

"Jon's" communication was received too late for our issue this week. It will appear next issue.

The recent rains have improved the condition of the tobacco crop very much.

Wheat commands 70c to 75 cents in this market.

Baker Boyd, Esq., has been nominated for City Judge, of Owensboro.

We would remind the candidates that the election comes off next Monday.

A very nice cool shower today (Friday) but we need more more.

Mr. R. D. Witt has a hen that is equal to any turkey for catching rats. Fact.

When does a hen become a rooster? Shortly after sundown.—Glasgow Times.

The hogs and rat-trappers keep the town lively with news.

We will commence a series of articles next week on the Business and Business Men of Cloverport.

The rain has come, the drouth has ended and the corn crops are much benefited thereby.

MARRIED.—On Saturday, July 27th, by Rev. J. L. Edgington, Mr. Peter Sander to Miss Margaret L. Miller.

A town hog never dies of cholera. It is too great a pest to become so easily duped as to take the cholera.

The Annual Catalogue of the Cloverport High School is now in press in the News office, and will be out in a few days.

An ice house is a mighty handy thing to have in a family.—Shelby Sentinel.

We would rather have a family in a nice house. We don't want any house in our family. We don't care how nice it is.

Is this an ice pan?

Mr. T. F. Satterfield comes to the front with the "leaves" tomato of the season, weighing 2 pounds, grown in his garden. Beat that and take the tomato horns.

There are twenty-two candidates for jailer in Breckenridge county. A very odd odd fact gives it as her opinion that at least half of them will be beaten.

Why don't "Jeff" of the Havesville Plaindealer, write us a chapter on the "Will Mystery" of Havesville. What about that will, Jeff?

The money, flea biting rat-trappers are such delightful pests and are so useful to kill rats for them they are caught and held down for them. Everybody should have one.

The eclipse Monday could be but imperfectly observed here—on account of the clouds.—The shade was sufficient to send the chickens "to their little beds."

Now that we have had a good rain, the dust is laid, the weather is cool and pleasant, the great heat is gone, we must hush complaining.

Large quantities of walnut and yellow poplar lumber are being shipped daily from our wharf. Our country is full of fine timber and mills are located all around us sending in daily quantities of lumber to be shipped to distant markets.

The Democrats of Hancock county held a convention, Monday, July 29th, to appoint and instruct delegates to the Congressional convention; so will all the counties of the Second Congressional District, sooner or later. Our district, Knott's, is it, will not go to that trouble and expense.

The 8th, and the greatest wonder of the world is, how a Cloverport boy, eight or ten years old, can court a girl at parties and in church, and look so innocent. The amusing part is the patience and quietude with which the ten or twelve year old Miss listens to his speech.

"Flora," the old gray mare which formerly belonged to Barnet Fisher, died yesterday, aged 28 years, on the farm of Hon. D. R. Murray. She has been a valuable animal, having been a very fine breeder. She was the dam of "Lalla Rookh," now owned by Dr. T. N. Watfield.

Just like a rat-trapper, as he snaps at your heels, if you want to see a Cloverport man get mad. You may not see him when you kick but you will at once hear "I look out how you kick, that's my dog." If you don't want "angry passions to rise," you must let the poor, innocent dog chew up your heel without the least objection.

"Emma" writes to the News.

"Will you kiss me darling."

"When the twilight shades are falling."

We are married and of course Emma don't mean it for us, but she'll not say anything about it to our better half we believe we will. If that don't suit her we will send the publisher, Mr. B., out and he'll kiss her anytime. His mouth is always in a kiss-pucker when there are any girls about, besides he is in good practice.

On Monday night a man from Pinecoke took lodgings in a lay loft of our town, and late in the night was disturbed by a rat running across his leg. Not stopping to think that he was close to the wall, kicked with all power at the rat, missed it, but struck the wall, and the next morning it was discovered he had lost a toe nail.

Cattletown, Ky., has been visited by a terrible fire, destroying nearly the whole town. The following dispatch was received by Mr. Major, of the Frankfort Yeoman:

CATTLETOWN, KY., July 24, 1878.

To Col. N. E. M. Major.

Cattletown people homeless and suffering. Won't Frankfort give us aid? Answer.

K. F. RICHARD.

The Courier-Journal says: A correspondent of the Lebanon Times reports the explosion of the rocky led of Lick creek, similar to the explosion that has so frequently occurred in the creek near Nicholasville. Great fissures are produced in the bed of solid rock, and large pieces are thrown up with a report similar to a blast.

The Elizabethtown News says: A Mid-dletown girl placed some newly hatched duck eggs in her bosom, and thus helped a brood of young ducks into the world. Young men in that region will do well to omit in the interest of poultry, usual Saturday night embraces until the hatching season.

The Madisonville Times, says: A Mrs. Hart became insane and lungy herself, and her husband died in a few hours afterward.

Dissolution of Partnership.

The co-partnership heretofore existing between Allen Murphy, William H. Kingsbury and E. H. Kingsbury, under the firm name of Murphy & Kingsbury, is hereby dissolved by mutual consent. One day of the firm is authorized to settle outstanding business. MURPHY & KINGSBURY, July 1st, 1878.

Lady.—"Yes, I love you, darling, (don't make my hat!)"

And Cupid's dart—my Lord! who's that!"

ACT 2.

Genl.—[Confused the look, I wish that man (Come up, there, Jake), was in Japan. Lady.—No you suppose, my love, he heard you take

The Clipper says a Midway doctor discovered a partridge suffering from sun-stroke and restored it by the use of cold water.

OUR CHILDREN.

The children of the present day are the parents of a future generation; at least, we view them in that light. They are to be the guardians of our liberties, the protectors of our altars, and the defenders of right, truth and justice. Taking this into consideration, should we not feel a deep interest in their behalf and should not mothers be apprised of the great responsibility devolving upon them? These little innocents to be educated morally, mentally, and physically, in order that they may prove themselves worthy descendants of worthy sires. They are monuments of God's goodness to man, and pledges of an everlasting love; they are the dewdrops in the morning of life, the pearls in its sunshine, and rainbow tints amid its cares and sorrows. We owe them a debt of affection; and we never tire of sounding the trumpet of their littleness. Educate them in all that pertains to eternal happiness. Teach them first to love you; and then they will respect you. Teach them humility, charity, and a love of virtue. Teach them not by precept alone, but by your example. Give them to know that this is a world of care, suffering, and of deceit; but point them to God who will watch over them with "an everlasting eye."

It has been said, by a writer of distinction, that there never was a great man who had not a great woman for his mother. Then let us have more great women! Let us have mothers worthy of the sacred vocation; let us have mothers who are not only the hope of our country, but mothers who are excellent tutors, and their insouciance will outlive the flight of time. Many instances might we portray, showing the influence of the mother upon the child, but one alone is sufficient to illustrate the truth of the saying. The mother of the mother of him, who though his ashes lie cold in death's dark mansion, yet is his memory fresh in the hearts of his countrymen, the great, the immortal Washington. And, oh, mothers of American youth, should your jewels of affection, your little monitors to sinful man, pass through the labyrinth of death's shadow, grieve not sorely at heaven's dispensation, for you become mothers of angels; and they may become your benefactors. Gaze from this awful earth, they are best forever. Had they remained, you know not what bitter anguish they might have passed through. Life at best is a sea of trouble and disappointment, and oh, what a happy consolation to know that innocence returns but to grace the wrath of She-ron's eye.—Selected and Revised.

The Southern Agriculturist says: "The seven wonders of the world were, the pyramids of Egypt, the hanging gardens at Babylon, the Temple of Diana, the Statue of Jupiter at Athens, the Mausoleum, the Colosseum at Rhodes, and the Pharos of Alexandria."

Mr. Grabfelder's Second Speech.
Gentlemen and Fellow-citizens of Breckenridge county:

This is the first time that I have ever come before you to ask for an office. I am now before you as a candidate for Jailer of Breckenridge county. I have published in circular form an address to the people of Breckenridge county which I suppose the majority of the people have read. It was my intention to make this speech on the stump verbally, but I understood each candidate to speak, hence the publication of this speech. It will only make a few remarks pertaining to the office of Jailer. This is one of the most important offices in this or any other county. The man who fills this office has to assume as many characters as any actor on the stage, at other times he must be stern and severe according to the character of the men with whom he has to deal. Here I am the Jailer of Breckenridge county, having fallen into the hands of the law, and I am now before you to ask for an office.
