IMPOSING

Will Be Tonight's Demonstration by the Civic Liberty League.

Monster Street Parade Will Attract Thousands to Coliseum.

Able Orators Will Express Their Views on Subject of Prohibition.

ALL STAND FOR TEMPERANCE

All lovers of personal liberty ought to show their manhood tonight by marching with the Civic Liberty League to hear the addresses made by former Gov. George Peck, of Wisconsin, and Rabbi Samuel Sales, of St. Louis. It will be one grand parade south on Fourth street, but there will be a series of parades of the minor divisions before the army of Civic Leaguers unite at the Court-house. One division will assemble at Market Hall, Shelby and Market streets; another at Zoeller's Hall, Shelby and Roselane streets; a third division at Turner Hall, Jefferson, near Preston street; a fourth at Beck's Hall, Jefferson street, near Second. In the West End another division will assemble at the Men's Hall, Thirteenth and Market streets, while those in the center of the city will assemble at the Court House. It has been planned to have all the divisions unite at the Court House, so the parade will move promptly at 7:30 o'clock. The route will be east on Jefferson to Fourth and south on Fourth to the Coliseum. Sebastian Weisbach will be the Grand Marshal, and will be assisted by at least forty aides.

The object of the parade and the addresses is to demonstrate that a majority of Louisville's citizens are opposed to prohibition; that advocating temperance, they oppose the interference of any legislation that would deprive a man of the right to buy a drink if he wants it. Both Rabbi Sales, one of the leading Hebrew divines of St. Louis, and Gov. Peck are thoroughly posted on the subject. They are students of men and affairs, and have given time and money as well as thought in the prosecution of their sociological researches. Gov. Peck has recently made an inspection tour through Georgia, Oklahoma and other States in the South and Northwest where prohibition is new. He also visited Maine and can tell that prohibition does not prohibit. Rabbi Sales will tell of his travels and investigations along similar lines.

The Louisville Civic Liberty League was founded in opposition to the spirit of fanaticism shown by the members of the Louisville Ministerial Association in the Anti-Saloon League. These men have become intemperate on the subject of temperance. They believe in legislating men into surreptitious methods of buying beer, wine or whisky, instead of showing by word and example that temperance in all things is a virtue. The ministers and the Anti-Saloon Leaguers have no more right to secure the enactment of laws to prevent a man from buying a drink than the saloon men would have to force a law to compel a preacher to visit saloons three times a day.

Michael Ryan, President of the Personal Liberty League, of Cincinnati, hit the nail on the head when he said last week: "It has been announced by the Ministers' Association of this city that Sunday the pulpits of many churches in Cincinnati will be occupied by ministers who will speak on 'Personal Liberty.' These addresses on 'Personal Liberty' will be for the purpose of explaining the ministers' idea of this topic. An appeal was made also by the ministers to vote for Governor Harris.

"As is well known, all church property is exempt from taxation. This is primarily because they are edifices for the worship of God, and are supposed to be non-political and nongovernmental in their use. When the ministers of the gospel, preaching from tax-exempt property, convert these houses of worship into political rostrums for the purpose of influencing voters for the particular candidate at this time, they are doing because he is subservient to their wishes and desires. The question naturally presents itself, Are such churches and church property worthy of remaining any longer exempt from taxation?"

"A minister's views of personal liberty and political questions is quite likely to be at variance with the opinions of the great mass of the people, and usually are founded on facts that only present one side of the question. The function of the church is entirely separate and apart from the function of the Government, and it was not designed by the founders of our Government that the church should ever be injected into or control our politics. When ministers depart from their churchly views and tenets and become political panders, they usually alienate from their support thousands of liberal minded people. In my humble opinion the dearth of church attendance complained of all over the country is caused mainly by the departure of ministers from the true function of their vocation."

What Gen. Ryan says of the Ministerial Association of Cincinnati will apply equally well in Louisville and in Kentucky. Politics and religion will not mix. Even Collier's weekly, an anti-liquor paper, under date of October 17, published a letter from a resident of Okolona, Miss., now a prohibition town. The writer is an intelligent business man and writes interestingly of conditions in his town. He tells that there are very few total abstinence men in the town. The drinking men have to send 12 miles for their whisky, and the agent of the express company who receives it is paid a liberal commission from the liquor houses. This man pleads for three saloons well conducted and under high license. He writes: "We who have boys growing up (and I have two of them whom I hope to raise total abstainers) dread the influence of the brilliant lighted music and laughter-filled saloons, even though they as minors are not allowed in them. On the other hand why can't we so raise these boys to have will power enough to resist all these temptations. It seems to me that the weakness is not in the continuity of the saloon temptation, but in the slackness of perpetual education in the home."

POLICE MYSTIFIED

Who Stole Officer's Wheel From Door of a Saloon?

Officer McQuiddy, a bicycle patrolman assigned to the Sixth police district, mourns the loss of his bicycle. Hitherto it has not been reported to the press. The officer left his bicycle in front of a saloon and when he returned the bicycle was gone. It has not been learned whether Mr. McQuiddy entered the saloon or whether he took a drink in the saloon after he entered, but it is known that someone took the bicycle. Another policeman, also hailing from the Sixth Police district, had his pocket picked last week and was bereft of $15. The Board of Safety ought to afford some protection to the police. A detective might be assigned to guard each man's bicycle or horse when he stops near a saloon.

Speaking of saloons and the police, one man was dismissed from the force this week because he entered a saloon. On the other hand the police are instructed to enter all the saloons and cafes that they can find open on Sundays. In a word, they are condemned for doing things on week days what they are ordered to do on Sundays.

The Entertainment Committee announced that it had planned to give a mammoth euchre at Phoenix Hill Park in the near future. The forthcoming bazaar came in for a series of reports from various sub-committees, and the President announced that the entries of contestants for the Haines piano, to be awarded the most popular lady, would close Monday night.

KENTUCKY

Will Help Boston to Celebrate Her Episcopal Centenary Next Week.

Dominican Nuns From This Diocese Teach in New England.

Holy Name Societies Will Have Grand Parade Through Streets.

MANY DIGNITARIES WILL ASSIST

For a whole week, beginning tomorrow and closing next Sunday, the once Puritan but now Catholic Boston will celebrate the centennial anniversary of her elevation as a diocese. Each day will have its separate functions, and many Archbishops and Bishops will assist in the celebration. Monsignor Falconio and Cardinal Gibbons will officiate at different times, but the guiding hand of His Grace, Archbishop William H. O'Connell, has planned it all. The See of Boston was erected on April 8, 1808, and on the same day that the dioceses of Louisville, New York and Philadelphia were created. New York and Philadelphia have celebrated their centennials; Louisville has not made any attempt at celebrating thus far, and now Boston is to celebrate.

The territory of the archdiocese of Boston comprises 2,465 square miles. It was raised to archiepiscopal dignity in 1875 and has a Catholic population of 850,000. In the diocese proper there are 598 priests and 244 churches, seventy-six parochial schools, three high class colleges for boys, eight academies for young ladies and the aggregate number of children under the care and supervision of Catholic institutions is 50,000.

Kentucky and Kentuckians will take an interest in this Boston celebration, because she has been sending Dominican nuns to teach in the schools in that archdiocese for the last twenty years. At present there are no less than sixty white robed daughters of St. Dominic hailing from St. Catherine's convent, in Washington county, Kentucky, who are teaching in the parochial schools and academies of Boston. Last week three boys, former pupils of these Kentucky Dominicans, left Boston for the American College at Rome to continue their studies for the priesthood.

Next Saturday has been set apart as a special day for the Sisters of the various orders. They will all assemble at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. The nuns will assemble in the basement of the Cathedral and then proceed to the street and into the church. There will be 1,600 of them representing thirty different orders. The Dominicans will be represented by sixty Sisters. The Sisters of St. Joseph will present 105, while the Sisters of Notre Dame will have between three and four hundred. After the solemn high mass a sermon is to be delivered by a Jesuit priest.

There is still another reason why Louisville and Kentucky is interested in the Boston centennial. The Rev. Father Charles McKenna, O. P., formerly Prior of St. Louis Bertrand's church in this city, and who founded the Holy Name Society in that congregation, founded the Holy Name Society in Boston. Now Boston has a Holy Name society in every parish. Louisville has only one. The Holy Name societies of Boston will have their part in the celebration on Sunday, November 1. There will be a grand parade through the principal streets and the demonstration will conclude with benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

In this connection a former Louisville girl, now a Dominican nun, has written to relatives in this city: "In this parish 500 men, I believe, have given in their names and will march on November 1. They are being drilled for the occasion by three Sergeants from the Watertown Arsenal. This branch of the Holy Name Society was only established in July, after the Dominican fathers had given their mission." Thursday, October 29, will be Children's day, but only fifty of the larger pupils from each school will be permitted to attend the services at the Cathedral.

ONLY BEST MEN

Have Been Named by the Democrats for School Trustees.

The best men that the city can produce ought to have the governance of our public schools, because it is upon education that the county must depend if the Republic is to survive. The Democracy of Louisville did itself proud on October 10 when it nominated James Norton, Henry Schimpeler, August Klein and Dr. D. W. H. Borgmann.

Mr. Norton has served several terms as a member of the School Board from the Eighth and Ninth wards. He has the experience and the integrity to make good timber for President of the Board. Henry Schimpeler, candidate from the Tenth ward, like Mr. Norton, had no opposition for the nomination. He is Secretary of the Grocer's Baking Company, and is well posted in school affairs. Dr. Borgmann and August J. Klein, the candidates from the Eleventh and Twelfth wards, need no introduction to the people in their district. The votes they polled in the primary showed that they were the best men for the place.
