Testimonial of Dr. Esteban Vidal y Rios, office Ponce, Porto Rico. Doctor of Medicine and Surgery of the University of Madrid, honorable member of the Faculty of Barcelona, Catalonia, Spain. Has practiced in the hospitals of Paris and has been admitted to the bar of Porto Rico.

"I certify that I prescribe Peruna, a remedy for pulmonary diseases, manufactured by the Peruna Drug Co., of Columbus, Ohio, U. S. A., and that I have been surprised by the quick, sure results and its good pharmacological formula." E. VIDAL Y RIOS, Ponce, P. R.

Pe-ru-na in Hot Countries.

In some countries the atmosphere is a natural tonic. Low temperature, high altitude, with an atmosphere rich in oxygen, are invigorating to the people. Such people are vigorous of body, quick in action, and enterprising. Other countries are not so fortunate. High temperature, low altitude, little oxygen, and the atmosphere naturally depressing.

Tonics become almost a necessity of the everyday life. A scientific tonic in a large degree mitigates the untoward effect of a depressing climate.

A great many years ago Dr. Hartman devised Peruna. Its manufacture has been under his watchful care ever since.

To make of it a reliable and safe tonic which could be taken any length of time without producing a drug habit has been the ambition of Dr. Hartman.

That he has succeeded in bringing Peruna up to this high ideal is apparent by the world-wide reputation which it has attained. Peruna is a tonic which is applicable in all depressing states of the system. It may be used by those recovering from acute ailments, or those who are depressed by climatic influences.

The Price Of Wheat.

It has never been possible for speculators to affect for a long time the price of any commodity of general production and consumption. The excitement in the wheat-market a few weeks ago, accompanied as it was by a rise in the price and also by a fall, is no exception to the general rule.

In the long run, the price of any article is governed by the amount of it in the market and by the demand for it. This simple elementary law of economics applies universally. It applies when two millionaires bid against each other for the possession of a painting. The man who is willing to pay the most gets it. As to wheat, when the price gets beyond the ability of the poor to pay, they buy corn or something else, and live on that. Yet of course there is temporary artificial tampering with prices in an effort to get a "corner" on the crop. No one defends the practise.

The wheat situation, however, deserves serious attention of the country, for unless there is an increase of production, the price will be permanently higher than it is now. In 1880, less than thirty years ago, the United States produced ten bushels of wheat for every person in the country. Last year it produced only seven and a half bushels. Production is not keeping pace with population. The amount available for export is falling off rapidly at the same time that the demand from abroad is becoming more urgent.

There is only one possible result, and that is an increase in the price. This undesirable outcome can be prevented only by planting more acres of wheat, or by making those acres already devoted to the crop yield more.

The Secretary of Agriculture has frequently called attention to the failure of farming to keep pace with the expansion of population, and to the prospect of an increase in the prosperity of the farmers through high prices for their crops so long as this condition prevails.—Youth's Companion.

J. C. W. Beckham.

In the turmoil of fractional politics, former Governor Beckham has come in for his full share of contumely, deserved or not, as foe or friend may judge; but since he has entered the editorial field, promising to content himself with observation and comment, our mind recurs to a statement made by one who knew him, stripped of all the soil of politics. Ben James, an eminent lawyer, and one of the attorneys for the United States in settling the Spanish war claims at the Parish conference, made this comment on J. C. W. Beckham: "I taught that boy in school and I predicted a great future for him. He was the quickest, most persistent and most highly principled youth I ever met. He had no apparent fault in school, and no bad habits."—Paducah Sun.
