AN HEROIC DRUMMER.

Plunging into a Burning Prison to Save a Boy's Life.

Our little town was disturbed one December night, many years ago, by the well-known and much-dreaded cry of "fire," and when the citizens turned out they found the brick jail in flames.
There was but one prisoner confined therein at the time—a lad of nineteen years, Markley, who lived in the outskirts of the town with his widowed mother. He had been convicted of forgery, and was waiting for the citizens to take him to the penitentiary.
The evidence was entirely circumstantial, and it looked as if no intelligent jury would have convicted him.
The mother was on the ground weeping and imploring some one to save her son, while the boy's piteous cries were horrible. The flames were crawling slowly but surely up the stairs.

On the outside, mingling with the crowd, was a drummer, who had arrived in town that day. Buttoning his overcoat tight, he had several buckets of water poured on him, and taking the jailer's keys in his left hand and a bucket of water in his right, he rushed into the jail and up the burning stairs. His trousers caught fire twice, but he put them out with the water in the bucket. He reached the cell in which the prisoner was confined, scorched from head to foot.
But, nevertheless, he poured what water he had left on the boy.

The crowd below was watching in breathless suspense as the stairs fell in. They seemed surely doomed.
But suddenly they were seen on the roof. "A rope!" called the man.
One was quickly thrown to him. He placed it around the lad's waist while the walls were rocking. The boy reached the ground in safety, but not until the man, realizing that the wall was about to fall, jumped and broke a leg. They were barely out of the way when the walls fell in with a crash.

It was afterwards found that the boy was not guilty. The man, whose name was James Williams, and who traveled for a Cincinnati clothing house, soon recovered. — Athens (Tenn.) Cor. Philadelphia Press.

TASTE IN FURNISHING.

How to select Carpets, Colored Curtains and Wall-Papers.

While it is not essential that the carpet should match the furniture and curtains, there should be no violent contrasts. Nor should it be so brilliant as to produce an unfavorable effect on the furniture. If the furniture is all of one color, say crimson, a carpet of white and crimson, or wood color and crimson, will look well. Simple colors and patterns in a carpet are preferable to the brilliant and showy.
Very dark carpets are undesirable from the fact that every speck or thread that falls upon them shows.
Tapestry Brussels carpets, now in vogue, are not always desirable, as the colors are apt to wear off. A real Brussels is dyed in the wool, while tapestry-Brussels has the pattern stained in after weaving, and although it may look like the former, it wears of the semi-neutral, maroon is the best adapted for a carpet. Either pale white, or much black, is an error.

Some persons object to furnishing in one color, as not affording sufficient variety. Yet a parlor was recently furnished in crimson of several shades, the effect being pleasing. The carpet was deep crimson, while the satin brocade of the furniture was of a lighter shade, the blending being perfect. The curtains were like the damask of the chairs, relieved by white lace curtains.
The introduction of white in such cases is very desirable. It should be remembered, however, in employing various shades of one color they must be of the same family. Indigo blue and sky blue must not be placed in juxtaposition, or blue green and yellow green. These are only cousins, and not brothers. Very dark curtains are undesirable, as they absorb too much light, and orange, by its tensity, fatigues the eye. Light lemon and light stone color are suitable for walls, as there is less chance of a violent contrast with the furniture. Some persons adopt blue or green, but they are not as desirable as the first colors mentioned. — Woman.

German State Salaries.

The German empire does not pay its high employes on an extravagant scale. Prince Bismarck receives $2,700 a year and a residence. The Foreign Secretary gets $2,500, including free quarters; the State Secretary, $1,800, including free quarters; the State Secretary of the Imperial Court of Justice, $1,300 and a house; the State Secretary of the Imperial Treasury, $1,000 and a house; the State Postmaster-General, $1,200, and a house; the Minister of War, $1,800, with a house, fuel and rations for eight horses; the Chief of the Admiralty, $1,800, with a house; the Chief of the General staff, $2,500, a house, and rations for six horses. Fourteen commanding Generals get $1,500 each, with free furnished quarters and rations for eight horses. With regard to Ambassadors, those in London and St. Petersburg are paid $7,000 each; in Vienna, Constantinople, and Paris, $6,000 each; in Ministers $2,400 is paid at Brussels, $2,250 at Bucharest, $2,400 at The Hague, $3,700 at Madrid, $3,000 at Berlin, $3,400 at Stockholm, $3,000 at Thebes, and $2,250 at Yeddo. — London Standard.

While fishing in Lake Catherine, Fla., a man caught a strange looking fish about two feet long, body like an eel, but thicker and larger, no scales, head short and flattened. But the great difference between it and other fish was in its having two anterior limbs, each about one and a half inches in length, which are used in swimming, and it can use them in traveling on the ground, for it can move pretty well out of its own element. It is not a true fish, but a reptile, and is described in natural history as a siren. They can live a long time out of water. They are rarely seen.

A TREAT

For the Kentuckian's Readers.

Bassett & Co., "Wreckers of High Prices," have secured this space and each week will note the most marvelous Bargains ever offered by a Dry Goods firm.

We have made it right lively in the Dry Goods business for the past two years, and this season propose to eclipse all former efforts.

In our Dress Goods department we are showing the most magnificent stock ever seen in this section, abounding in everything that good taste could suggest. Plain and Fancy Weaves in beautiful colorings, Foreign Novelties in lovely effects.

Our many advantages in buying enable us to quote lower prices than other merchants and through our perfect Eastern Connection we are enabled to show the "new things" simultaneous with their appearance in New York.

HIGH ART DRESSMAKING.

Conducted by Mrs. L. Nash, a celebrated Modiste, who combines with a perfect fit, taste, originality and elegance, making it no longer necessary to send away to have your dresses made.

In all our other departments we are showing the choicest and best goods that are manufactured, at prices that cannot be met by competitors.

HE TALKS A LITTLE.

Just enough to say that he is rather fond of Naughty Boys.

"He says 'Yes, now,'" said the baby's mamma, as the baby's papa came in.
"he said it lots of times to-day, and he knows just what it means. Does Willie love mamma?" she continued, looking at the baby with great earnestness, while papa paused with his overcoat half off.
"Papa—gone!" said Willie.
"No, no, papa come. Does Willie love mamma?"—wait a minute, George, he's going to say it now; he knows.
Does—Willie—love—Mamma?" "Got it down pretty fine, hasn't he," said George, as he finished taking off his coat.

"Well, I don't care, he does know enough to say it. Willie! Look right at Mamma, now. Does—Willie—love—Mamma? Y—y—Does Willie love Mamma?"
"Pity!" said Willie, looking suddenly at the glass pendants on the chandelier, with well-feigned excitement.

"Now, Willie—let him alone a minute, George—Willie, be real good, now he won't see you; there, now; Willie, do you love Mamma?"
"Papa—fun!" said Willie.
"No, Papa gone, now."
"Now!" said Willie.
"Yes, sooner why can't you say what I want you to?"
"To?" said Willie.

"You're a naughty, naughty boy.
You might as well come in, George, he can't go to say it; he's awfully confident and disagreeable sometimes, and he just tries me to death."
"Willie!" said his father, solemnly;
"Papa doesn't like naughty boys, Mamma doesn't; and I don't know who does. Do you love naughty boys?"
"Yes," said Willie, with remarkable distinctness.—Morris Waite, in Puck.

Relative Conditions of Strength.

"My dear, an estimate here in the paper declares that if a man were relatively as strong as a beetle he could lift 128,000 pounds."
"Is that so?" asked Mrs. Bromley, as she dropped her left eye-lid. "I'll look for a beetle in the morning."
"Why, dear?"
"May be he'll carry the stove into the summer kitchen. I've asked you about a dozen times to do it."—Detroit Free Press.

A Shorter Cut to Greatness.

Callie (with customary air of congratulation)—He's a remarkably fine baby, and just as likely as not he'll be President some day.
Proud father (shaking his head emphatically)—I'm not going to express that boy to the uncertainties of politics. I intend to appreciate him to Buffalo Bill.—Chicago Tribune.

It is stated that there are more ducks in China than in all the world outside of it. They are kept on every farm, on the prairie roads, and on all the lakes, rivers and small streams.
There are many boats on which as many as 2,000 are kept. Their eggs constitute one of the most important articles of food. They are hatched in establishments fitted up for the purpose. Some of them turn out as many as 40,000 young ducks every year.
Salted and smoked ducks are sold in all the towns, and many of them are exported to countries where Chinamen reside.

Near Chicago recently a house caught fire, and a big Irish setter was burned to death in it, because it could not be persuaded that the three children of the family, its special playmates, were safe. The dog then rushed into the burning building and searched for them.

A stout woman of Mahony City, Pa., spanked a grocer with her shoe because she thought he had overcharged her boy for pot herbs. The court fined her six cents, in addition to the thirty dollars costs.

AN ACCIDENT POLICY.

A Few of the Restrictions Imposed by the Company on the Insured.

I ran over to St. Louis the other day to see my father-in-law, and at the station I bought an accident policy, to be safe all around. It had a few conditions, of course, on which the money would be paid in case any thing happened.

It read about like this: "Fifteen dollars per week will be paid to the holder of this policy upon presentation of it in person, at the company's office, in Kansas."
"It is agreed and understood, between both and all of us, that no money, checks, greenbacks or other legal tender shall be paid on this policy, except the holder thereof has been so disabled, broke up or curtailed as to be incapacitated for any business whatever, and is wholly unable to sit down or stand up."

"It is further agreed that no money, etc., shall be paid on this policy if the holder thereof, or any of his heirs, assignees, or executors ever played baseball, ate with a knife, got up before six o'clock, refused to support the administration then in power, or in any way willfully or malignantly endangered their lives."

"This policy shall be instantly and wholly annulled if the insured received injuries in the discharge of his usual business; or after office hours, or from any accident, hurt, or mishap, or occurrence of any kind whatever, due entirely to the carelessness of those in charge of the machine, engine, carriage, street-car, or cow, from the explosion, running or stopping of which the accident took place."

"In case of death the sum of $3,000 shall be paid to the holder's heirs, assignees, executors, or estate-in-law, but subject to the following conditions:
"The deceased must not have died from crawling up the chimney; must not have had his corns cut for three days before his death; used goose-tooth-picks; worn any of the prevailing styles of standing collars, or been addicted to the careless handling of ice-cream. Insured must have taken a bath at least seventeen days before his death, and must have been sitting in his chair with his hat off and his shoes tied."

"It is furthermore agreed that the company's physician shall have the privilege of examining what is left of the insured as often as the company desires, and shall in every case have the right to sue the victim up with blue thread as often as he comes apart."

"Women will be insured in this company only against death, as they never swear, chew tobacco, bet on elections, jump on cable-cars when running, ride a mule, or do any thing else to shorten their natural term of life."—R. N.
Roark, in Texas Siftings.

afflicted with red or reddish hair.

Nothing Succeeds like SUCCESS.

The reason Radam's
Microbe Killer
is the most wonderful discovery of the age is because it has never failed in any instance, no matter what disease, from L. procy to the simplest disease known.

KIDNEY & LIVER DISEASES, AND FEMALE TROUBLES.

In all forms and in fact every disease known to the human system.
The leading scientific men of today claim and prove that all diseases are caused by Microbes, and Radam's Microbe Killer is the only medicine ever discovered that will thoroughly cleanse the system of Microbes and cause a permanent cure.
We treat all diseases constitutionally and in the same way, so we can cure any and all diseases you may have at the same time.

Beware of Fraudulent Imitations.
