Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request. Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Mr. Julian Brown has planted a number of fine shade trees in front of his store property on Main street which will add much to the appearance of the sight. Up the same street a square, Mrs. George Jordan has set out trees around her corner lot. In a few years the location will have plenty of shade and beauty at which will add much to the value of the property. It costs but very little to plant trees and it seems that every lot holder along the town's Main street, at least, should help to beautify the place by this means as well as to add to the comfort of the many toilers who are compelled to hike up and down this barren thoroughfare three times a day and more when Old Sol is doing his best to melt the earth.

How to Boil Water.

To boil water would seem to be a very simple thing, and yet the late Charles Delmonico used to say that very few people knew how to do it. "The secret is," he said, "in putting good fresh water into a clean kettle already quite warm and setting the water to boiling quickly and then taking it right off for use in tea, coffee or other drinks before it is spoiled. To let it steam and simmer and evaporate until the good water is in the atmosphere and the lime and iron and dregs only left in the kettle is what makes a great many people sick, and it is worse than no water at all." For water boiled like this and flavored with a few drops of lemon juice Mr. Delmonico used to charge as much as for his best liquors, and he often recommended it to his customers and friends who complained of loss of appetite. It is worth trying.—Good Living.

The Alternative.

The doctor had been called to see a pitman's wife. On coming down from her room the doctor said to the husband: "Well, Geordy, I'm glad to say there isn't very much wrong with your wife. It's a case of too much blood, and we'll try an old fashioned remedy. Just get a leech at the chemist's and put it on her, and I believe you'll find her better when I call in the morning." Next day the doctor called again and meeting the husband, who was a bit of a sportsman, like many of his kind, said: "And how's your wife this morning, Geordy? Better, I expect." "Nai, man, but she's worse," replied Geordy. "Worse!" exclaimed the doctor. "But did you do as I told you last night?" "Well, not exactly, for I couldn't get a leech, so I put the ferret I' bed wi' er."—London Tatler.

Valuable Desolate Islands.

The most valuable desolate islands in the world are the Lankovs, in the Arctic ocean, off the mouth of the Lena, in Siberia. They are frost bound and utterly barren save for arctic moss, but they contain such enormous quantities of fossil ivory that they are exceedingly valuable—in fact, although uninhabited save for the ivory diggers and of themselves incapable of supporting life, they produce a revenue of £1,000,000 a year.—London Queen.

A Bengalese Peculiarity.

A doctor remarks: "What strikes one most at a Bengal hospital is the lack of sense of proportion in the estimation of diseases. A man is gravely perturbed because he has not sneezed for three months, but he is comparatively indifferent to the fact that he exhibits the early signs of leprosy."

Rustic Folly.

"You'd never think Kijones was from the country, would you? His manner is perfect and his dress fashionable." "Yes, but he gave himself dead away on the street car today." "How?" "Got up and gave his seat to a woman."—Cleveland Leader.
