MAKE IT A HAPPY THANKSGIVING.

It is ours to make this a happy Thanksgiving if we will be thankful that God has given us minds with which we can appreciate the beauties of life and nature, and with which we may enjoy the glorious companionship of loved ones and of genuine friends.
Be thankful that most of our troubles never happened and those that did passed over like the storm.
Be thankful for what we have been able to do for others more than what has been done for us, for we serve God by serving His children, and that we have been given the health and strength for this service.
Be thankful for our nation where God has given men and women the courage to stand for right in all things.
And finally be thankful that He has helped us through another year with its alternating joys and sorrows, and may we wait with hope and fortitude the things the next may bring forth.

FARM AND STOCK

Good first mules are in demand at Webster sold Vic Robertson two pair good prices. Geo. and Thos. Lyddan, last week for $1,100.
Thos. and Mike Lyddan, were in Louisville, last week and bought a car load of stock cattle at 7 1/2 cents.
Dennie Sheeran bought 3 head, 2 year old steers from Dr. Sphire for $100.
A. N. Skillman & Son turned down an offer of $20 round for their crop of Broad Leaf. The Skillmans are noted for raising fine crops of this type of tobacco.

In 1914, Mr. Beard won 1st. prize at B. F. Beard's Corn show, and the 1st. prize at the County Fair in 1915, and 1st. prize on white and yellow corn at B. F. Beard's annual corn show in 1915.
These shows, like the ones just held, were all hotly contested with many competing exhibits and all good high grade shows.
For five years Mr. Beard has been capturing the first prizes in all the shows held in the county and so far he is duly entitled to the honor of being the champion corn grower of Breckinridge county.

OLD STUFF.

Tom W. Jackson in Brooklyn Standard Union.
Why don't they pull off some new stunts in movie comedy?
To those who take in picture shows, A big relief 't would be.
We're tired of the same old stuff
Of thump and bang and bliff,
Of seeing a bologna knock
A fat man cold and stiff.
Now when you see a janitor
On screens in movie shows
Unwind a half dozen feet
Of rubber garden hose,
We know just what is coming next
And so of course, do you.
That ev'ry actor is to be
All thoroughly wet through.
And when we see a kitchen girl
Pick up a custard pie
We know that a policeman is
To get it in the eye.
And when the mistress rushes in
With motions of despair,
We know that she'll fall upside down
Across a kitchen chair.
And ev'ry broom in comedy
Must sweep a person's face,
Then all hands have a lively row,
And then an auto race.
They are pursued by looney cops
With speed that is intense,
Then all hands fall off of a cliff
Or smash into a fence.
Why can't we have screen comedies
Without a custard pie?
Without a villain with a bomb
To send folks to the sky?
Without a hose an auto wreck
And boobs in Chaplin shoes.
Why can't we have some real true fun
To cure us of the blues?
She (tenderly): "When did you first know you loved me?"
He: "When I began to get mad
when people said you were brainless and unattractive."

W. T. Stout bought a fine pair of mules from Zene Dunn for $425.
Dennie Sheeran has bought the following crops of tobacco, Cal Thurman's at $17, Felix Beavin's at $16 and Harrison Thurman's at $15 all round prices.
Mr. Balbridge has bought over 200,000 pounds of tobacco to be delivered at Stephensport. Prices for Burley from $20 to $40 round.
The heavy rain here Tuesday of this week will make a fine tobacco season. There is a lot of it stripped and ready for delivery. This will be a busy week for the farmers.

TOM BEARD CHAMPION CORN GROWER OF BRECKINRIDGE COUNTY.

Tom Beard is still the champion corn grower of Breckinridge county. At the Corn and Tobacco show given by The Bank of Hardinsburg & Trust Co., last Saturday, Mr. Beard captured three prizes on White corn, 1st, 3rd, and 4th. On yellow corn 1st prize.
At the Farmers Bank & Trust Co's, Corn show he captured 1st. premium on white corn.

MCCORMACK'S RECITAL

By a Spectator.
"Music has charms to sooth the savage breast."
These words must have recurred to some of Cloverport's representatives, the other night, as they were leaving the Armory, in Louisville, after listening with rapt attention to the heavenly harmonies produced by John McCormack's incomparable voice.

How otherwise explain the good humor of that "great crowd which no man could number," as it emerged from the immense building carried along by its own momentum, thru the single, solitary exit known to all, tho, to be sure, there must have been others, but it seemed that everybody was a bit superstitious and determined to go out the same way he came in.

This fact, however afforded ample opportunity to demonstrate one's good nature, and all apparently availed themselves of it, taking the pushing and shoving as "children of a larger growth," and waiving all claim to dignity and drawing-room decorum. They were still under the spell of the magician's voice, and the primordial instincts of the savage had no chance to assert themselves. Many of them, no doubt, would have to admit, with Lamb, that while organically incapable of a tune, sentimentally they were disposed to harmony, and that was transposed into the best of fellow-feeling. The artist of the evening had struck the key-note and as a result, his audience was unfit "for treasons, stratagems and spoils."

Yet his outward appearance did not betoken the wizard's power. How is it that we associate genius with eccentricity, with mannerism, poses, "airs," affectations? We are not surprised when they give demonstrations of the artistic temperament, and even "temper" when things go awry. But the tardiness of the crowd, and the barrage of the elements on that tin roof, failed to disturb the soloist, and his poise and good nature never for a moment deserted him.
Many at first failed to recognize him as he stood there, waiting for the audience to be seated, and this was due not only to the fact that he looks like a plain ordinary, every-day business man, but also because his published photographs represent him as younger than his appearance would seem to indicate.

But once the auditors realized that here was the great master of song, and one of the world's idols in the flesh, a feeling akin to awe came over them, soon to be changed however into the most enthusiastic devotion, as the mellow tones of his angelic voice began to vibrate in that vast space, just a little too vast perhaps for absolutely every one to enjoy, as he would wish, this feast of sound.
It was good indeed, to see there the happy smiling faces of so many of Cloverport's music-loving people, as they relieved that sense of loneliness experienced by some when surrounded by thousands of strangers.
We hope they were as delighted with the recital as we were, and if so, no doubt the memory of this unique entertainment will abide with them till they hear the music "writ in the climate of heaven, in the language spoken by angels."

JUST AROUND TOWN.

By E. G.
The Breckinridge-Bank of Cloverport has had the front of its building greatly improved with a coat of paint.
The building occupied by the Kentucky Creamery branch has been given a new coat of paint, blue and yellow, gay in colors but attractive.
Geo Harris, who recently bought the Stader Livery barn, has added a new office and feed room to the building.
W. J. Worden has added to his house a large bay window, and is building a concrete wall around part of the lower part of his yard.
J. F. McCreary has sold his store house near the depot to Frank Compton, of Harned. Mr. Compton will take over the stock of Frank Roberts and put in a full line of groceries and general merchandise.

This time last year when Floyd Carter was wading the mud of Flanders, by day and dreaming by night, of big roasted Thanksgiving turkeys in the hills of old Breckinridge, he swore if he ever got home again, he was going to start a Thanksgiving turkey ranch. So when the news came for him to embark homeward bound, he was as happy as a June Bug, and as he spied the statue of the Goddess of Liberty, he took off his hat and looked the goddess straight in the face and said: "Old gal, take a good look at me, if you ever see my face again, you will have to come to the hills of Breckinridge to see it." So Floyd has decided to drive a peg and has bought of Mrs. Gilbert her farm on the pike, known as the John Furrow Farm, and will now settle down to raise Thanksgiving turkeys.

With two new stores to be opened up under new management, and the prospect of another one soon on the Hill, the average citizen will find plenty of places to deal with near their doors. The merchant who never advertises what he has to sell, is going to find his trade slipping away.
Mathias Miller, through his attorney V. G. Babbage, has sold to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Pate the two story frame building opposite Bolter's Blacksmith shop.
The building will be remodeled and placed in tip top shape, and will make an attractive addition to that part of the town.

Let the pullets become accustomed to open-front, fresh-air houses early in the fall. Such practice means healthier birds and more eggs when cold weather arrives.

EVENTS THAT TRANSPYRED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Taken From The Breckinridge News, Wednesday, Nov. 26, 1894

In Cloverport.
Hogs were quoted on the Louisville market yesterday at $4.60 for the best packers.
The marriage of Mr. Bob McGlothlan, of Irvington, and Miss Bettie Drury, of Bewleyville, was announced to take place yesterday at the bride's home.
The K. P's. served a "spread" at their Castle Hall. Thos. L. Wroe was the orator and made a beautiful talk on Pythianism.
J. W. Cary traded his Clifton Mill property to J. H. Aubrey for the latter's farm.
Hites Run—L. V. Chapin and A. L. Howard have moved into Jas. E. Chapin's old homestead.

Guston—Invitations have been issued to the marriage of Miss Kate Thompson and B. Worland Carter. The wedding will be solemnized at the Mt. Merino Catholic church. The contracting parties are so well known it is useless to add any comments.
The post office and store at McQuady conducted by Bland & Lyons was robbed of $100 worth of dry goods and several dollars in coppers.
Mrs. Phebe Skillman, of Hardinsburg, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Shacklett, of Hill Grove, Mrs. J. D. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Shacklett, Dr. and Mrs. Warfield and J. T. Massey, of Ekron, had dinner with Z. T. Cox, Tuesday, November 20.
Hardinsburg—R. N. Miller has qualified as County Attorney.

KENTUCKY--SOUTHERN OIL COMPANY

Incorporated
1705 INTER SOUTHERN BUILDING
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

To the people of Breckinridge County and elsewhere:

We invite you to join with us in an honest oil, enterprise. This company has only $25,000 authorized capital, which means that when we bring in one well of moderate production its stock will be worth par or better.

No one connected with the company draws a salary. Our expenses are very low.

We want just a few thousand dollars for development purposes. We have some of the most promising leases in BAREN COUNTY, KY., with good producing wells in every direction from them. They are in proven oil structure—not untried territory. Near pipe-line and ready market.

The quotation from letter given below is from one of the best oil authorities in Kentucky. It shows how our leases are regarded. Our prospects for striking oil are considered about 9 out of 10.

We will issue gold notes due two years after date, in denominations of $50 to $500, bearing interest at 8 per cent. and in addition will give with out extra charge, our stock to the amount of each note purchased.

Holders thus have a fixed charge against the company, and in addition, have the stock to insure full participation in such profits as may be earned.

The Secretary-Treasurer, who is also Manager, is a native of Breckinridge county and will treat you as a blood relative.

We will furnish bank references on application. Na fairer oil opportunity could be offered. We honestly believe that a little money invested with us will return substantial gains.

The organizers have their money in the game and must win in order to realize gain. Their gain is stockholders' gain. There is no chance for stock-jobbing in such a small company.

Futher particulars furnished when desired.

This offer, which is a practical guaranty against loss, is good for a limited time only.

"BOWLING GREEN, KY., JULY 16, 1919"

"MR. R. M. HAYES,
"Louisville, Ky.

"Have your letter in answer to mine, with reference to possible sale Furlong lease. Do not know just what I can get for this lease, but a large advance over what you paid. I want to be fair with you and give you the facts. Some oil men and geologists have been scouting in that section, they found I took this lease from land owner and came to me to buy it. I told them I had sold it, but might buy it back. I found they think it the center of a great oil pool. I would not make a price on my 40-acre lease adjoining the Furlong. I think you have the best lease in that section—may be another "Jewell" or "Moulder."

"Yours truly,
"A. W. BEATTY"
