson for the democratic nomination. Walton is regarded as an anti-Ku Klux Klan candidate.

In Kansas W. Y. Morgan is leading former Governor Stubbs for the republican nomination.

Miss Alice Robertson is apparently the only successful woman in any primaries. She had a lead over her opponent in the Second Oklahoma district for Congress on the face of the returns. There were a number of upsets in Congressional races.

CRECELIOUS ENGINEER FOR LAREDO, TEX.

His many friends here were interested in news from Laredo, Texas, of the appointment of Col. S. F. Crecelius as paying engineer for that city. Col. Crecelius had charge of the laying of Richmond's splendid new paved streets, and made many warm friends and admirers while here. He saw to it that Richmond taxpayers got the worth of their money in every instance, and Richmond officials and people generally would recommend him and his work in the highest terms to the people of Laredo, if such a thing were necessary.
