KENTUCKY HONORED

Beautiful Dinner Given at the Home of Mrs. Geo. W. Short in Oklahoma—Tribute Paid to Old Home.

Fourteen ladies received the following invitations from Mrs. Short: "I wish to dispense Kentucky hospitality by serving an old fashioned pig dinner. Will be delighted to have you as my guest Wednesday at 1 p. m."

Promptly at 1 o'clock the fourteen arrived, for they knew what that invitation really meant. Mrs. Haynes, at the door, greeted each with a smile, and made them welcome in her charm in style. The living room was cozy and warm and decorated with an immense bouquet of American beauty roses. The guests were ushered into the dining room, where the snowy linen, silver, cut glass and "dew drops" adorned the long table seating the entire joyous party. The artistic center piece was lovely and most appropriate to the occasion. A large plateau of blue grass occupied the center of the table. In the middle of this was an old Kentucky log cabin. A gravel path led up to the door, bordered on each side with daffodils and pine trees all about made a sighing sound, and "the green grass grew all around—all around."

Two Kentucky darkies came in to wait upon the "white folks," Mrs. Short (Dinah), Mrs. V. B. Hayes, (Sally). They had used burnt cork and their shining ebony faces, red bandanas, black dresses, snowy aprons and capes, courtesies and lingo, would have made the genuine Kentucky darky sigh with envy. A delightful old-fashioned, appetizing and bounteous five-course dinner was served, with all the Kentucky accessories, which was most thoroughly enjoyed by all the congenial party. The festive waitresses were perfect in their duties, and afforded the greatest merriment throughout the repast.

A Victrola dispensed old-time music and all the sweet Kentucky songs. During the dining the guests joined in the chorus of 'My Old Kentucky Home.' Mrs. E. T. Haynes acted as toast-mistress:

"We are guests today of a hostess Whose welcome is the gladdest, To the gayest and the saddest, In honor of her old home State, Where the blue grass was the bluest And the friendships are the truest— In old Kentucky."

"I now introduce to you a talented daughter of the South, who will tell you in her own charming manner something of our dear old Kentucky home, Mrs. Hynds."

Toast to Kentucky.

"Each of us have a picture that is hung on memory's wall, That never from its place secure, can fade or time crumble fall— It's our own dear childhood's home, that's tenderly brought to view, And our vision is often blurred and dim in a mist that shades to blue To some of us, that means Kentucky."

"We will join our hostess here today, in honoring her native State, In toasting her women fair, her opera stars so grand and great, Her gallant men in Peace and War,

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

who stood bravely at the cannon's mouth, Her statesmen and scholars, too, who have brought fame to the Sunny South— This is Old Kentucky.

"Her mighty hills looming high, world known for their 'mountain dews,' Her meadows rolling for the chase, covered o'er with grasses blue.

Her horses bred for winning in the races of the world, leded the band plays a triumphant air, when her banner is unfurled, That is Old Kentucky.

"Her brilliant cardinal, and partridge whistling 'Bob White's' merry tune, Her mocking birds a warbling for the camp meeting there in June.

Her darkies in their Cabin home, sing and dance by the harvest moon. And the little pikaninny's capers cut to Mammy's happy croon. That's Old Kentucky.

"Our hostess has brought to us Kentucky's skies in her eyes of clearest blue, She has brought to us Kentucky's sunshine in her cherry manners, too. She has brought to us Kentucky's love, devotion and merry ways. That takes us back along the track, to our Golden Yesterdays. Thanks to Old Kentucky.

"The name 'Kentucky' to our hostess, makes her warm blood start: The name 'Kentucky' is graven hard in the depths of her loyal heart. Higher, clearer, and stronger still is its call that oft dims her eyes, As she sits and dreams in the gloaming of her childhood's paradise, Long live Kentucky and our Hostess."

Mrs. Haynes—"I am sure Aunt Dina will agree with me that all Kentucky will think it an honor to have been born in the Blue Grass State, for 'For traditions make us proudest, So let's give praise the loudest, To old Kentucky, where The moonshine is the clearest, And it makes you feel the queerest."

"I introduce you to our hostess, Aunt Dinah." Mrs. Short responded: "Here's to old Kentucky.

The State where I was born, The only State in the Union Where the people drink—their corn; With its vast fields of tobacco, Rich pastures of blue grass,— Where the women are beautiful And the horses are fast. Here's to Oklahoma.

My adopted home in the West, Its resources are unlimited, But I love Kentucky best. Its fields are much broader, 'Tis richer in its ore, But here's to old Kentucky, With love forever more.

Let us drink to both States, prosperity, A dewdrop from the moonshine stills of Kentucky."

Those present were: Mesdames E. T. Haynes, W. M. Hynds, V. B. Hayes, Tom Cox, John Grainger, J. C. Hodes, Ed. Rines, C. O. Johnson, E. C. Lake, Charles McPherran, Prince Davis, R. E. Powers and W. E. Utterback.—Durant Daily Democrat.

enridge County High School, assisted by some outside talent, will give at the city hall, Hardinsburg, Monday night, February 22, the play entitled "The Hoodoo." There are 22 characters in this play, and it being a comedy in 3 acts, there is fun from start to finish. Where this play has been given it is said to be the best ever given by amateur players. Look out for cast of characters in next week's issue. You cannot miss this play.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary Amanda Scott, wife of William H. Scott, deceased, was born in Franklin county, Virginia, October 27, 1846, and died January 28, 1915, of asthma contributory lagrippe.

She with her parents came to Breckenridge county, Ky., when about four years of age, and resided there most all her life. She was married to Wm. H. Scott February 21, 1870. To this union two children were born, P. E. Scott and (Eddie) Mrs. Geo. Gray.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Belle Board, of Owensboro, and Mrs. Seth Tomlin, of Jeffersonville, Ind.

She possessed those Puritanic traits of character which made her positive of thought, firm in conviction and ready in action. She professed faith in Christ and joined the Baptist church about the year 1887, and lived a devout Christian, and was always ready to lend a helping hand to the needy.

Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep, From which none ever wake to weep; A calm and undisturbed repose, Unbroken by the last of foes.

Asleep in Jesus far from thee, Thy kindred and their graves may be; But thine is still a blessed sleep, From which none ever wake to weep.
