There are three murderers in the Meade county jail awaiting trial. Circuit Court began there last Monday.

There will be some very important work before the next Kentucky Legislature, and the people should choose their very best men for the position.

Ex-President Cleveland has recently come out in a letter in opposition to the free coinage of silver. A number of the prominent leaders in his party think he has thus injured his chances for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency in 1892.

From the trouble Mr. Delamater is having with bank accounts and lawsuits, it seems that he would have had no time to devote to Pennsylvania's interests even if he had been elected Governor. See what an imposition the people might have suffered at the hands of Republican leaders.

An association has been formed in Washington to honor the memory of Gen. F. E. Spinner, who by his action in introducing women into various grades of government service, paved the way for their continued employment, not only in government offices, but in many other places of business.

Mr. Amos Skillman has taken up a permanent residence at Garfield. An over-rush of business and an inclination to spend more or less of his time in company with the good-looking widows in that locality, has held back his magnetic pencil from the columns of the News for some time, but it is safe to add that he will get here by and by.

All the candidates for Governor have expressed themselves upon the Sub-Treasury scheme. Mr. Clay thinks it is not an issue in the canvass, and doesn't regard it as of much importance. Dr. Clardy says that "if the Sub-Treasury plan means the establishment of warehouses and the purchase of crops by the government, he is opposed to it. On the other hand, if it means the loaning out of money by the government at a low rate of interest, he is for it."

Only fourteen more days and the Fifty-first Congress is a thing of the past. Certainly the country will breathe more easily. A review of its entire work shows nothing but legislation towards one point, and that point was the retention in power of the Republican party. To this end all energy has been directed, and the millions of farmers and tradesmen who make a bare living and need legislative aid, look over the records in vain for the passage of a measure that would benefit them. The present Congress could see the few and forget the many, but in 1892 that great majority will show that they don't forget the party whose leaders have fought for their interests against odds that made their cause seem hopeless. The people hail with joy the adjournment of the Fifty-first Congress, and they will hail with greater joy the retirement of Republican administration two years hence.

We call the attention of the farmers of this county to the following features of the statement of T. S. Frymire, which appears in the correspondence columns of this issue: "The resolutions are original, and solely put forth by your humble servant, and endorsed by the County Assembly." As to the means by which the endorsement of the County Assembly was obtained, Mr. Frymire complacently says: "The other vote [against the resolutions] mentioned are not counted, was an oversight at the proper time, but that may all be dismissed and the resolutions stood upon their merits as a living exponent of the will and wishes of the different organizations." He arrogates to these "resolutions" which are "original and solely put forth" by himself, the authority of being the "living exponent of the will and wish of the different organizations," but says, "I care not whether they ever had been inside any assembly or not, it is a move for liberty and independence, now demanded everywhere." He constitutes himself a tribunal to proclaim what is "demanded everywhere," without caring whether what he sets out to proclaim in the name of an organization "has ever been inside of an assembly or not," and lightly remarks that the matter of not counting votes cast against resolutions solely original with himself may all be "dismissed" and these resolutions of his stand up, nevertheless, as "a living exponent of the will and wish of the different organizations." This, he says, "is a move for liberty and independence," "liberty and independence from the party organizations because they are controlled by such men as Carlisle, Cleveland, Sherman and Ingalls. He cannot tolerate these men because they control their party organizations. He hates a man who controls his organization; he would not do such a thing. He wants the farmers to hold a convention at Elizabethtown that will not be controlled. He will go to Elizabethtown as he did to Stephensport, and see that the meeting is not controlled—by any one else.

We don't know what views the Democratic county committee entertain upon the subject, but in making a nomination for the Legislature a county convention is preferable.

GROVER Cleveland's letter condemning the policy of the free coinage of silver, has created quite a buzz among the leaders of his party. Anyhow when the time comes all of them will stand by him for President.

The people of the South need not be expected to indulge in paroxysms of grief over the death of the old traitor, William T. Sherman, who goes to his grave with the blood of thousands of brave and patriotic people upon his head. His treasonable contempt for the Federal Constitution, where it stood between him and his purpose to murder and plunder the Southern people, is shown forth in his letter to his brother, John Sherman, written in 1862: "Of course I approve of the Confiscation Act, and would be willing to revolutionize the Government so as to amend that article of the Constitution which forbids the forfeiture of land to the heirs. My full belief is that we must colonize the country de novo, beginning with Kentucky and Tennessee, and should remove 4,000,000 of our people at once south of the Ohio river, taking the farms and plantations of the rebels. Enemies must be killed or transported to some other country." These are the kind of fellows who set themselves up to call other people "rebels" and "traitors."

The third party idea has not yet materialized in this country's politics, and from present indications the project is abandoned. Such a movement at present seems to be neither necessary nor practicable. The action of State Alliance meetings recommending a candidate for President in 1892, doesn't indicate a necessity for county unions to begin making distinctions in county offices; yet there is doubtless in every county some unfortunate man who has an aching void in his heart that nothing but an office can fill. He has perhaps served both political parties in his time, and they have refused him the special remuneration he desires. His time is passing away and he must soon give place to younger politicians, and in the exigency he throws his last trump—an effort for the endorsement of a new party. It is a lesson long ago learned by the farmers that we don't think they will have to learn again. If a man is capable of filling an office, his party knows it, and let them endorse him. Then if the Alliance men know him to be identified with their interests, they will support him. A new party can't make a new man by putting a new brand upon a political fossil.

The Sudden Death of Dr. W. B. Paynter. In the death of Dr. Walter B. Paynter, which occurred last Thursday, this community has lost a capable and conscientious practitioner. Dr. Paynter had been among us only about five months, but we had learned to appreciate his value as a citizen, a physician and a gentleman.

He had been suffering for several years from attacks of a paralytic nature, caused from injuries received about eight years ago from a vicious horse. This trouble culminated in blood clot in the vessels of the brain, and caused his death.

Dr. Paynter was reared near Salem, in Washington county, Ind., and afterwards lived and practiced his profession at Vine Grove, Hardin county, Ky., from which place he removed to this city last September.

He had been a practicing physician for fourteen years, and had built for himself an enviable reputation. About seven years ago, he married Miss Ella Moorman, daughter of Silas L. Moorman, and she with their two little children are left to mourn his loss.

John Wheeler will make application before the March County Court for license to sell liquors at Sample. His application will be met with a remonstrance from the citizens of that place.

Riley Johnson, who had an application before the County Court Monday for a license to sell whisky at Hudsonville, withdrew it. The citizens of that place are remonstrating.

The Hambleton Hotel was opened to the public last Monday by Mr. Boin G. Turpin under very favorable circumstances. Mr. Turpin is well and favorably known throughout the county, and a big run of custom is predicted for him.

The Democratic County Committee met at the Court House Monday, and decided on calling a primary election to select a candidate for the Legislature, to be held on Saturday before the third Monday in April. About three-fourths of the districts in the county were represented, and the feeling among the members present was decidedly in favor of a primary election over a mass convention. From the talk gathered among the politicians that were here Monday, the Legislature race appears to be a little unsettled. The meeting of the County Committee was a surprise to many, as but few seemed to be apprised of a meeting at all, until the members from various portions of the county began coming in. A great many thought that there was no necessity for a call so early, and that it might tend to work against the interest of the party. The Alliance men have not taken any action as yet, but it was thought perhaps that they would, and that it might be best to await their movements. However, the committee has seen proper to act and it is believed generally will be governed by them. A few members of the Alliance order were here, and when the action of the Democratic Committee was announced they disapproved it pretty strongly, and said further, that they as Democrats could not support any nominee of the primary. Just what effect this may have upon the success of the party in the approaching struggle can be only a matter of conjecture. It is known that several members of the Alliance, who are Democrats would prefer to take a member of that order for the Legislature if they could get him, but as there is not likely to be one in the field they will stop and think before they repudiate "Old Democracy."

Hon. G. W. Richardson and Perry Cundiff, both candidates for the Legislature, addressed the people here Monday. Both are subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The trial of the writ of ad quod damnum on the premises of Mr. James H. Frymire, over which it is proposed to establish a new county road leading to Ekron, was held last Thursday, the jury fixing the damages at $225. This is $40 more than he was offered by the County Court. It now remains to be determined as to whether or not the Court will establish the road.

Our county is rapidly gaining a very enviable reputation by its numerous murders recently. We have now three prisoners in jail charged with murder, and one other at large who has not yet been arrested. One peculiarity about this is that in the cases of the three who are in jail there are no witnesses to the killing, and the defense in each case is that it was done in self-defense.

Circuit Court convened Monday, Judge T. R. McBeath presiding. The Grand Jury is composed of the following gentlemen: James H. Bryant, foreman, J. M. Osborne, Ed. Atwell, Allen Young, B. W. Brown, N. B. Tobin, Wm. Etherington, J. W. Price, J. B. Withers, E. Wimp, A. P. Lusk, Henry Chennault, F. M. Turner, W. R. Heaverin, Jesse Henderson and Wm. Shrewsbury. Owing to the numerous crimes committed in this county recently the Grand Jury will have a great deal of work to do during the present term of court. In the case of Commonwealth vs W. W. Harris, the jury found a verdict of not guilty. The trial of John Bruce, charged with the murder of George Dow, was called Tuesday.

children. Warnick came in immediately after the difficulty and surrendered himself to the sheriff, waived an examining trial, and is now in jail. He will probably have his trial at the present term of the Circuit Court. An inquest was held over the body of Reese on Friday morning by Judge Rawlings, and the jury returned a verdict that Reese's death was caused from wounds inflicted by a knife in the hands of Elisha Warnick.

GUSTON. No one dangerously sick that we know of.

Mrs. Effie Snider was on the sick list last week.

At present it seems as though we are not likely to have an ice harvest this winter.

Our district school, taught by J. L. Simpson, closed last Friday, with general satisfaction. Mr. Simpson, we understand will teach a Spring school here, but of how many months duration we have not learned.

We met our jovial friend, Harry Bell, the other day for the first time since his arrival from Florida. Harry is the same pleasant fellow that he has always been: Any one desiring to see his crane that he killed while in the orange clime, can do so by stepping into the store of Mr. F. M. Osborne.

We were sorry to hear that our old schoolmate and friend, E. H. Mitcham, had succumbed. Mr. Mitcham taught two terms of school in this district some sixteen or eighteen years ago, and if there was ever a voice uttered against him as a teacher or otherwise, by pupil or patron, we are in ignorance of it. Mr. Mitcham was well known in this community and had a great many friends and acquaintances here.

The killing of John Rees by Elisha Wanaker, is one of the most sad occurrences that has ever been our lot to chronicle since we have been scribbling items for the News. The statements that we have heard of the tragedy have been so diversified that we decline to give any, knowing that the Brandenburg correspondent will have a better opportunity of learning the true particulars. Mr. Rees was a member of the Sandy Hill Lodge of the Farmers' and Laborer's Union, and was very appropriately buried by the members of that and other adjacent lodges, and on that occasion the fact was clearly demonstrated, that his grief stricken wife and little boy of two and a half year, had the sympathy of the entire community.

We read a newspaper article the other day that somewhat startled us, and if it be true, it is enough to startle most any honest person. It stated that novels and other immoral literature, that was detrimental to its readers instead of beneficial, was distributed through the mails to the same at a cost of one cent per pound postage, while the postage on Bibles, school, historical and other miscellaneous books, bound or unbound, was eight cents per pound, and that there was one firm in New York, with a capital of $3,000,000 engaged in this nefarious business, and that our Postmaster General said, that we were losing $1,000,000 yearly on account of such existing affairs, and that there were bills before both the House and the Senate to remedy this evil and that these firms were represented there by their agents and experts ready to defeat any measure that might be presented as against their interest, and also that these bills were likely to lay quietly there unless the people demanded their passage. Reader, what do you think of it? I will tell you what I think about it. The officers of a government who are not enough interested in the welfare of the people to remedy such evils as this, should be granted the free privilege of engaging in something besides holding office. I believe the time is not a hundred years distant (and I hope that I, with a great many other readers of the News, may live to see it) when if there isn't some changes made in the way of engineering our government, there will be some changes made in the way of engineers. Upon the whole, it seems as though there is a class of people in this country styled by some "laboring class," others style them "poor class," and some have called them "low class." Call them what you please, they propose, it seems, to make some demands and to watch the actions of those whom they trust their public offices with a little closer in the future than has been done in the past. Verily, we live in an age that is ripe for investigation. SUBSCRIBER.
