

HARDY DUMPING SLED.

For All Kinds of Winter Work, the Device Here Illustrated Has No Superior.

Manure may be easily and quickly unloaded from a dump sled. An old box with an extra high bolster and an elevated cross piece built up from the race in front, works all right. The box is fastened to the high bolster by means of eye bolts. It is fastened down to the front support with a strong hook. With a little practice, manure may be spread, with this rig in winter, with very little fork work. For spreading, a block is fastened to the runners behind that stops the box at the proper angle to let the manure slide down and pay out slowly as the team moves along.

The angle must be different according to the kind of manure, the absorbent used in the stable, and the amount of straw or other substance used for bedding. The driver can help or hinder it with his fork as he drives along.—L. G. Spencer, in Farm and Home.

Farm, Orchard and Garden.

A good, thrifty, well-kept orchard and small fruit garden on the farm adds materially to its value in dollars and cents, as well as providing health and pleasure for all members of the family. The profits are in many ways far in excess of the cost of maintenance, and there is not one valid reason why a single farmer should deprive himself of a good variety of the home-grown fruit.—Midland Farmer.

A COLLEGE GIRL'S IDEA.

By Diligent Study to Become an Expert Dietitian. She Secures a Good Position.

The graduate of a woman's college who recently was engaged by the New York department of charities as consulting dietitian appears to have discovered an entirely new field of endeavor for members of her sex who have received a liberal education. Moreover, it is one in which the possibility of male competition is very slight, says the New York Times.

While studying at college, the young woman realized that it was possible for her to become an expert on matters of diet, and planned her course to that end. Though not an executive, she will soon be one of the most important officers of that branch of the city government, because she is sent upon investigations on everything concerning foods, their preparation, their nutriment, and their serving in the various institutions.

She reports directly to and consults with the commissioners. She has studied so as to be practical and scientific, too. She can cook, from soups to cake, and she has Prof. Atwater's food researches at her finger's end. Along with old-fashioned housekeeping she took up biology, physiology, chemistry and domestic science. A man would have a hard time competing with her unless he was an expert cook and had a good working knowledge of housewifery.

CURE FOR SOMNAMBULISM.

A CHICKEN-SOUP PLANT.

Hospital Patient's Unique Provision for Plenty of the Prescribed, Luxurious.

Mrs. H. C. Lounsbury, who was chief nurse at the Sternberg hospital at Chickamauga park, contributes to the American Journal of Nursing some amusing reminiscences of hospital life. A lady had given her a hundred dollars to spend for luxuries for the sick soldier.

While the doctor was making his rounds one morning he said to the nurse in the patient's hearing: "This man may have some chicken soup tomorrow if his temperature keeps down to normal."

The next day there was a great "peep-peep" under the man's bed. The nurse investigated, and found that he had a dozen tiny chickens there in a box. The patient explained that the doctor had said he might have chicken soup, and he had bought these chickens for four dollars from a darky who had passed through the ward. He wanted to be sure his soup was made from real chickens.

"That," said the nurse, "these are too little to cook."

"Well, yes," said the man, "but they'll grow, and I reckoned the boys would bring the crumbs to feed 'em."

The case was brought to Mrs. Lounsbury, who shuddered at the idea of bringing up chickens under the bed of a typhoid-fever patient. She bought the chickens and gave the man his four dollars, and then sent him some canned chicken soup. But she says she always thought he felt aggrieved that she did allow him to maintain his private poultry-yard.

FEW GRATE-FIRES IN HOTELS.

A Feature That Always Attracts the Patronage of Englishmen and Canadians.

A clerk in a once fashionable hotel, where nearly all distinguished English visitors used to go when they came to New York, was talking the other night about the falling off in custom in many down-town hostels, reports the Times. "For many years," he said, "the down-town hotels kept up the grate fires, while the more modern hotels up-town abolished the grates and had nothing but steam heat. The Englishman will go every time where he can get a grate fire. Steam radiators are an abomination to him. When the down-town hotels began to make improvements and did away with grate fires they made a grand mistake. English and Canadian visitors particularly, when they saw that it was steam heat or nothing, went to the larger hotels, where they could see more people and get more for their money than in the down-town hotels. Steam heat is, of course, very much more convenient and less expensive for the hotel keeper, but guests object to it for many reasons, injury to health and noise from clanging pipes being the chief causes of complaint."

THEY BURN ALL LETTERS.

Chinese Invariably Commit Wrongs to the Flames as Soon as Read.

Of all the quaint industries which furnish a livelihood for a corps of workers there is none more worthy of comment than the sacred furnace of Mon-War, erected and supported by the religious fervor and reverential sentiment with which the Chinese regard their letters and papers. In every Chinatown, however small, a building dedicated to Confucius can be found, and to every almond-eyed celestial that building is sacred—sacred from the inscription over the door to the blue smoke that curls up and mingles with the fog, for it is the oven wherein are incinerated all the letters, newspapers and old books of the Chinese quarter, says Leslie's Weekly.

Every scrap of paper upon which a Chinese character has been written or printed, when its purpose in the business or social world has been accomplished, is burned in a perfumed blaze and the ashes are disposed of with reverential care.

Religious services held in absolute darkness are an experiment begun few weeks ago in London. The purpose was not novelty or notoriety, but a desire to answer the objection raised by poorly dressed people against going to any place where their shabby clothes made them feel uncomfortable. The experiment was made at St. James' in Clerkenwell. A large sheet was hung across the eastern end of the church, and upon this the words and music of the hymns, the prayers and responses were thrown by a lime-light lantern.

The Useful Newspaper. Many claims have been made on behalf of the modern newspaper. It is now held forward as the only reasonable cure both of cold and poverty. If you stretch it over you at night, it is better than a warming pan, better than an eiderdown quilt. If you roll it up into wet balls and put it on the fire, it does instead of coals.

Color of Truth. An American chemist has invented a tube for truth. You speak into it; the chemical solution changes color according to the tenacity of your emotion, and truth and mendacity are described as being quite distinct and vivid colors.

Reparated Boers. Eighty-five per cent. of the Boers who have been repatriated in the Orange River colony have started to work on farms.

Keep Moving.

Action is essential to progress. Whether we are going in one direction or in another, we must be in motion. To be utterly at rest is a barrier to effort in the right direction. Going in the right direction is, indeed, secondary or supplemental to going somewhere, rather than not moving at all. There is no practical truth in the state of rest. We cannot switch a motor in motion. We must be going in some direction. Therefore we are going.

CUPID PREFERS A LAMP.

The Little Ruler of Hearts Does Better with the Aid of Good Old-Fashioned Coal Oil.

"Electric lights and gas are no good for courting purposes," said a Washington young man who is more than attentive to the object of his affections, a sweet girl of the West end.

"But do not the parents of your fiancée insist on their being light in the room?" asked a friend.

"Oh, yes; we use kerosene. There is nothing like it. Give me the good old coal oil for courting. My girl is of an inventive turn of mind. You can't beat her."

"What do you mean?"

"The piano lamp provides the parlor with light," replied the young man, according to the Washington Star. "It has a large red shade, which softens the light when it is burning. But, do you know, my girl has that light completely under control? She sees to the filling of the lamp and she has it down so fine that she knows just how much oil is needed to burn to a certain hour, the time that the old folks usually go to bed. When the flame begins to get dim you may bet every dollar you have that it is 9:30. That lamp, controlled by so charming a girl as mine, is a bonanza."

A POLITICAL DIVIDE.

Cascade Mountain Range Bisects Washington and Oregon in Legislative Interests.

With the meeting of the legislatures of Washington and Oregon, one fact cannot fail of being impressed on the mind of a person who follows their work. Nearly every bill passed is the result of a compromise between those legislators from the west of the Cascades and those from the east of the range, in that a large undertaking could be financed here with much greater dispatch than on the other side, says the New York Post.

Said an officer of one of Wall street's most important banks: "It is no trouble at all nowadays to raise $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 within an hour. I have seen it done 100 times to think for a moment that it would tax seriously a large bank's resources. Five times that sum, say $25,000,000, can be raised at 24 hours' notice. It has been done. Of course, no one bank could do it, but the great Wall street institutions are linked together in such a way as to provide almost unlimited resources for the financing of any safe deal. The large banks think little of $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 loans these days, whereas in former years they attracted general attention, for such large amounts were released only after considerable negotiations. But that has all changed now."

ONE OLD MILL AN IMPOSTOR.

Reported to Be of Holland Make, But Was the Work of an Irish Carpenter.

Along the line of the Trenton & New Brunswick railroad, between Milltown and Dayton, is a ramshackle old mill, the end of which is a windmill tower and windmill that look like a piece out of a Dutch landscape, says the Philadelphia Press.

The natives tell wonderfully interesting stories of this mill's history, how it was brought from Holland in sections many years ago, and erected by the then owner of the farm, a worthy descendant of a line of burghers, and with an ancestry that would give him a seat of honor at a reunion of the Holland Society.

As a matter of fact, the mill is only about 20 years old, and was built by an Irish carpenter, who was employed by the Scotchman who occupied the farm, renting it from a Frenchman who then held title to the property. But it makes an interesting, though a spurious antique, and is a veritable treasure-trove for a small army of water colorists, sketchers and amateur photographers.

NEW IMPERIAL SERVICE ORDER.

Birthday Honor Conferred by King Edward Upon Woman in Postal Work.

Among the birthday honors conferred by King Edward, perhaps the most unusual is that which has made a woman a companion of the new Imperial Service Order, says a London report. The woman in question is a Miss Smith, who nearly 30 years ago began with a staff of 20 clerks some small work connected with the savings bank branch of the general post office. Now her staff numbers between 800 and 900 women, and the work they do covers a great part of the whole savings business. Miss Smith has been a pioneer in the development of woman labor in other branches of postal work than her own. From her office the first woman clerks of the postal order branch were drawn, and it is to her powers of organization that the great increase of woman workers throughout the post office is said to be due. With all her ability, Miss Smith receives only $2,500 a year—a large salary in English eyes.

Lady with Pink Teeth.

The newest turn in Parisian music halls will shortly be the appearance of a lady with pink teeth. She is a native of Canton, but born of French parents. Her teeth, which are perfect, are of a semi-transparent substance resembling pale-colored coral. A dentist, who has examined them, says that they will never decay. They are hard as diamonds, and the latter gems are the only material with which a mark can be made on their surface.

Prairie State Products.

"DOUBLE-QUICK" LOANS.

Great Sums Often Raised by Wall Street Banks as Very Short Notice.

An interesting question often asked in Wall street concerns the amount of capital that a large bank could raise at an hour's notice. That is, how much accommodation could a bank extend a customer unexpectedly confronted with pressing need, or for the purpose of financing a great deal. A banker of international experience is authority for the statement that Wall street's

SOUND AS A DOLLAR.

There's many a man whose lungs are to-day "as sound as a dollar" who at one time suffered severely with weak or diseased lungs. The change has been brought about by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It has cured men and women whose condition was regarded as hopeless, who were given up by physicians as beyond all hope of cure. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures obstinate deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, weak lungs, hemorrhage, and other diseased conditions which if neglected or unskillfully treated terminate fatally in consumption.

"I have great faith in your medicine," writes Mrs. A. W. Ude, of 209 E. Eighth Street, Newport, Ky. "Fourteen years ago I was cured with only one bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' after I had been taking medicine from our doctor for five months. He told my mother that I had consumption and could not live longer than Spring, which would have been only a few months. The same day my attention was drawn to an advertisement of Dr. Pierce's medicine, and which described how I felt. We bought one bottle, and I took some of the medicine and felt so sick I thought I would die. Then I took smaller doses than at first and continued taking it. After the one bottle was used I was cured. I am forty years of age now, and am strong and healthy, through God's will and Dr. Pierce's medicine."

Don't be deceived into trading a substance for a shadow. Any substitute offered as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery" is a shadow of that medicine. There are cures behind every claim made for the "Discovery," which no "just as good" medicine can show.

majesty about such a small matter?" "Indeed, I will, and he will settle it." The Englishman expected that one of the kaiser's secretaries would send a formal and useless reply. But in a few days the chief professor showed the Englishman a letter, written at the kaiser's dictation, saying that his majesty would in six weeks be visiting in the neighborhood of the university, and would make a call on the professor, and consult them about the dispute.

At the time appointed the emperor came, discussed the matter patiently with great tact and judgment, and finally settled it to the satisfaction of all parties.

Striking Illustration Given a French Lecturer by a Witty American Woman.

M. le Comte Robert de Montesquiou-Fézensac, here to lecture on French literature, met with a surprise the other day at a reception. He was talking to a dainty little lady, who spoke very good French, reports the New York Times. She was telling of the vast possibilities in the English language, and neglectful of the fact that he imperfectly understands the language, she gave him the following: "A flock of girls is called a bevy, a bevy of wolves is called a pack, a pack of thieves is called a gang, a gang of angels is called a host, a host of fish is called a shoal, a shoal of cattle is called a herd, a herd of children is called a troop, a troop of partridges is called a covey, a covey of beauties is called a galaxy, a galaxy of ruffians is called a horde, a horde of seals is called a heap, a heap of ovens is called a drove, a drove of blackguards is called a mob, a mob of whales is called a school, a school of worshippers is called a congregation, a congregation of engineers is called a corps, a corps of robbers is called a band, a band of leucists is called a swarm, and a swarm of people is called a crowd."

M. le Comte asked the fair one to please write it out for him, as he wished to use a lexicon for purposes of translation. He tried it later and gave up in despair.

Pigeon Post on Ships.

The Compagnie Generale Transatlantique is not only trying the wireless telegraph on its ship, the Savoie, but employs a pigeon post which has given satisfaction. Out of 23 trials at distances of 150 to 250 miles from land, 18 succeeded. It is found possible to have news of a ship in this way 24 hours after she leaves and 24 hours before she arrives at a port. Moreover, the birds become harder with practice, their sense of orientation or homing instinct grows keener, and the percentage of birds lost is lowered.

SET IN HIS WAYS.

Negro Farmer Who Had His Own Ideas About Crops and Stuck to Them.

"As an illustration of the need of new ideas in farming, and of the effect which the long-continued cultivation of a single crop has upon the mind of a single crop planter, says Booker T. Washington in Everybody's Magazine, 'I remember that some years ago I called an old negro farmer into my office and explained to him in detail how he could make $30 an acre on his land, if he would plant a portion of it in sweet potatoes; whereas, if he planted cotton, as he had been doing for years, at best he could make only $15 per acre. As I explained the difference step by step, he agreed with me at every point, and when I came near to the end of my argument I began to congratulate myself that I had converted at least one man from the one-crop system to better methods. Finally, with what I fear was the air of one who felt that he had won his case, I asked the farmer what he was going to cultivate on his land the coming year. The old fellow scratched his head and said that as he was getting old, and had been growing cotton all his life, he reckoned he would grow it to the end of his few remaining years, although he agreed with me that he could double the product of his land by planting sweet potatoes on it.'

A WORKING EMPEROR.

Kaiser Wilhelm Takes Matters Great and Small Into His Own Autocratic Hands.

The world discovered long ago that the emperor of Germany is not a mere figurehead. He takes matters of state, great and small, into his autocratic hands, and settles them in business-like fashion. A case in point is a story told by a London M. A. P. of an English professor in a small German university, who fell into a dispute with another professor. Finally the head of the department said: "We must write to the kaiser about it."

"Surely, you would not trouble his

Do Not Dose The Stomach.

Cure Catarrh by Nature's Own Method—Every Breath of Hyomeo Brings Relief.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by dosing the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes. Until recently your physician would have said the way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate; but now with Hyomeo you can carry a health giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete Hyomeo outfit costs you but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomeo. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomeo can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

R. E. McRoberts has sold a great many Hyomeo outfits and the more he sells the more convinced he is perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomeo does not cure.
