

THE SITUATION OVER IN OHIO

Republicans Divided As to Choice For Governor.

LOOKING TO THE MAIN POINT

In the Convention Upon Which Eyes of the Nation Are Turning This Week the Important Consideration With Leaders Is That Everything Must Be Done to Restore the President's Own State to the Republicans.

The Republicans of Ohio began early to tune up for their state convention, the first session of which was held in Columbus Tuesday. On only one point is there anything like unanimity of sentiment in the throngs of Republicans on hand, and this is—everything must be done to save the president's own state next fall.

Most of the Republicans on the ground admit the Democrats nominated an exceedingly strong ticket at Dayton and that the slightest mistake now might lead to the re-election of Governor Judson Harmon. It is asserted that for the president to lose his own state next fall in the first election following the passage of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and other important Taft measures would be a dire political calamity and might lead to mighty embarrassing conditions in the presidential year of 1912.

Senators Burton and Dick and their friends have discussed the situation as to candidates for governor, and while George B. Cox and his friends continue to stoutly assert that Oren Britt Brown, judge of the court of common pleas at Dayton, is surely to be Very respectfully,

M. H. BEARD, Cashier

With this statement we close the twentieth year of our business life and the fourth year of our service in handling estates as guardian, trustee, administrator, etc. In these twenty years there have been good times and bad, times when money was close and times when money was easy and investments difficult to find. We feel that no one will question our claim that we have met all of these situations with credit to ourselves and satisfaction to our patrons. In flush times of plentiful money we have managed our business in a conservative manner and kept clear of wild investments. In close times we have been as liberal with our borrowers as their necessities demanded, and safety permitted. We believe we can assure the public that we are in position to give them even better service in the future than we have in the past, because we are larger and stronger, and have gained in knowledge by our twenty years experience.

NICHOLAS LONGWORTH

nominated, if not on the first, certainly on the second ballot, the present situation is that it is Brown against the field and a strong field, consisting of Warren G. Harding, James Rudolph Garfield, Carmi Thompson, Grenville W. Mooney and Representative Nicholas Longworth, ex-President Roosevelt's son-in-law.

The process of elimination and induction has begun. Cox claims 450 delegates for Brown of the 1,066 in the convention. The field insists that Cox is off on his reckoning.

If Senator Burton and Senator Dick received any encouragement whatever from Taft on their visit to Beverly it was to see to it that neither Judge Brown nor Garfield was nominated for governor. Brown is an old-time follower of Cox, and Cox, it is insisted by those experienced in Ohio politics, is reaching out for control of the Republican organization in the state. Cox for a decade and more has been the Republican dictator of Cincinnati. Since the retirement of Foraker the state has been without a leader, and there are astute ones who say they are perfectly satisfied that Burton himself desires to be state leader and that the developments of the next two days will surely portray this ambition on his part.

In the effort to eliminate Judge Brown it is pointed out that in this progressive period no old-time political boss like Brown and no dictatorial political boss like Cox can be recognized, and that Brown in a campaign against Harmon would be beaten. Then, too, it is added that all the Democrats would have to do for campaign material would be to trot out W. H. Taft's speech at Akron in 1905, when as secretary of war in Roosevelt's cabinet, he said that if he could be at home in Cincinnati to vote on election day he would certainly vote against Boss Cox's candidates. Coming along to Representative Longworth, his friends say that under no conditions is he a candidate for governor. The story is that Longworth, who gets his nominations for congress by the favor of Mr. Cox of Cincinnati, informed Mr. Cox as early as last March that he was not and would not be a candidate for governor; that he desired to remain in congress, which was his best field of action. Thereupon Wade Ellis's executive committee selected Longworth to be temporary chairman of this convention.

In his speech to the convention Mr. Longworth is to sound the keynote of the Republican campaign in the state. He is a member of the ways and means committee which framed the Payne part of the tariff bill.
