WASHINGTON, Dec. 11, 1880.

Before this letter is in print the final session of the Forty-sixth Congress will have convened and the last message of the first President of the country will have been given to the country.

The short session of Congress is generally an active one. The limit of its duration is known and there is not much time for taking things easy. Among the members who have taken the impression prevalent that very little miscellaneous legislation will be accomplished during the present session.

The extra session talk has been a measure subside. Those Republicans who are expected to bring in a bill to amend the provisions of the act of March 3, 1879, relating to the organization of the courts, will have to wait until the next session.

Harper's Weekly works over the old time of our youth thus: We received from a correspondent the following somewhat incoherent account of a duel which was fought in his neighborhood.

On the morning train over the Shelbyville road, the other day, a farmer looking man walked the length of a car without finding an empty seat, and he slowly returned to the one occupied by a young man who was reading a newspaper.

What is it? What do you mean? I tumbled; but I won't give away! I tumbled; but I won't give away! I tumbled; but I won't give away!

What do you mean, sir? I mean that you're not the biggest corner on the hog market ever known in this country, and if you don't make a million dollars out of it, I'll eat cod-fish for a year.

This is the way a young lady Sabbath-school teacher in a New England town exhorted her class of boys: "Now, children, if you'll be good children—read your Bible, say your prayers, go to church, and never say naughty words—you'll go to heaven, and that will be perfectly splendid."

Baltimore, Md.—I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup personally and in my family for two or three years, and am prepared to say that there is nothing to compare to it as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, etc. James Corrie, D. C.

IN MEMORIAM. Mrs. Ida Carey, wife of Dr. Carey, of Indiana, and eldest daughter of Jesse B. Lays, of Todd county, Ky., died near Mt. Vernon, Ind., after a brief illness, on Thursday, Nov. 25th, 1880, in the 30th year of her age, and was brought back to her old home near Fairview, and interred in the family burying ground, in full view of the scenes of her happy childhood, and where all of her near and dear relatives and friends could gather around her simple resting place, to mingle their tears of sympathy and sorrowing affection, which sometimes lightens the burdens of grief that would otherwise almost break the bereaved heart.

Early in life she professed religion and joined the G. P. Church, at Goshe, of which she held a consistent member, ever striving to add more and more to the adornment of christian character.

She was married to Dr. Carey about eighteen months ago, who took her to his home in Indiana, where her sweet disposition brought happiness to his home-altar, such as is found only in the wedded union of congenial spirits.

But, human hopes are often doomed to a speedy disappointment, and for the life's sweetest enjoyments, for a few days, she was taken to the happy ones, and tears under the most endearing ties, and that too, when it is least expected.

Sad, indeed, it was for her to die beyond the reach of a loving mother's care, and with no sister's tender hand to soothe her dying terrors; though kind friends were not wanting to minister to her in her last hours, yet the stroke falls with double weight upon the hearts of her immediate relatives, thus being doubly devastating to her last farewell; yet that rest in the comforting assurance that the sad advent of earth will not be eternal. And the hope of a happy reunion in the brighter hereafter.

Her death was a great loss to the family, and she is sorely missed. Her death was a great loss to the family, and she is sorely missed.

NEW PROVIDENCE, TENN. Editor SOUTH KENTUCKIAN: An ambitious youth once applied for school for the purpose of being fitted to competition. In order to impress upon the mind of the lad the impossibility of such a thing, the rector filled a goblet so that no matter how deep it could be added, without overflowing, the water would be overflowing.

The lad was told to order my water, and he did it on the water, thereby proving that something may be added although not partaking of the substance before it. The contents of the South Kentuckian are the most interesting and complete, but they are not so much so as the South Kentuckian.

Tramps. Now that the elections are over, and there is no further need of voters in the North, the class of humanity known as "tramps" are beginning their immigrations to the South, where the genial climate offers a more agreeable existence than their inhospitable country. They tramp in a being sui generis. They stroll neither do they spin, and yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of them. No amount of persuasion or argument can induce them to stoop to honest labor. No threats can induce them to absent themselves from the snug places in the barn or in the haystack, where they are wont to congregate at night. They are inviolable. The bright winter sun brings them out of their holes into the ground-hog pictureque bags and tatters, like the Spanish beggars who are so graphically represented by Dore, as the characteristic garb. Hunger is their enemy, and their only ally. They persecute the leading lady of a legion of Kansas grasshoppers, and are at once the annoyance of honest country people, and the terror of unprotected women and children. Before the farmer, they have the manner of the great unwashed, and the spirit of the great unwashed. In their absence, and before the female members of the household, they assume an air of brutal arrogance, coupled not infrequently with horrible threats. If their lustre demands are not complied with, they will, as the saying is, "kick up a row." They are not to be trifled with. They are not to be trifled with. They are not to be trifled with.

A Chicken in the Egg. The hen has scarcely sat on her eggs twelve hours before some liniments of the head and body of the chicken appear. The heart may be seen to beat at the end of the second day of incubation. It has at this time somewhat the form of a horseshoe, but no blood appears. At the end of three days, the heart is more developed, and the blood vessels are beginning to be distinguished. The pulsation of it is very visible. One of these is the left ventricle, and the other is the right of the great artery. At the fifth hour one article of the heart appears, resembling a mouse folded down upon itself. The beating of the heart is first observed in the article, and afterward in the ventricle. At the end of seven hours the wings are distinguishable; and on the head two bubbles are seen for the brain. One is the bill, and the other for the head. The heart is seen for the first time at the fourth day. The two articles already visible, the heart and the head, are now clearly visible, and the bill is clearly visible, as well as the gall bladder. The bill becomes green at the end of five hundred and thirty-six hours; and if the chickens be taken out of its covering at this period, it is evidently moving itself. The feathers begin to show toward the two hundred and forty-fourth hour, and the skin becomes gray. At the two hundred and eighty-eight hour the legs are perfect. At the three hundred and thirty-six hour the feet are perfect. At the end of three hundred and thirty-six hours the feet are perfect. At the end of three hundred and thirty-six hours the feet are perfect.

A Wise Deacon. "Deacon Winder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family well the past season, when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors visiting so often?"

"Bro. Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time; kept my family well and saved the doctors' bills. There's nothing worth off on the line. I'll warrant it has cost you and the neighbors one to two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time."

"Deacon, I'll use your medicine hereafter."

INVENTORS AND PATENTERS. Should send for instructions, terms, references, &c. to Edson Brothers, Solicitors of Patents, Washington, D. C., who furnish the same without charge. Edson Brothers is a Washington law firm of large experience, having been established in 1856.

A Fight for a Cave. A cave in Eastern Tennessee is two miles in length, and has openings at both ends. The owner of the ground around each entrance charged for admission, and acted as guide for visitors. Their rivalry led to serious fights in the cave for each hold the other to be a trespasser. The one of the contestants hit upon a novel and effective means of ruining the other's business. He dug a shaft so as to admit a large stream in the cave at about the center, and as there was an incline in a favorable direction the water poured out at the enemy's opening, while his own was unobstructed. The water is to be made the subject of a law suit.

SAUBURIA SPRINGS. News is very scarce around here, as our town is small. Mr. J. J. Ogburn of the firm of Wood, Ogburn & Lowry, has retired from the grocery business and will move to Mount Pisgah to live, the business will be carried on by D. Wood and L. N. Lowry at the old stand.

We understand Mr. Tip McLean, of Pembroke has rented the farm of H. H. Holland and will move there to live, Mr. Holland returning to your city.

Our esteemed young friend Sam Penick will leave in a short time for Mission, where we will make his home in the future.

Mr. S. R. Lane of our neighborhood will in a short time move to Croton to establish in the grocery and confectionery business.

Miss Celestina Lander a pupil of the Russellville Female College last home recuperating her health. Orange blossoms don't seem to be in much demand as yet but don't give us out, we are coming slow but sure.

Tis near the close of the year and how sad to think how many of our best citizens of our county have passed away, and how many dear little children have died from the dreadfi disease scarlet fever in this county. COVETZE.
