MACKIN COUNCIL.

Continues to Do Good Work for Young Men.

Mackin Council continues its good work for young men, and President John Kenney is elated over the progress made since January 1. At this week's meeting five more applications for membership were received and five candidates elected.

A communication was received from Mrs. Katie Shelley Newman, on behalf of the Catholic Woman's Club, inviting the co-operation of Mackin Council for the opera to be given in April.

After making a generous donation to a member who has been ill for a year a special committee was named to look after his wants. It is deeds like this that give Mackin a firm hold on its members who are never neglected when in need.

PARALYSIS FATAL.

Veteran Merchant Passes Into His Everlasting Award.

George Yeakel, one of the oldest and most respected merchants in Kentucky, died at his home, 723 South Sixth street, on Tuesday afternoon. He had been suffering from pneumonia and paralysis, and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Yeakel prospered as the years went by and accumulated a comfortable fortune. Fifteen years ago he retired from active business pursuits and turned his store over to his son, Edward Yeakel. The following children survive him: Edward Yeakel, of Brandenburg; Jerome Yeakel, of this city, and Mesdames Edward Millet, Lamar Herndon, James Cunningham, Edward Bridges, Charles Dennon and Albert G. White.

PROGRESS MADE

In Working Up Interest For St. Cecilia's Bazar.

The general committee from St. Cecilia's parish that is making arrangements for the bazar, April 4 to 11, held a meeting in Mackin Council's club house last night, and favorable reports were heard from all the subcommittees.

The ladies and gentlemen present reported that combination books were going at a rapid rate. Heads of the various booths reported that many handsome articles had been donated and others promised.

INTERESTING

Discovery Made by Priest In Old Church in Italy.

The interesting discovery has been made that there are frescoes in the Church of St. Donato, near Verona, in the province of Perugia, under three coats of whitewash.

The parish priest accidentally discovered the frescoes while removing a nail from the wall, which caused a piece of plaster to be detached. The frescoes represent historical subjects. One is signed by De Ponzillo and dated 1430.

The frescoes are excellently preserved and well executed. They have mostly been identified as the work of the fifteenth century.

Friends and admirers of Major Tinsdale presented him with a handsome gold badge studded with diamonds. The presentation was made in the office of Scott Newman, across the street from the headquarters of the Fire department.

RECKLESS

Prohibition Ideas Exposed by Remarks of Their Leader.

Defending the Mayor of Indianapolis, the Indiana Catholic of that city justly declares that no matter what views one may entertain on the liquor question, it is hard to read patiently, in a community where law and order is supposed to reign, the intemperate and foolish remarks of Mr. Chafin, the Prohibitionist candidate for President.

PASSIONIST PRIESTS Will Give Mission at Holy Name Church Next Week. The Rev. Father John O'Connor, pastor, announces a mission at the church of the Holy Name, South Louisville, to begin tomorrow.
