GRAND LODGE K. OF P. 18TH ANNUAL SEASON.

Address of Welcome by Kt. Jas.
Breathitt and Response by G. P. C. A. J. Lovely.
A FULL ATTENDANCE.

The Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias of Kentucky was called to order in the sixteenth annual session Tuesday at 10:15 o'clock A. M., Grand Chancellor D. O. Wilkins in the chair.

Knight Jas. Breathitt, on behalf of Evergreen Lodge delivered the following address of welcome:
BROTHER KNIGHTS:
It is my pleasant duty to extend to you, the delegates to the Grand Lodge and visiting members of the order of Knights of Pythias, a warm and heartfelt welcome to our city and the hospitality and knightly courtesy of Evergreen Lodge, and need I say that we as a lodge are proud of the opportunity and honor of entertaining so distinguished a body of men.

The order of Knights of Pythias, although only in its infancy, is rapidly marching to the front rank of Brotherhoods and in a few more years it may be safely predicted that it will be second to none in membership and equal to any in deeds of friendship, charity and benevolence.

Having a membership of over one hundred and thirty thousand, bound together by the strongest ties of brotherly love and practicing charity and benevolence in an organized and effective manner, the world as well as the members, is necessarily better by reason of the existence of the order of Knights of Pythias.
And whatever may be said by the uninitiated against the existence and methods of secret orders it may be justly claimed for them that in every city care for the sick and afflicted and that men are drawn closer together in the bonds of brotherhood by their teachings and that by their charity and benevolence—two sisters of good—are nurtured, developed and trained for effective work in the world. And I believe that at the meeting of the grand assize in the Castle Hall of Eternity with angels for the jury and the Omnipotent God himself the judge and those who suffered in this life and were relieved by our charity, and those who by our benevolent and kindly offices were made better and happier, as the witnesses, that the verdict will be "well done good and faithful servants." It is not surprising that the conveying of the Grand Lodge of an order so great at present and so grand in possibilities for the future should be regarded by Evergreen Lodge as an event of unusual importance; or that we should have been on the tip-toe of anticipated pleasure for the last month, and, in the arbor of our feelings, that we should express at this moment the opinion that your stay in our midst will be remembered by Evergreen Lodge in after years as the crowning season of Pythian enjoyment.

Your coming has not only been looked forward to by this Lodge with anticipations of pleasure, but the good people of Hopkinsville have fully entered into the spirit of the day, and have opened their hearts and doors to you. Wherever you may go in our little city you will see the emblematic colors of our order over the business houses and homes of our people, and wreaths of evergreens and flowers to make our city attractive to your eyes, that it may be remembered by you as a place of true Kentucky hospitality, whose people fully appreciate your coming and stay and the noble order of which you are honored and trusted members.

In the great battle of life, for prudential reasons and caution's sake, it was well, ordinarily, that we keep our visors down that we may conceal from the unappreciative and inimical the sacred sentiments and motives of our lives; but let us on this occasion, one and all, without debate, raise our visors, feeling that here at least we shall meet only friends, whose hearts are full of sympathy, and whose cordial grasp of the hand and welcoming smiles will be free from any guile.

Besides the knightly courtesies and hospitalities of Evergreen Lodge, which you shall freely enjoy, I desire to add for the benefit of our brother Knights who have not yet wooed and won and united their destinies with some noble woman, that you shall have the pleasure and opportunity on Wednesday night at the banquet of meeting the fairest of the fair. I would not boast of the charms of our maidens, but they are as lovely as any to win whose smiles a knightly suiter broke a lance, and in sincerity it may be said that in form they rival Venus, and that they will greet you with smiles as dew-dimpled and bright as ever illumined the face of Hobe.

And finally, without detaining you longer from the consideration of the important duties that have called you together, allow me once more, in the name of Evergreen Lodge, to bid you welcome; in the name of the benevolent and kind, in the name of all who love charity, in the name of those who honor friendship and esteem the brotherhood of man, and in the name of all the people of Hopkinsville. I bid you welcome to the hospitalities of our homes.

Grand Past Chancellor A. J. Lovely responded on behalf of the Grand Lodge as follows:

BROTHER KNIGHTS OF EVERGREEN LODGE, No. 38—As the herald of the Grand Lodge I appear before you in olden time the Herald was an officer both highly honored and trusted. When an army of Knights attacked a fortified castle or walled city, he advanced almost to the very walls thereof, and by a blast from his bugle summoned those within to a parley. Being answered by a bugle call, there would soon appear upon the walls or battlements a number of the besieged; to them he would convey the request or demands of those without. Having received their reply he would return to the main body and deliver the message to the Sir Knight Commander. If the answer indicated a compliance, the gates would soon be opened, and then, amid the ringing and prancing of steeds, the rattling of sabres and the nodding of plumes, the Knights would disappear within the walls. On the contrary, if the answer indicated a non-compliance, and oftentimes hurling defiance into the very teeth of those without, the Knights would be by sub-division placed in position, the assault sounded, then woe to the vanquished. But it seems that by some means or other you were cautioned against our approach, for at the very outskirts of your city we were met by your delegation, who, to gain our good will and favor, offered us the freedom of your entire city, and then leading us into the very heart of your citadel, where your Knight Commander, or one deputized to speak for him, has given us still further evidence of your entire submission to our will. But had we a side.

Brother Knights of Evergreen, No.
38, as the herald of, and in the name of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias of the State of Kentucky, I thank you for this more than regal reception with which you have welcomed them. It says to us that you have a deep hold upon the hearts and affections of the people of this section of our state. It will buoy up and cheer the hearts of such of our delegates who represent sections of our state where our order has not such a hold upon the hearts of the people.
It indicates to us that you have not, like other like, "sat with folded hands waiting for something to turn up," but like true and energetic men; that you are, convinced the people your bearing and deportment that you are brave and honorable Knights.

While listening to the eloquent words of welcome that dropped from the lips of him who had us partake of and enjoy your knightly courtesies and hospitality, they fell upon our ears like the silvery tinkle of the angel's harp who stands at the gates of Paradise welcoming the souls of the redeemed to the realms of eternal peace and blessedness. Brother Knights, we again thank you.

The Grand Lodge was then called

He Threatened Suicide.

Concerning the Mulligan letters which were published in full in the Courier of yesterday the New York Herald comments thus:
At the beginning of 1876, Mr.
James G. Blaine went on his knees to Mr. James Mulligan at the Riggs House, in the city of Washington, and, with prayers and threats of committing suicide, sought to examine a package containing fifteen of his letters which was in Mulligan's possession. Mulligan yielded to the pitiful and abject entreaties. Blaine got the package, pledging his word of honor (which he broke) to give it back.
Examining the contents, he found that though they were very bad they were not the worst he had expected.
He had written other letters which, to his great relief, he did not find among them. He was an aspirant for the Presidential nomination of the Republican National Convention which was to meet at Cincinnati on June 14, and believing that copies of the contents of the package existed, although he had secured the original, and that they would become public before the Convention, he resolved on a characteristically audacious course—to publish them himself as the lesser of two evils.
So on the 5th of June, in the House of Representatives, he rose and said: "I am not afraid to show the letters, Thank God Almighty I am not ashamed to show them."

And then he read them to the House, and at the end of the reading, by an arrangement manifestly pre-concerted with his friend, Mr. Eugene Hale, of Maine, he had a dialogue with that gentleman, in which the House and the country were given to understand that the fifteen compiled all of his letters that Mulligan held, controlled or knew of that were disrespectful—"every solitary scrap and scribble, as the children say," was his expression. "The man (Mulligan) did his worst," he said "the worst he could, out of the most intimate business correspondence of my life."

After eight years Mr. Mulligan now gives to the public fifteen more letters of Mr. Blaine "as a duty to his fellow countrymen." We have printed them in full. There is scarcely one which does not contain damning proof of the debasement to which the Republican party has sunk itself by nominating him for President. We direct special attention to the letter of April 16, 1876, requesting Mr. Fisher to sign and return the document composed for him by Mr. Blaine, making false statements concerning Mr. Blaine's railroad jobbery and designed for publication to help his Presidential aspirations at Cincinnati.

The people will understand now why Mr. Blaine "went on his knees" and threatened suicide to move Mr.
Mulligan. They will understand Mr.
Blaine's relief of mind when he found that the package did not contain his letter of April 16 and its enclosure.
And they will also understand the contempt with which for eight years Mr. James Mulligan has regarded Mr. James G. Blaine, who during all that long time has been miserably praying for forbearance. Is Mr.
Blaine, or is any friend of his, audacious enough to say of his letter of April 16, 1876:

"Thank God Almighty, I am not ashamed to show it?"

This is a question every man who maintains the fitness of Mr. Blaine for the Presidency of the United States must make ready to answer in the affirmative. Is there a respectable leader of the Republican party who dares to do so? Does Mr. Everts dare? Or does Senator Hawley?

How to be Beautiful.

Ladies, you can be sure of this: that you cannot have rosy cheeks and a clear complexion unless you are in good health. Disease always spoils beauty. Parker's Tonic purifies the blood, invigorates the organs, drives all bad humors out of system, and makes the plainest face attractive.
Tell your husbands.

It has been found that immersing one in a barrel of whisky for a few minutes, "ages" the liquor as effectually as the storage of it for years would do. After this nothing can separate the country from the mean-descent light.
