HARDMAN HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Judge Shackelford Denies Freedom To Chief Accused In Renaker Murder Case

(By Associated Press)
Winchester, Sept. 25—Scoble Hardman, one of the central figures in the Leon Renaker murder case, was held in circuit court here today without bail for trial on December 12. Hardman seemed unaffected by the ruling which denied him freedom. Mrs. Renaker and Reese Fox, also indicted with him, are enjoying freedom under $5,000 bail each. The commonwealth resisted motion for bail on the theory that to grant it, Hardman must be presumed innocent. The court did not rule on that feature, merely denying the bail. Hardman was returned to jail.

GARRISON SEES TWO NEW PARTIES

(By Associated Press)
Denver, Sept. 25—Lindley M. Garrison, former secretary of war, in a statement here today, said the natural outcome of the difficulties of the two major parties in finding an issue upon which they can differ materially is likely to result in scrapping of the Republican and Democratic parties and the formation of a new political line-up of Conservatives and Radicals. He indicated the country has outgrown the constitution and said "The time for a change in our form of government is here."

"It is all his fault," said Manager Descamps. "It will be a good lesson to him. ## Scarcity of Vaccine Points; Children Not Vaccinated

Dayton, Ky., Sept. 25—A number of children in this city were admitted to the public school recently in spite of the fact that they had never been vaccinated, as required by the state law. (By Associated Press)
South Bend, Ind., Sept. 25—Harry Poulin, charged with being the father of Mrs. John Tiernan's third child, on the witness stand today denied he held clandestine meetings with her. His statement brought her to her feet with the exclamation "You are a liar." "Sit down," said Poulin. "You will hear more than that." She was restrained with difficulty as Poulin continued his denial. Mrs. Poulin collapsed.

DAVE BROWN MAY DIE ON TUESDAY

MANY STUDENTS ARRIVE SATURDAY

Meeting Of Eastern Faculty To Discuss Objectives Of School

More than 100 new students arrived in Richmond last Saturday at noon to enter the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School which begins enrollment for the fall semester Monday morning at 8 o'clock. Many more are expected on the evening trains Saturday and by Sunday the campus, which for five weeks has been a deserted green except for the workmen, will be alive with a note of excitement which always accompanies students who have left home and family to seek a new sphere of activity and development.

The standard of the institution is being raised all the time. Graduate students from the eight grades now are given a five year course before final graduation from Eastern. This includes high school and college training. Graduates from accredited high schools are given two years' work before graduation. Two years of regular college work are now offered at the Normal School and the other two years will be added in the near future.

The first faculty meeting for the year was called by President T. J. Coates Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This was for organization and discussion of the objectives before the school for the year and what is intended to be accomplished.

Enrollment began Monday at 8 o'clock and will not be completed until Wednesday morning at 9. The first chapel exercises will be held at 9:30 Wednesday morning when the President will welcome the students and introduce faculty members. Class work will begin Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

SWIFT PRODUCE REVIEW

Poultry receipts increased during the week with a little easier one at the close. A larger movement is noted in the country and with fuller arrivals in prospect the market tendency is toward lower levels.

Poultry packing plants generally have sufficient help to take care of a liberal volume of poultry. Even marketing is suggested in order to prevent a glut a few weeks hence.

Due to lighter receipts and continued demand from the consuming trade, prices for butter and butterfat have advanced. The higher tariff duties now in effect probably will prevent the importation of much foreign butter in the near future.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in its report of September 19, shows the following comparative stocks of butter of September 1, 1922:

1922	112,062,000 lbs.
1921	92,770,000 lbs.
Excess	19,292,000 lbs.

Extra fall and winter feeding will keep up the milk flow and bring increased returns.

A good demand for fresh eggs was noted in all markets, with prices generally ruling higher for fine stock. Eggs that have been held are not wanted and do not command top prices.

Best results are obtained by collecting eggs promptly and marketing frequently each week. Produce Review. Prepared by Swift & Co., U. S. Yards, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Sapiro has already written to outstanding leaders of the various co-operatives with a view to the formation of a committee to have charge of the details of the convention, in which leaders of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association will undoubtedly play a prominent part as representatives of one of the most successful of all the American co-operatives the first year of its existence.

According to the information reaching President Stone, Senator Capper suggested the calling of this national conference of co-operatives for the purpose of bringing to the attention of Congress their joint recommendation for forthcoming rural credits legislation to provide government aid for financing the orderly marketing of the various farm products controlled by those associations. Senator Capper's letter was addressed to Mr. Sapiro because of the fact that he is the legal adviser of the large majority of the co-operative associations in the country and the outstanding international authority on cooperative marketing.

Mr. Sapiro's proposal to have the conference details in the details of a committee of leaders of co-operative marketing organizations was said to be acceptable to Senator Capper.

Senator Capper, according to the information reaching President Stone, has declared that the co-operative marketing associations, as purely business organizations of farmers for the purpose of merchandising farm products in an orderly manner, should be heard in the matter of proposed government credit agencies and that the best way to get the consensus of opinion of the farmers is in such a conference as the Kansas Senator has proposed.

Senator Capper, who is a prominent leader of the so-called "farm bloc" in the Senate and the proprietor of a string of successful agricultural publications, expresses the belief that the conference not only will result in a useful viewpoint regarding credit legislation, but that it will give the American co-operatives an opportunity to discuss their many common business problems.

Senator Capper's letter to Mr. Sapiro was as follows:

"Dear Mr. Sapiro: As you know, myself and others of the farm bloc in Congress are engaged in the consideration of important legislation on the subject of agricultural credits. The real importance of this can be appreciated when it is remembered that most financial methods and measures for government aid of the farm, at present in operation, are of a temporary character.

The next agricultural credits bill passed by Congress should be and doubtless will be a permanent one.

FARMERS TO HOLD NATIONAL MEET

Representatives Of All Co-operative Bodies To Gather and Discuss Their Problems

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 25—President and General Manager James C. Stone, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, received word last night that, on the suggestion of Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, made to Aaron Sapiro, general counsel for most of the co-operative marketing associations in the United States, a national gathering of farmers interested in the cooperative movement will be held in Washington in the near future, probably following the national conference of leaders of tobacco co-operatives, which is to be held in Kentucky this fall, plans for which have been made by Judge Robert W. Bingham, founder of the Burley association, Mr. Stone and Mr. Sapiro.

The proposed convention at Washington will include representatives of all the co-operative associations in the country—the tobacco growers, the cotton producers, the California co-operatives, including fruits, raisins, nuts and prunes and other products; the wheat growers associations; the cotton and bean growers—in fact every form of cooperative marketing association in existence in the United States will be represented.

Mr. Sapiro has already written to outstanding leaders of the various co-operatives with a view to the formation of a committee to have charge of the details of the convention, in which leaders of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association will undoubtedly play a prominent part as representatives of one of the most successful of all the American co-operatives the first year of its existence.
