HUMOR

The Motive.
 It was an evening party. A young man with a tall collar and pale hair was reciting a poem. He had ground out forty-seven stanzas—and the end was not yet.
 "What's going on?" whispered the guest who had just come in.
 "Rhyme is letting out his latest poem," answered the pessimistic person.
 "What's the subject—the motive?" queried the late comer.
 "I have forgotten the subject," replied the P. P., "but I suspect the motive must be revenge."—Ideas.

Maternalism.
 Kind Gentleman—What are you going to do, Johnny, when you become a man?
 Johnny—Nawthin'.
 Kind Gentleman—What? Not going to do anything?
 Johnny—No. Just as soon as I started something ma would tell me to stop.—Judge.

Ready to Oblige.
 At a reception in London a young lady, mistaking Marconi for Mascagni, said: "I do wish you'd play me your lovely 'Intermezzo.'"
 "With pleasure, madam," answered Marconi; "but I shall have to play it on a wireless piano."

Conservative Opinion.
 "This newspaper speaks of a 'girl' whose age turns out to be thirty years. Do you think she is still a girl at that age?"
 "Well, she may be a girl, but there is no doubt that she is somewhat mature."

Mrs. Justwed—Here is a printed list of suitable presents for a wife to give her husband on his birthday. Just mark the ones you would like most.
 Mr. Justwed (after reading it)—I think I would be satisfied with anything that was not mentioned here.

Severe Punishment.
 A slap on the wrist is what he should get. Who dares to resist a suffragette.

Uncalled For.
 Murphy—O! want to get a fust class automobile for me wolve.
 Auto Dealer—Long body?
 Murphy—None of yure business! She's built like a barrel, but O! didn't come here to discuss her shape wid ye.—Puck.

What Impressed Him.
 "What impressed you most in our great city?" asked the native.
 "Well," replied the man from the small town, "I've been here for a week and I noticed that nobody wears Sunday clothes on Sunday."

One Slight Request.
 "There is nothing that women cannot do as well as men."
 "Of course," assented Mr. Meekton earnestly. "But, Henrietta, I do hope that none of you will insist on pitch for the home team in a close game."

Cruelty to Animals.
 Manager—We will try the new play in this town on the dog.
 Agent—You're taking a risk. They've got an active humane society there.

PAINT LICK.
 Mrs. Walker Guyn spent Monday with her sister in Lancaster.
 There will be services at the Christian church next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

Dr. W. L. Carman was called to his home at Washington Court House Ohio to see his sister who is very ill.

Miss Margaret Sandusky has returned to her home near Nicholasville after a visit to her Aunt Mrs. Robt. Guyn.

Several persons from here attended the funeral and burial of Mrs. Susie Wallace at Richmond last Sunday. Her many friends regret her loss and sympathize with sons and relatives.
 The brick work in the new school building is completed and is now ready for the finishing up touches. Mr. R. J. Woods is having the foundation laid for a handsomer residence near the school house.

HORTICULTURE

PLAGUE OF THE FIELD MICE

Even in Small Numbers They Destroy Considerable Clover and Alfalfa and Injure Orchards.

(By H. S. PIPER.)
 The mouse which produced the plague in some of the western states, a short time ago, proved to be the "black mouse," one of the numerous species of short tailed field or meadow mice, a group which has caused widespread destruction in various parts of the world. In nearly all parts of the United States short-tailed field mice are among the most abundant of mammals, and a number of species in widely separated localities have occasionally exhibited the same tendency to excessive increase. Indicating that favoring conditions may produce mouse plagues wherever the mice exist. Even when in small numbers they destroy considerable clover and alfalfa and injure orchards, nurseries and root crops.

This is the first recorded instance of an irruption of field mice in North America attaining the proportions of a plague. The experience indicates the probability of future and even more disastrous outbreaks. In the extensive reclaimed areas of the west the abundant food and luxurious cover furnished by alfalfa fields and the miles of irrigation ditches, which afford these mice suitable homes along their banks, greatly favor their increase, while surrounding desert conditions limit the spread of mice beyond the cultivated areas.

Without doubt poisoning is the best method at present known of dealing with field mice on an extensive scale.

SOIL TOO RICH FOR APPLES

Trees With Beautiful Foliage, but Mighty Little Fruit, Were Finally Removed by Ax.

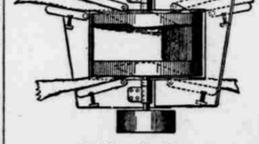

A common mistake in the selection of a site for the apple orchard tract, large or small, is that of choosing a soil that is too rich; that will cause abundant growth of wood, but mighty little fruit. In the valley in which the writer's ranch is located is an orchard of mature apple trees, as pretty a sight from the standpoint of foliage as one could ask to see, which has lately been felled because it did not deliver the goods.
 The tract is fat, rich and well watered. Within gunshot of this tract is a block of winter Nellis pear trees of the same age that for several years past have grossed their owners close to a thousand dollars per acre, says a writer in an exchange. Never was more emphatically demonstrated the fact that soil can be too rich for apples, but not for pears. Within a mile of these unproductive apple trees, on thinner and lighter granitic soils, the apple trees bear prolifically to the point of breaking down.

GRAFTING MACHINE IS HANDY

Implement Designed to Cut Scion Diagonally to Prevent Bruising or Other Injury.

In describing a grafting machine, invented by A. Robertson of Canada, the Scientific American says:

The purpose here is to provide a machine more especially designed for use in nurseries and the like, and arranged to cut the graft or scion diagonally with a shearing cut to prevent bruising or injury to the graft. For this purpose use is made of a rotary cutter head provided with beveled knives, a table for the grafts to rest on, and guides on the table at an angle to the cutting edges of the knives to guide the grafts. The machine is pictured herewith in a plan view.

Good Rotation.
 Try this rotation: Alfalfa, potatoes, grain. It is a good one.

What We Never Forget
