

THE BRECKENRIDGE NEWS.

CLOVERPORT, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27, 1892.

NO. 40.

VOL. XVI.

To The Investigating Public.
Cloverport is the busiest town in the state.
If you don't believe it come and see for yourself. The best vitrified brick in the world are made right here!

IF YOU BUY
NONE SUCH FOR YOUR
DAILY BREAD
WE GUARANTEE ENTIRE SATISFACTION.

It approaches nearer that granular perfection which has made Spring wheat flour famous the world over than any other brand manufactured in this section. That is the verdict of those who have tried both. If you want the best

Buy it to Sell

AND

Buy it to Use!

Wholesale and retail prices promptly quoted, and orders for it or anything in our line filled the same day received.

Irvington
MILLING
Company,
IRVINGTON, KY.

Louisville, St. Louis & Texas R. R. Co.
NO. 18.
TIME SCHEDULE
Taking Effect
At 5:00 o'clock A. M. Wednesday July 29, '91

| West Bound Trains | | East Bound Trains | |
|-------------------|----------|-------------------|----------|
| Mail & Expt's | STATIONS | Mail & Expt's | STATIONS |
| 6:20pm | 7:45am | 9:00am | 9:05pm |
| 6:40 | 8:05 | 9:20 | 9:25 |
| 7:00 | 8:25 | 9:40 | 9:45 |
| 7:20 | 8:45 | 10:00 | 10:05 |
| 7:40 | 9:05 | 10:20 | 10:25 |
| 8:00 | 9:25 | 10:40 | 10:45 |
| 8:20 | 9:45 | 11:00 | 11:05 |
| 8:40 | 10:05 | 11:20 | 11:25 |
| 9:00 | 10:25 | 11:40 | 11:45 |
| 9:20 | 10:45 | 12:00 | 12:05 |
| 9:40 | 11:05 | 12:20 | 12:25 |
| 10:00 | 11:25 | 12:40 | 12:45 |
| 10:20 | 11:45 | 1:00 | 1:05 |
| 10:40 | 12:05 | 1:20 | 1:25 |
| 11:00 | 12:25 | 1:40 | 1:45 |
| 11:20 | 12:45 | 2:00 | 2:05 |
| 11:40 | 1:05 | 2:20 | 2:25 |
| 12:00pm | 1:25 | 2:40 | 2:45 |
| 12:20pm | 1:45 | 3:00 | 3:05 |

Louisville, Hardinsburg & Western R. R.
No. 2 TIME TABLE.
TAKING EFFECT JULY 29, 1891.

| West Bound Trains | | East Bound Trains | |
|-------------------|---------|-------------------|--------|
| Daily | Daily | Daily | Daily |
| 11:30am | 12:30pm | 9:30am | 9:35am |
| 12:00 | 1:00 | 10:00 | 10:05 |
| 12:30 | 1:30 | 10:30 | 10:35 |
| 1:00 | 2:00 | 11:00 | 11:05 |
| 1:30 | 2:30 | 11:30 | 11:35 |
| 2:00 | 3:00 | 12:00 | 12:05 |
| 2:30 | 3:30 | 12:30 | 12:35 |
| 3:00 | 4:00 | 1:00 | 1:05 |
| 3:30 | 4:30 | 1:30 | 1:35 |
| 4:00pm | 5:00pm | 2:00 | 2:05 |

THE LOUISVILLE & ST. LOUIS AIR LINE.
(L. E. & ST. L. R. R.)

SHORTEST, QUICKEST AND BEST LINE TO

St. Louis, Evansville
AND ALL POINTS

West and South-West.

Time-Card in Effect Sept. 1890.

Lv. Louisville 8:10 a.m. - 9:15 p.m. - 4:22 p.m.
Ar. St. Louis 7:40 - 7:40 - 10:40
Evansville 1:25 - 1:25 - 10:40pm

For further information, call on or address
R. A. CAMPBELL,
Gen'l Pass. Ag't, Evansville, Ind.
J. B. CAMPBELL,
D. P. A., Evansville, Ky.
City Ticket Office, S. W. Cor. Third & Main St.
Evansville, Ky.

In the course of the night it began to rain, and the next morning the creek along which we had herded the cattle was a running flood with enough water in it to float a gunboat. Some of the cattle were on one side of this torrent and some on the other, and Bell and myself with two others were ordered across to drive the animals over. We had to swim our horses, and as my companion could not swim I kept close to his side. With an oath he whispered to me, "I'd rather have a battery fire on me than go back over that creek."

The cattle were sent after appeared to have as much dread of the flood as had Bell. They bolted into the woods, and then began a race on our part to head them off, work which the two armed men were quite willing we should do. We dashed into the woods after a steer, and by the time we had turned him we must have been at least half a mile from the rest of the party. Our horses were quite as good as any with the sergeant. There was no need for consultation. A glance and Bell and myself understood each other. We left the steer to take care of himself, and at a gallop we made for the south, the direction of Atlanta and of Sherman's army.

We had learned from the sergeant the night before that we were in Cherokee county and not more than thirty miles from a straight line from Marietta, which was in Union hands. We kept in the by-ways, never slacking our speed till noon, when the poor, steaming animals reeled as if they must fall. When it became evident that they could not stand the strain and that we could make better time on foot, particularly as we were in the Alatoona hills, we dismounted, took off the bridles and saddles, and gave freedom to the noble creatures who had served our purpose so well.

In the afternoon the booming of guns could be heard in the direction of Atlanta, and the sound urged us on as a spur does a jaded steed. We had not eaten since morning, but although we could see lights after nightfall we decided to run no risks, but to go without food for a week, if need be, or till we reached our lines. We slept on the crest of a wooded hill, and with the first gleam of day we were up, but early though it was the guns that had been silent during the night were again booming in sudden echoes along the hills.

CHAPTER XI.
IN THE UNION LINES AT LAST.

From July 28 to Aug. 1 Bell and I remained in hiding in the dense woods advancing, as if we were pickets of the opposing armies. When within about a hundred yards of the fire I heard loud voices, and, with my heart leaping like a wounded bird, I halted and compressed my lips to get my brain and my hair under control.

Prepared for flight if the situation should warrant it, I dropped on my hands and knees and "snaked" toward the fire. Two men in ragged Confederate uniforms, one with a bandage about his head and the other and younger of the two with his arm in a sling, were lying down and looking up at my companion, as I had often seen wounded prisoners look up at their captors. Bell moved about and kept on talking like a man who was master of the situation. I advanced at once to the fire, assured that these men were wounded deserters from Hood's army, and my surprise proved to be right.

When I came up Bell introduced me to the strangers, of whose names I took no note. They were Confederate cavalrymen from Meridian, Miss. They had recently been wounded by General Garard's troopers in the attack on Decatur, and were now trying to make their way back to their old homes. The poor fellows were thoroughly licked. One of them, who had been at Center college, Kentucky, when the war broke out, and who was a fine young fellow of unusual intelligence, as he pressed both hands to his wounded head—though I am sure it was not to ease the pain of the saber cut—said:

"Since the day Joe Johnston left us I've felt that the game was up. Every death in battle after this is a murder. Myself and my friend want to get home and to stay there till our wounds are healed, then, as we no longer have a country, we'll make our way to Mexico and fight against Maximilian. My God! it would have been better for both if we'd been planted on the field."

The certainty of final success made me forget my own sufferings and anxiety, in sympathy with those brave fellows. Each had a good supply of bread and meat in his haversack, so Bell had no trouble in getting us up a fair supper. After it was over I got a can of water from a spring near by, and, as I was somewhat vain of my surgical skill, I washed out the stiff bandages and dressed their wounds, neither of which was serious enough to prevent travel. For this attention our Confederate friends were full of gratitude.

The clearings bordering the roads were pitted by the hoofs of cavalry horses. The trees back of hastily constructed obstructions had mapped on their bullet-scared sides and blistered arms the story of stubborn assault and desperate defense. The roads were now red and rutted rifts, strewn with the debris of broken wagons, splintered gunstocks and the fotsam and jetsam that mark the ebb and flow of the battle's tide.

There is a sublimity in the desolation of the desert, where nature erects her arid barriers against man's possession; but there is a horror indescribable in the desolation of war when witnessed by one who has had no hand in the destruction.

On the afternoon of Aug. 3, and when nearly starved into insanity, my stout-hearted friend and myself came on an ash heap in the woods. About the place were pieces of broken crockery, rusty culinary tin, blankets hastily abandoned, a child's hood, a pair of little shoes much worn at the toes and a dilapidated doll with one red stocking on its remaining leg. Evidently this had been the camp of a family flying from the army, and they must have been hurried from the place. The child's shoes and the doll told all this and much more.

In our search we found about a peck of sweet potatoes, a few ears of unhusked green corn and about six pounds of bacon tied up in a corn sack. We devoured some of the meat and corn raw, and it was not till our burning hunger was partly appeased that Bell recalled he had a flint and steel, and that this would be an excellent place to camp for the night.

It was now near sunset, and while my companion was making a fire, which was to be extinguished as soon as all the provisions were cooked, I went off to examine the surroundings.

It was so near night when I returned to Bell that I could see the glow of the camp through the trees far in front, yet this assurance of his safety and whereabouts did not draw me away from a caution that had become habitual. I kept in the shadow of the trees in advancing, as if we were pickets of the opposing armies. When within about a hundred yards of the fire I heard loud voices, and, with my heart leaping like a wounded bird, I halted and compressed my lips to get my brain and my hair under control.

Prepared for flight if the situation should warrant it, I dropped on my hands and knees and "snaked" toward the fire. Two men in ragged Confederate uniforms, one with a bandage about his head and the other and younger of the two with his arm in a sling, were lying down and looking up at my companion, as I had often seen wounded prisoners look up at their captors. Bell moved about and kept on talking like a man who was master of the situation. I advanced at once to the fire, assured that these men were wounded deserters from Hood's army, and my surprise proved to be right.

When I came up Bell introduced me to the strangers, of whose names I took no note. They were Confederate cavalrymen from Meridian, Miss. They had recently been wounded by General Garard's troopers in the attack on Decatur, and were now trying to make their way back to their old homes. The poor fellows were thoroughly licked. One of them, who had been at Center college, Kentucky, when the war broke out, and who was a fine young fellow of unusual intelligence, as he pressed both hands to his wounded head—though I am sure it was not to ease the pain of the saber cut—said:

"Since the day Joe Johnston left us I've felt that the game was up. Every death in battle after this is a murder. Myself and my friend want to get home and to stay there till our wounds are healed, then, as we no longer have a country, we'll make our way to Mexico and fight against Maximilian. My God! it would have been better for both if we'd been planted on the field."

The certainty of final success made me forget my own sufferings and anxiety, in sympathy with those brave fellows. Each had a good supply of bread and meat in his haversack, so Bell had no trouble in getting us up a fair supper. After it was over I got a can of water from a spring near by, and, as I was somewhat vain of my surgical skill, I washed out the stiff bandages and dressed their wounds, neither of which was serious enough to prevent travel. For this attention our Confederate friends were full of gratitude.

The clearings bordering the roads were pitted by the hoofs of cavalry horses. The trees back of hastily constructed obstructions had mapped on their bullet-scared sides and blistered arms the story of stubborn assault and desperate defense. The roads were now red and rutted rifts, strewn with the debris of broken wagons, splintered gunstocks and the fotsam and jetsam that mark the ebb and flow of the battle's tide.

There is a sublimity in the desolation of the desert, where nature erects her arid barriers against man's possession; but there is a horror indescribable in the desolation of war when witnessed by one who has had no hand in the destruction.

On the afternoon of Aug. 3, and when nearly starved into insanity, my stout-hearted friend and myself came on an ash heap in the woods. About the place were pieces of broken crockery, rusty culinary tin, blankets hastily abandoned, a child's hood, a pair of little shoes much worn at the toes and a dilapidated doll with one red stocking on its remaining leg. Evidently this had been the camp of a family flying from the army, and they must have been hurried from the place. The child's shoes and the doll told all this and much more.

In our search we found about a peck of sweet potatoes, a few ears of unhusked green corn and about six pounds of bacon tied up in a corn sack. We devoured some of the meat and corn raw, and it was not till our burning hunger was partly appeased that Bell recalled he had a flint and steel, and that this would be an excellent place to camp for the night.

It was now near sunset, and while my companion was making a fire, which was to be extinguished as soon as all the provisions were cooked, I went off to examine the surroundings.

It was so near night when I returned to Bell that I could see the glow of the camp through the trees far in front, yet this assurance of his safety and whereabouts did not draw me away from a caution that had become habitual. I kept in the shadow of the trees in advancing, as if we were pickets of the opis here. So is our stock of

SPRING

NEW GOODS!

Come and examine our goods for yourself. We have the largest lot of Ginghams, Ladies' Dress Goods, and NOTIONS.

in the city. We offer you bargains in both.

QUALITY AND PRICES.
Our motto is "Quick Sales and Small Profits."

WITT & MEADOR,
HARDINSBURG, KY.

City Bakery and Confectionery.

You will find constantly a full stock of Fresh Bread, Rolls, CAKES, CANDIES, ETC.

Also a full line of Fancy Groceries, Canned Goods, and an excellent assortment of Fresh and Pure Candies.

Everything fresh and clean.

We solicit your orders for cakes and confections for special occasions which we are prepared to fill on short notice.

CHAS. RIEDEL & CO.,
Cor. Wall and Poplar Sts.
CLOVERPORT, KY.

GUSTON.

Misses Cora Ashcraft and Bettie Young, of Sandy Hill, were in town last week shopping.

Mrs. Jesse Ashcraft and Mrs. Davis Young, of Sandy Hill, were in town last week dealing.

Mrs. Richard Wadler, of Ekron, is spending several days with her mother, Mrs. Mary Mansford.

Mr. Chas. Beard was presented with a handsome open face gold watch on the first day of April, instead of the usual April fool.

Miss Alice Haddox, who has been spending the winter with her uncle, Mr. George Richardson, returned, last week, to her home in Louisville.

Stop! Stop! Stop!
—AT THE—Bankrupt
STORE

You will find everything you want to eat:

SUGAR, COFFE,
FLOUR, MEAT, VEGETABLES,
CANNED GOODS,
CIGARS,
TOBACCO,
FIGS,
RAISINS, ETC.

In fact everything in the Grocery & Confectionery Line

Thankful for past favors. Respectfully solicit you to call, we take great pleasure in waiting upon you.

J. H. Moorman,
Manager.

I. W. HARPER'S WHISKEY.

The medical fraternity, backed up by carefully compiled statistics, is almost a unit in declaring that a moderate use of stimulants conduces to long life. It is also admitted that an old whiskey is by far the best stimulant that can be used. Leading physicians recommend the I. W. Harper Whiskey, because it is pure, possesses of a superior flavor and bouquet, and is not offered for sale until it is old and thoroughly matured.

Sold by M. F. POPHAM,
Cloverport, Ky.

Third Street Planing Mill
MANUFACTURERS OF Flooring, Ceiling, Siding, Brackets, DOOR & WINDOW FRAMES, MOULDINGS.

We wish to inform the Building Public that the Third Street Planing Mill has been refurnished with the latest improved wood-working machinery, and that we are now ready to furnish all kinds of builders material in our line, such as Flooring, Ceiling, Siding, Door and Window Frames, Brackets, Mouldings, &c.

Can furnish material either in Poplar or Long Leaf Yellow Pine, the finest finishing lumber ever in this city. Have just received 150,000 feet of clear seasoned Yellow Poplar. And a large shipment of

SASH, DOORS AND BLINDS

We are able to compete with any other planing mill in this section of country, and you can save ten per cent. by seeing us before purchasing elsewhere. The trade of Breckenridge and Perry counties especially solicited.

Third Street Planing Mill,
CLOVERPORT, KY.

HARRY GUENTHER & BRO.,
401-407 East Main St.,
OWENSBORO, KY.

ENGINES
From 1 to 500 horse power.

DO GENERAL

FOUNDRY AND MACHINE BUSINESS.

Manufacture Engines, Boilers, Saw and Grist Mills, Cane Mills and Evaporators, Lath and Shingle Machines. Keep in Stock New and Second-hand Machinery, Steam and Hand Pumps, Gum and Leather Belting, Iron and Wood Pulleys, Shafting, Hangers, Brass Goods, Pipe and Fittings, Circular Saws, Machine Oils, And all kinds of Mill and Machine Supplies.

PRICES and all business guaranteed to be satisfactory. Correspondence solicited.

GIVE US A CALL.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE! FURNITURE!
MICHAEL HAMMAN,

The regular and reliable Furniture dealer is always on hand with a full stock including Sewing Machines, Coffins, Bural Caskets, Pictures, Frames, Trimmings, Etc.

His prices shall be such, quality considered, that no legitimate house can undersell him, and he is determined to meet the market, let the price be what it may. Always call on him and ascertain prices before purchasing elsewhere. He means just what he says. He cannot be undersold.

STEPHENSPORT SHINGLE and LATH FACTORY.
CHRIST AND JOSEPH BEST, PROPS.
MANUFACTURER OF
Shingles, Laths, Hogshead Staves
AND DIMENSION STUFF.
Stephensport, Ky.
Capital, $750,000.

The Tradesmens National Bank OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.
291 BROADWAY.
Organized as a State Bank 1823—Under National Act 1865.
James E. Granian, Pres't. Logan C. Murray, Vice-Pres't. Oliver F. Berry, Cashier
CORRESPONDENCE INVITED. ACCOUNTS INVITED.

MILLINERY
MRS. S. C. SUTTON & SON,
HARDINSBURG, KY.
I have just been in Louisville purchasing a new stock of Millinery Goods for my Spring trade. You are invited to attend my SPRING OPENING APRIL 12 and 13.
All the latest styles in Hats and Trimmings will be displayed and an idea given the ladies of what they should wear this Spring and Summer.
MRS. S. C. SUTTON & SON.

NOTICE, FRUIT GROWERS!
Make your orders by the 1st of October and we will furnish you any kind of

FRUIT TREES
SMALL TREES
GREENHOUSES, &c.
ZACK GREEN,
Manager Hardinsburg Nursery,
HARDINSBURG, KY.

I beg to announce to the public that I am appointed Sole Agent for the famous Blend of Hand Made Rye Mash Bourbon Whisky, of Louisville, Ky., which is guaranteed to be pure.
W. L. HEATON, Sole Agent,
Cloverport, Ky.
Have your horse and jack bill printed at this office.