MEXICAN WAR VETERANS.

The gathering of the Mexican veterans in our city has been a source of much pleasure to these old-time warriors. Now, that the shades of evening are drawing close around them and their steps are growing heavy and slow, we delight in seeing them unite at intervals to converse together of the days of long ago. It is a time of peculiar interest, now that so many of their sons and grandsons have rallied around the flag and are far from the land of their sires fighting for its honor. Noble-looking old men these are, and the heroes of many battles, for many of them were not content to have been in the smoke and conflict during the '40s, but afterward fought, each as seemed right to him, during the Civil War. They can now rejoice that we are at peace once more, and that we may reasonably look for the return of our boys and their fathers to the quiet of their homes and the pursuits of industry. Long may such unions and reunions flourish!

SOLDIERS' BAD TREATMENT.

There has been a most determined effort on the part of a number of administration papers to shield the incompetency and carelessness that have existed in connection with the hospital staff of the army. But the increased number of soldiers who have been stricken down and the protests made in all quarters have convinced the people that the War Department has been guilty of the grossest carelessness. Commenting on the matter the New York Telegraph refers to an appointment made from that city as follows: "Is President McKinley's oft asserted sympathy for the common soldiers a bluff and a dream, or did somebody mix the appointments in the veterinary department of the cavalry corps and the bureau so ably mismanaged by Gen. Sternberg and his scientific associates? This question is pertinent by reason of the discovery that Dr. Huidekoper, one of the surgeons in charge of the field hospitals at Porto Rico, is a New York doctor of dogs and horses, with an occasional lapse into the rebuilding of the wrecked constitutions of decayed and infirm mules. In his particular branch of medical science there is no doubt but Dr. Huidekoper is a wise and successful practitioner. He could cause a selling plater to return to his better self as soon as the next man. In the hyperbole of the day, he might even be stigmatized as a bird. But after all, a man who can cure the mange in a puppy, or can intelligently prescribe the botts in a Hambletonian, is not necessarily equipped properly to grapple with the deadly dengue fever and other diseases that make life in the tropics a problem. Yet Dr. Huidekoper is the physician in charge of the hospitals wherein many hundreds of our heroes abroad are waging battle with zymotic maladies and commissary food. The two combined are fatal as a rule, and it is not understood that Dr. Huidekoper, the horse doctor, has reduced the average of deaths. The most careful inquiry has resulted in ascertaining that his chief recommendation for his position was that he had cured Mrs. McKinley's dog of certain ills to which dog flesh is heir."

He is now in Porto Rico in charge of the hospital service for the First Army Corps, which places the Louisville Legion at his mercy. He has had no practice on human beings, but is a strong advocate of horse flesh for food. We believe in upholding the authorities in all that is possible, but not to protest against appointments like the above would be criminal. A few such quacks would result in the destruction of our entire army.

ABOUT BRYAN.

The Boston Republic exhibited the proper spirit in its refutation of the sneers that some of the stay-at-home journalists have been hurling at William Jennings Bryan. From a recent issue we clip the following: "Mr. Bryan went into the volunteer army just as other patriotic citizens went in, from a sense of duty. He went in to fight his country's battles, not to do garrison duty. He did not intend to follow the profession. He responded to an emergency call. The emergency has passed. The war is over. Mr. Bryan, who has obligations and duties in civil life, should be at once relieved from further military service and sent home. An administration with any sense of decency would do this without waiting for the suggestion made. Col. Bryan was two years ago the Democratic candidate for President of the United States. Over 6,500,000 free American citizens cast their votes for him. He is one of the most conspicuous of the party leaders today. In that capacity he is under obligations to the people for political advice and guidance. He has positive responsibilities in this relation which he can not escape or put aside. To compel his further service in the army and thus prevent him from taking any part in the campaign is, to say the least, a cowardly piece of political trickery of which no self-respecting man would be guilty." The people appreciate the patriotism of Mr. Bryan, and the vaporings of those who see neither honor or glory in promptly responding to the call of one's country only make his position the firmer in the hearts of his countrymen.

PARNELL'S MEMORY.

The arrangements made by the Organizing Committee in connection with the approaching Parnell anniversary have by this time made most rapid progress, and we may anticipate that the demonstration to commemorate Ireland's great leader will be in every respect worthy of the occasion, says the Dublin Independent. As the years go by the heart of Ireland clings more devotedly to the memory of Parnell. It will never be forgotten that to his colossal energy and genius was due the advance made by the Home Rule cause, which would by this time have been crowned with victory but for the treachery of those who abandoned him in the hour of trial. Therefore the anniversary of this year will, no doubt, compare favorably, both in numbers and in its thoroughly representative character, with any of its predecessors. The co-operation of the various Irish railway companies has been secured, and it has been arranged to run a special train from Belfast on October 6. In connection with the anniversary it will interest Parnellites generally to learn that Mr. John E. Redmond has consented to deliver a lecture at the Antient Concert Rooms on the evening of Ivy Day, October 6, on the subject of "Irish Popular Leaders from Swift to Parnell." The proceeds of the lecture will be devoted toward the funds of the committee. The Lord Mayor will preside, and we anticipate a very large attendance. The name of Parnell has a magic power in Ireland. His wonderful life, his tragic death, moved the country to its depths. Let this year's anniversary demonstration show, by its dimensions and its enthusiasm, the world that his memory lives fresh and green.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

The great interest and friendly feeling existing in Ireland with regard to the race for the American Cup is indicated by the following, published in a recent issue of the Irish Weekly Independent: "Ireland has challenged America, and Uncle Sam must defend the American Cup. Sir Thomas Lipton will build the Shamrock on the newest lines. She will be manned by Irishmen, and is nominated by an Irish club. If she should 'pull off' two out of the three events which comprise the struggle for the greatest sailing trophy in the world, Old Ireland will have reason to throw up the cap with a wild hurroo. England has failed lamentably to bring back the trophy, and Lord Dunraven's burst of temper at the last contest, and his subsequent ill-judged conduct, left relations more than strained between British and American yachtsmen. This coming battle of the boats will be the friendliest fight ever fought out in Yankee waters. If we are beaten, we go down before better craftsmen and better sailors; if we win, we will rejoice in our luck. Sir Thomas Lipton is one of the few men of a certain class who did not become beautifully British when he entered a London drawing-room and put a handle to his name. The majority of his order would call his boat the St. George, run up the burgee of some swell British club, and would throw down the glove to America in the name of Merrie England."

It is generally conceded that President McKinley will act in a common-sense manner with regard to the Philippine Islands. It is an open secret that he has given instructions to the United States Commissioners not to demand the control of the whole of the Philippines. The expense of an immense standing army, the effort to control a half-civilized people who know nothing of our methods of government, and who have to be held down by the strong arm of the military, and the complications that would inevitably arise with foreign powers, all make the annexation of the Philippines undesirable. A suitable coaling station is all that is deemed best to keep. In spite of the jingoes President McKinley does not wish to break away entirely from the early traditions of our republic, viz.: to confine ourselves to the Western hemisphere and let European and Asiatic affairs strictly alone.

Ireland has an Irish tourist association and a tourist office. The latter is crowded daily. Killynery and the Giant's Causway are the favorites with Londoners; but the London tourist seems to book for all parts of the Green Isle.

Persons sending communications or news matter to the Kentucky Irish American should do so as early in the week as possible. We can not guarantee the publication of articles reaching the office Thursday night and Friday morning.

John Sherman says: "The treatment of our soldiers was harsh and cruel, and caused by gross neglect and delay of officers of the War Department." Mr. Sherman should have said "of promoters of Anglo-Americans."

During the past week we have added greatly to our subscription list. Those wishing back numbers must call at the office this week, as the demand has been very great and there are but few left.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis has the sympathy of the entire country in the death of her accomplished daughter.

We are located at 326 West Green Street, between Third and Fourth. Call and see us.

Miss Maggie O'Connor has returned from a very pleasant visit to Chicago.

Prof. and Mrs. Dowd were guests of honor at the Young Men's social Tuesday evening.

Misses Katie and Mary Wathen, of this city, are in Owensboro, the guests of Miss Jessie Powers.

Mrs. Bernard J. Campbell is in St. Louis, the guest of her brother, Mr. Arthur Kelsey.

Miss Moriarty, who has been spending the summer with friends, is at home at 1042 Fourth street.

Miss Josie Scannell, of Pope street, has returned home after a pleasant visit with friends in Long Run.

Miss Julia Sheehan, of Bloomfield, is the guest of her cousin, Miss Mamie Hayden, of 1226 Nineteenth street.

Mrs. W. L. Doolan has been spending the week with the family of her father-in-law, Prof. T. J. Doolan, near Shelbyville.

The next social of the Young Men's Division is anticipated with pleasure by a large number of readers of this column.

Misses Nell Sexton and Carrie Higgins, of Crescent Hill, left Tuesday for Cincinnati, where they will spend a week with friends.

Mrs. M. Finnegan and daughter Anna, who have been visiting friends in Nashville for the past two weeks, are expected home Sunday.

Mr. David Murphy, of Twentieth street, who has been seriously ill for the past two weeks, has sufficiently recovered to resume his position.

Rev. Father Woerner, formerly of St. Meinard's College in Indiana, has been appointed assistant to Very Rev. L. Bax, of St. John's church.

Mrs. Ed Carr returned Tuesday morning to her home in Middletown, O., after a three-weeks' visit to her mother, Mrs. Murphy, in Parkland.

James McDonough, the popular exponent of the Dominican church, who went to Washington to study law, writes that he is very well pleased with his success so far.

Miss Carrie Sealy, of West Market street, returned home Thursday from a two-weeks' visit to New York City, where she was the guest of her cousin, Rev. Father Mulloy.

Funeral services were conducted last Sunday morning over the remains of the late Patrick Keenan, at St. Patrick's church, and the interment was in St. John's cemetery.

Mr. Frank O'Connor, son of Mr. James O'Connor, left Monday for Baltimore, where he will attend the Jesuit College during the next few years. He is a very bright young man.

Unity Council, No. 114, will give its initial dance of the season Friday evening, October 24, at the new Liederkranz Hall, Sixth and Walnut. These dances will be very popular.

Miss Margaret Kennedy, one of the most popular of Elizabethtown's bright young ladies, is in the city, to spend a week with the family of Judge Poston, 118 West Kentucky street.

Mr. James Campbell, of West Green street, who has been confined to his home by illness for the past two months, is now pronounced on the road to recovery, and his friends hope to see him out next week.

Unity Council, Y. M. I., began its winter series of eueches Thursday evening at its club-house, 1327 West Chestnut street. They will take place every alternate Thursday, and have heretofore been very enjoyable.

The many devoted friends and admirers of Rev. P. M. J. Rock, who has been sojourning in the mountains of Virginia for several weeks, were delighted to see him back again last Sunday at the Cathedral.

Rev. J. McSherry paid a short visit to the city a few days ago. He has a host of friends and all who met him were delighted to see him again. He will shortly be back from the country whether he has gone for a rest.

Mrs. David Heffernan, of 304 East Jefferson street, has returned home after an extended visit to relatives at Shelbyville, Frankfort and Forks of Elkhorn. She was accompanied home by Miss Nelly O'Donnell, of Shelbyville.

There arrived at the home of Mr. John P. Lynch, of the No. 2 Engine Company, a most promising little fireman, weighing twelve pounds. The mother and child are doing well and the happy father busy receiving congratulations.

The theatrical talent of the Young Men's Division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians is being gathered together preparatory to rehearsals. Among those already preparing are Misses Katie Boden, Ada Childress, Alice Sheekey, Ruth Carter, Bee Mullarkey, and Messrs. J. J. Lannon, James Concannon, L. J. Mackey,

James Cooney, D. J. Kennedy, E. P. Holley, C. J. Dittoe, Joseph E. Hill and Frank G. Cunningham. It is probable that the first play they will present will be the pretty one entitled "Shamrock and Rose."

Miss May Florence Clifford and Mr. Hugh I. Merwin will be united in marriage October 26 at the home of the bride's father, Mr. J. G. Clifford. Mr. Merwin is the secretary of the O'Neil Coal and Coke Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Keiran will leave today for Memphis, where Mrs. Keiran will spend the winter with her son, J. P. Keiran. Mr. Keiran makes the visit in response to a telegram informing him that he is now a grandfather.

The many friends of Miss Mary Brennan, of West Oak street, who has been seriously ill of typhoid fever, will be pleased to learn that she is pronounced out of danger, and her friends expect her to be able to be out in two weeks.

Miss Bee Mullarkey, who is the possessor of a delightfully sweet voice, rendered several vocal selections for the entertainment of the ladies and gentlemen present at the social of the Young Men's Division Tuesday evening.

Miss Mamie Brown, of 1502 Seventh street, one of Limerick's handsomest young ladies, has returned from a pleasant visit, lasting four weeks, with Mrs. Cooper, at Taylorsville, where she was the recipient of marked social attention.

Mr. Peter Walsh, the well-known tailor, has entirely recovered from his late eye troubles, and is now prepared to receive his friends and patrons at 324 Seventh street. This will be gratifying news to the large circle of acquaintances of Mr. Walsh.

The many friends of Pat O'Loughlin will be glad to hear that he is able to be out and walk around. Owing to an injury to his foot in an accident, he has been confined to the house for some time. Pat has a great many friends, who have missed his smiling face from the crowd for some time.

Mr. Will Pike, a popular employe of the L. & N., and Miss Mary Sullivan, one of the handsomest young ladies of South Louisville, were united in marriage Wednesday evening, Rev. Father Logan, of the Dominican church, performing the ceremony. The happy couple will go to housekeeping in South Louisville.

The reception and social of the Young Men's Division at Ancient Order of Hibernians Hall Tuesday evening was largely attended and proved a most enjoyable affair. These parties will continue throughout the winter and promise to be very popular, as admission is by invitation only, and they should be the means of greatly increasing the membership of the division.

Last week Mr. John Maloney was tendered a reception by the Hub Social Club, of which he is a member, in honor of his return from Leavenworth, Kas. A feature of the evening was a cake walk, in which Mr. John Malone and Miss Nell Flaherty were the victors, winning the first prize. Mr. James Collins and Mrs. Killen entertained the members and guests with their Irish reel and jig dancing and made the hit of the evening.

Miss Katie Ryan left last Sunday for a week's visit to friends and relatives in Hardin county. She had been chosen bridesmaid at the wedding of her cousin, Miss Maggie French, one of Hardin county's popular and esteemed young society girls, which occurred Tuesday. After the week's visit she will be accompanied home by her brother, private William J. Ryan, of Company B, Seventh United States infantry, who is now on a thirty-days' furlough.

The Young Men's Division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians gave its first social of the fall season Tuesday evening at A. O. H. Hall. A large number of ladies and gentlemen were present, and fun and merriment ran riot among the merry dancers until a late hour. Messrs. D. J. Tierney, George Daniel and D. J. Kennedy, who had the affair in charge, certainly deserve credit for the great success achieved and the pleasure afforded the invited guests.

Mrs. Malinda McCloskey, aged sixty-three years, a lady beloved by a large number of friends and acquaintances, died Sunday morning at her home, 442 East Main street, of Bright's disease. Mrs. McCloskey had been confined to her bed for some time past, and her death was not unexpected. She was the mother of Patrolman John McCloskey. The funeral took place Tuesday morning from St. Michael's church. The remains were interred in St. Louis cemetery.

Miss Mary F. Cunningham, of 1025 West Broadway, and Mr. Frank Sieveking, of New Albany, will be married Wednesday evening. This announcement will be of interest to many in both cities. Miss Cunningham is a handsome young lady of attractive qualities and Mr. Sieveking is to be congratulated. He is a son of Mr. Louis Sieveking, the grocer at 1516 East Market street, New Albany. The nuptials will be celebrated in the parlor of St. Charles Borromeo's church, the Rev. Father Raffo officiating. After a trip to Cincinnati the young couple will begin housekeeping over the river.

Mr. Michael Gannon, well known and popular in Jeffersonville, and Miss Kate Ryan, a very highly respected young lady of the same city, were united in marriage by Rev. Father Andrau Tuesday morning. The ceremony was witnessed by a vast concourse of well wishers. Miss Ryan is the handsome daughter of Mr. James Ryan, of the Government depot, while Mr. Gannon is a trusted employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. They immediately proceeded to house-keeping on High avenue, Jeffersonville. Tuesday evening a large party of friends from Louisville, accompanied by a band of music, called and tendered their congratulations to the happy couple, as did also a great number of people of Jeffersonville.

OBSERVATIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

We women must be the dispensers of kind words. If kindness be not among daughters and mothers, where in the world will it find a home?

The London Life claims to have information that Emile Zola has become a convert to Catholicism through the aid of Father Gougon, pastor of a small parish church and an intimate friend of Zola. It is also authority for the statement that he will become a priest six months hence.

There is a little society that meets weekly in the library of St. Francis' Hall, known as the Truth Society. The members are anxious to have their number increased and will gladly add to their list the names of all who are seeking for the truth. A better hour could not be spent by our young men and women either during the week or on Sunday evenings than in St. Francis' Hall. It is open all afternoons till 10 p. m., and a better selection of books, magazines and journals can not be found. If the young ladies will have their gentlemen friends to take them there they will see for themselves how enjoyable an evening can be spent in this hall. All are welcome.

A touching story is told of the late Gen. Alpheus Baker, who was at one time a leading light of the Louisville bar. During the war Gen. Baker was a prisoner on Johnson's Island, on Lake Erie. A Confederate soldier was dying and as his last request was to see the Confederate flag, the Federal commander, a humane man, granted the poor fellow's request; whereupon Gen. Baker, who also was a prisoner, composed a poem in Latin, noted for its elegance and diction, of which the following is an extract:

Ave, bis ave, gloria crux!
Nostri nationis lucida lux
Quoties miles fortis,
In articulo mortis,
Salutat te numen.

The late Empress of Austria, so cruelly cut down by the hand of an assassin, was buried with the most imposing obsequies in the Imperial mausoleum of the Church of the Capuchins, Vienna. During the days and nights of mourning the lighted street-lamps were covered with crape. A grand cortege of Kings, titled men and women, and priests attired in their gorgeous canonicals, formed an imposing spectacle. Several companies of the foot guards, a squadron of horse guards, followed by a detachment of yeomen, all splendidly uniformed, preceded the colossal funeral car. After the last benediction had been pronounced in the vaults, the High Chamberlain handed the key of the vault to the Capuchin who is the guardian of the Imperial mausoleum.

The people of this country have fallen into the English habit of condemning the Latin races. "Spanish treachery" and "French deceit" have become hackneyed, where the English are held up as exemplars of fairness and progress. Any student of history knows that perfidy is characteristic of English diplomacy, especially in its treatment of weaker nations. Witness the perfidious means adopted by English statesmen to abolish home rule in Ireland at the beginning of this century. India, too, under her destructive rule, has periodic famines and is compelled to ask the world for aid. Disease and starvation run riot in that unhappy country and want and misery lurk near every threshold. The press by systematic lying and misrepresentation has maliciously and knowingly poisoned the American mind, especially against the Spanish race. One of the big dailies starts a lie and all the rest will rush to aid its circulation. But after the lie has been exposed they are not in such haste to print a retraction. The stage does not stand alone in its want of a censor.

Why is so much attention paid to pugilism by our second crop Irish people? It is singular and lamentable to see the number of Irish names among prize fighters. I fail to realize where the glory comes in of being able to pummel somebody just for the fun of it. As among the canine species, there have to be bulldogs, so among the human kind there are men who love to tear and destroy others. It is not complimentary to our national pride to have a monopoly of this brutality. It is essentially an English pastime.

Ireland has always been considered a nation of scholars. Why her children's children do not strive to excel in learned professions one can not understand. City politics, contracting and saloon-keeping seems to be the ultima thule of their ambition. While Reuben Haysced, from Bitter Creek, comes to town to take up the study of medicine or law, Pat Murphy or Tim Hoolihan is training to fight "Kid" Hennessy or some other thug to a finish for the gate receipts. The aptness and adaptability of the Irish character, if only turned into higher channels, would place on the scroll of honor all these names which now are synonymous with pugilism and other forms of ruffianism.

Intellect is superior to brute force and always dominates. There is room among the learned professions for Pat Murphy as well as for Reuben Glue, and our young men will not command respect till they have earned it. There is no use telling our young folks that they are the grandest people under the sun when they are not taking advantage of their chances.

MRS. A. NRVIN CUNNINGHAM.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

Brother Roger W. McDonough, of Division No. 3, is still suffering from a serious illness.

D. J. Tierney fills the position of music director with the ease and ability of a past master.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians will shortly take up the question of the observance of St. Patrick's day.

With each succeeding meeting it becomes more and more apparent that Division 6 is the one which the young men should join.

Patrick Sullivan was elected Financial Secretary of No. 3 to fill an unexpired term. The division is fortunate in securing his services.

A meeting of the State convention of Daughters of Erin will be held at New Haven, Conn., September 27. This is the second annual convention.

Division No. 1, of Jeffersonville, will hold its next meeting on the first Thursday in October. Representatives from Louisville are expected to be present.

President L. J. Mackey makes it pleasant for those who are so fortunate as to be invited to the socials of his division. His smile and manner are irresistible.

The A. O. H. of St. Louis are making arrangements for an enjoyable smoker on the evening of October 14. The matter is in the hands of a capable committee.

Patrick O'Neill, State President of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Pennsylvania, has appointed John P. Gibbons State Secretary of the A. O. H. to succeed Gilbert Curry, deceased.

Now is the time for Young Irish Americans to join the Young Men's Division. The amusement this division affords its members greatly exceeds the amount of dues paid, which are very small.

George Killcourse, Will Duane, Will Holley, Frank Cunningham and Thomas McCrory, all young railway promoters and prospective magnates, are always conspicuous at the socials of the Young Men's Division.

The next meeting of the County Board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will take place on the evening of Monday, October 10. The matter of the silver jubilee celebration will come up for consideration.

The Daughters of Erin, of St. Louis, held an open meeting in Father Mathew Hall, St. Louis, Tuesday evening. An interesting programme had been arranged for the occasion and there was a large attendance of Hibernians and others.

The financial and social success of the picnic recently given by the members of Division 8, of Chicago, has been so encouraging to those tireless workers that they are now planning for an indoor festival of a similar nature, to be held on Thanksgiving Eve.

John J. Barrett last week purchased five books, printed from Gaelic type and has now mastered the Irish language. This is a most remarkable feat, but will be appreciated when it is learned that he may shortly form a class for the study of Gaelic.

The members of the Young Men's Division ball team are not discomfited by their recent defeat at the hands of Mackin Council. They have issued a challenge to the other divisions for a game for the championship of the order. Acceptance seems addressed to Frank G. Cunningham.

The first State convention of the Daughters of Erin, an auxiliary organization to the Ancient Order of Hibernians, was held at Topeka, Kan., September 4. A number of delegates from Kansas towns in which there are branches of the order were present. Mayor Fellows delivered the address of welcome at the convention.

Mr. Patrick Higgins was presented with a beautiful gold badge at the meeting of Division No. 3 Wednesday evening, as a reward for his good work in behalf of the order. The presentation was made by Brother James Coleman, State Secretary, and the recipient made an appropriate response. It is a jewel worthily bestowed.

The monthly meeting of Division 5, of St. Louis, was largely attended, and to a stranger it looked as though it was a reunion of the Chickamauga heroes, as a large number of them were present wearing their uniforms. Sergt. O'Keefe, Corp. Gleason and Private William Connors told some funny stories about camp life at Chickamauga. A committee was appointed to arrange for an open meeting and a large increase in the membership.

A meeting of delegates from the various branches of A. O. H. societies was held last week in the Henry Grattan Club's room for the purpose of arranging for the picnic and games to be held September 24. The Executive Committee rendered a very encouraging report. Some of the best athletes in the State will be present and participate in the various contests. Michael Sweeney, the champion high jumper of the world, will give an exhibition.

The Committee of Arrangements having in charge the recent Labor Day celebration have settled all the expenses incurred in connection therewith and informed our reporter that the receipts from the picnic at Phoenix Hill were sufficient to meet them. This will avoid the necessity of levying a pro rata tax upon any of the unions represented in the central body and reflects credit upon the committee and the manner in which it conducted all matters connected with the celebration, the expense account of which has heretofore been very heavy.

The more trust a good woman puts in a man the more she will generally find in him to trust.

COME OUT EVEN.
