WHAT HE DID SAY.

Mr. McKenzie Explains His Recent Washington Interview. Hon. Jas. A. McKenzie was in the city yesterday and the KENTUCKIAN availed itself of this first opportunity to get at the facts in regard to his recent much-talked-of interview in Washington.

He says he was asked by the Courier-Journal's correspondent if he was a candidate for the Senate. To this he replied in the following language: "I am not now nor have I been a candidate in the sense of actively seeking the nomination, but I have been an aspirant in the sense that I would be gratified to be elected to the Senate and whether I am to be chosen or not I think Western Kentucky entitled geographically and of right to one of the Senatorships."

Mr. McKenzie very much regrets the incorrect report which caused all the trouble and is pained to think the impression should have been created that he had raised a question of veracity between himself and his friends.

The long contest in the Montana Legislature has finally resulted in the election of two sets of United States Senators. Briefly stated the situation is about as follows: The county of Silver Bow followed to 11 representatives elected 10 Democrats. The Republicans claimed that irregularities in certifying to the vote of the Tunnel precinct in that county invalidated the returns. This precinct gave a Democratic majority of 102.

With this thrown out six Democrats would be defeated. The county officials gave certificates to the Democrats, but the State canvassing board, composed of Republicans, gave the contesting Republicans certificates. The Legislature was very close. The disputed votes gave the control of the House to the Democrats, while the Senate was a tie. The Governor is a Democrat and the Lieutenant Governor a Republican. Two Houses were organized. The Senate recognizes the Republican body and the Governor the Democratic or legal House. The Senate was only organized a few days ago and now the 8 Democratic Senators have held a joint session with the Democratic House and the 8 Republicans have met with the Republican House and both sides have chosen U. S. Senators. The Governor will of course recognize Martin, Maginnis and W. A. Clark, the Democrats, but the U. S. Senate will in the end have to settle the contest. That body being Republican by 6 majority, the chances are that the illegally elected Republicans will ultimately be sworn in upon a strict party vote.

Capt. Cabler's murderer is still at large, although the L. & N. is making every effort to run him down. If the detectives cannot catch Brame, however, knowing him well and having knowledge of his whereabouts, they are not likely to capture an unknown tramp who is merely described as the wearer of "black whiskers and a slouch hat."

The Bowling Green Times should keep its shirt on. Will Cox owes his defeat for Speaker largely to his own lack of sectional loyalty. Let him accept defeat with becoming grace, make the right kind of a record this time and pick his flint and come again.

Miss Mary Anderson is now in the city of New and states to the New York World by cable that she will not return to the stage for an indefinite period. This leads the World to conclude that she is going to marry young Navarro, of New York, with whose mother she is traveling.

Col. E. Polk Johnson has been unanimously chosen for another term as Public Printer of Kentucky. There was not a dissenting voice and the general Polk delivered one of his best scintillating speeches in his usual clear-headed style that left everybody in a good humor.

Isaac Shelby, a grandson of the Governor of Kentucky, has been tried at Danville on a charge of murder and held over under a bond of $1,500. Beriah Magoffin, of Fayette, a son of another Governor of the State, went on the bond.

Somnambulism seems to be gathering in victims on all sides. The latest case reported is that of F. D. Young, of Russellville Ky., who walked off an L. & N. train near Elizabethtown. Strange to say he was not killed, but his nap was disturbed.

A London paper says the marriage between Prince Murat and Miss Gwendolin Caldwell has been again arranged, the Prince having decided to accept any allowance the bride may grant him.

The announcement that Ex-Gov. J. Proctor Knott will represent Marion County in the Constitutional Convention, settles the fact that there will be at least one statesman in that body.

"Fig Iron" Kelly, the oldest member of the House in point of service, is dying of a cancer in his throat. He has been compelled to quit his seat and go home and to bed.

Josh Holtzley, a Muhlenburg distiller, has shut down rather than to do business with a negro storekeeper.

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

Fifty-five bills were introduced in the House Friday and legislation is fairly under way. Senator English has introduced a bill providing that all executions be in the penitentiaries before sunrise and in the presence of only a limited number of spectators.

Mr. Stephenson, of Mercer, wants the Hewitt Revenue bill amended so a property holder will not have to pay taxes on mortgaged property or property not paid for.

Representative Clark, of Christian, is on the House Committee on "Charitable Institutions" and "Insurance." Mr. Wharton, of Trigg, is on "Agriculture and Manufactures," "Military Affairs" and "Retrenchment and Reform."

The caucus to nominate a State Librarian will come together Thursday night. There are about a dozen candidates, all of them females but two. Col. Ed. Porter Thompson, the present incumbent by appointment, is the candidate the ladies have to beat.

Speaker Myers has announced the standing committees of the House, as follows: Judiciary—W. T. Cox, Arthur M. Wallace, W. M. Smith, George B. Kinkead, Evan E. Settle, W. C. McChord, W. B. Smith, Henry Mason, Silas Adams.

State Prisons—James P. Gay, R. S. May, E. D. Briscoe, G. H. Gardner, Claude M. Thomas, S. L. Holland, J. J. Nall, Scott Brown, W. S. McClannahan.

THE CRAFT.

The Smithland Citadel has now discarded its patent outside. The Frankfort Daily Capital is now a favorite exchange with all the boys.

The Madisonville Item has again changed hands, returning to E. McCulley, its former owner. D. M. Bowman, late proprietor of the Woodford Sun, fell from the platform of a sleeper on the Monon road a few nights ago and was killed.

Ben H. Pindexter, of the Lewisport Post, having failed to get the position of Doorkeeper of the House, has announced himself a candidate for County Court Clerk of Hancock County.

The Madisonville Hustler boasts that it had 15 subscribers to ask to have their papers stopped during 1889. How many failed to pay? It is the subscriber who shows his faith in his works whose good opinion is most valuable to the newspaper.

The Earlington Bee is a credit to its town. The last number contained a number of photographs of Earlington's leading features and buildings, together with a very readable write-up of the town. The Bee deserves better patronage from the Earlington business men than it is receiving.

Maj. Al McGoodwin, who fell from a window at Frankfort while walking in his sleep, died from his injuries. He was formerly connected with the press of Mayfield. He died in destitute circumstances and a collection was taken up at Frankfort to send his remains to Mayfield.

One of Dr. Rodman's Jokes. [Louisville Commercial.] Dr. James Rodman, of Hopkinsville, for many years superintendent of the Western Kentucky Lunatic Asylum, passed through the city yesterday on his way to Washington where his family is spending the winter. Dr. Rodman's long connection with the model asylum of the South has made his opinion on mental diseases authority throughout the country. A committee was appointed by the last Legislature to go through the formality of investigating the system and treatment of patients in Dr. Rodman's institution. On the committee was the gentleman from Rowan county, this was during the Rowan rows and while the bloody details of mountain tragedies were fresh in the minds of the people. The members of the committee, with Dr. Rodman, were standing in front of the Phoenix Hotel in Hopkinsville awaiting the train which was to bear them back to Frankfort, when two negro barbers who had been quarreling drew their razors and began to carve each other in the most deliberate and matter-of-fact way. As they pressed nearer the group of solons the Rowan member began to grow uneasy, and moved an adjournment. "Oh, don't be alarmed," said Dr. Rodman, quietly; "this is only a programme arranged for your entertainment. We wanted to make you feel at home."

The Democratic caucus to nominate a Senator, which adjourned from Monday, ressembled Friday and Senator Blackburn was renominated by acclamation for a second term of six years. The eloquent Joseph took occasion to make a spreading speech that lifted his hearers up to the clouds with enthusiasm and he certain finally fell amid dazzling lights of figurative calcium, showers of bouquets, the smiles of lovely women and the shouts of brave men that almost loosened the shingles on the capitol roof. A stranger dropping in at that particular moment would have been left under the impression that the nominee was the biggest man in Kentucky.

Because Hon. H. C. Dixon, a brother-in-law of Col. John Young Brown, favored Greens for Speaker, the Bowling Green Times threatens to hold Col. Brown responsible in the gubernatorial race. Col. Brown was promptly stated in an interview that he was not responsible for the actions of other people. This was entirely unnecessary. No sensible person would think of opposing him on such a pretext. The fates have already decreed that Col. Brown shall be the next Governor of Kentucky, if he lives, and the active opposition of all of Mr. Cox's friends cannot prevent it.

Mr. William T. Price a Justice of the Peace, at Richland, Nebraska, was confined to his bed last winter with a severe attack of lumbago; but a thorough application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm enabled him to get up and go to work. Mr. Price says: "The Remedy cannot be recommended too highly. Let any one troubled with rheumatism neuralgia or lame back give it a trial and they will be of the same opinion. 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavelle."

Wanted—Two of a Kind. "Well, my man," said a military doctor to a patient who had been on "low diet" for a long time, "how are you?" "Much better, sir."

"Could you eat a small chicken today?" "That I could sir."

"What would you like to have it stuffed with?" "Please, your honor," replied the hungry patient, "I would like it stuffed with another chicken."—London Tit-Bits.

Several Carbonale (Pa.) fenny fellows started out a few nights ago and called in a party on half a dozen girls, one after the other. At each house they staid fifteen minutes, and by a prearranged plan it was agreed that not a word should be spoken. The effect was startling.

A WESTWARD GLANCE.

Southwestern Iowa a Gravitating Revelation of Pastoral Beauty. To those who have lived all their lives in a hilly or mountainous country or on the level lands of the Middle States the landscape of Southwestern Iowa is a gratifying revelation of pastoral beauty. Everywhere, in every direction, to the bounds of the far horizon, the distinctive feature is the rolling prairie, but sufficiently diversified by villages, farm and pasture to avoid monotony and repetition. This landscape is rural to the eye. There are no harsh surfaces, no sharp lines, no startling contrasts. Nature was in her most leisurely and tranquil mood when she fashioned this beautiful region. Everywhere is a simplicity, with symmetry and strength.

Blue grass is king of the region. The blue-grass pasture predominates, but is always adjoined by the cornfield. The farmer of Southwestern Iowa produces more than enough of small grain for his own use, but his hay and cattle and swine are the products which he knows will bring him wealth and independence. It is the diversity of products which creates the diverse features of Southwestern Iowa, and gives it a rural feature peculiarly its own. Even the villages and larger towns illustrate the rural character of the region. Early in the season the crops are green, which are improved during the early spring season, the townspeople generally produce their own vegetables and small fruits.

There is no soil in the world more kindly to the common vegetables. On account of this enormous production in the towns, the price of vegetables is very low, especially potatoes, which often retail as low as ten cents per bushel. The rural villages and frequently the man in town, keeps a cow and produces his own milk and butter. The aggregate of these results is a rural region of remarkable productivity and fertility, where the actual necessities of only a few of the most essential of the world, and where pauperism and crime are rarely known.

This soil of Southwestern Iowa is a black, rich loam, somewhat impregnated with sand and lime, and old Kentucky farmers in this respect it much resembles their famous blue-grass region. In wet seasons it has been noticeable that the yield of grass and hay was enormous, and upon the application of manure and except floods and washouts would destroy the certainty of a good crop of corn and small grain. But the past two seasons of extreme drought, unprecedented in the history of this region, has brought out another wonderful feature of Southwestern Iowa, and that is the fact that few countries can stand drought so well.

The total railroad mileage of Southwestern Iowa approximates 800 miles. Until recently Chicago has been almost the exclusive market for the products of this region, and this great city is now less than twenty-four hours' ride from the center of Southwestern Iowa by the Burlington fast train. The marvelous development of the packing industries of Omaha and Kansas City, however, has created new and more accessible markets for the products of the region, especially the pork product, and it is only the question of a few years when these young cities will also afford the most desirable markets for the beef and mutton of the Iowa blue-grass region.

The wonderful development of Kansas City, St. Joseph, Omaha and Council Bluffs has opened the vitality of every small city or town in Southwestern Iowa. Many of their best mechanics have been drawn to these larger fields of work by the extraordinary demand for skilled labor and finding steeper employment at better wages, have removed with their families to these cities. But these losses to the towns have been more than compensated by the permanent markets they have created for the live-stock, farm products and fruit of the region.

Everywhere in the country are school-houses. The horizon is broken by frequent church spires. The towns and cities have high-schools and academies and occasionally a college or great Chautauque University. These indicate that the people of Southwestern Iowa are building on sure foundations.—Cosmopolitan.

GETTING ACQUAINTED. Two Benefactors of Mankind Exchange Professional Courtesy. "This" said the man who was traveling on the car as he opened his valise and took out a bottle, "is a mixture called Dr. Jenkinson's Indispensable. I never travel without it. It is the best and most agreeable tonic now on the market by all odds."

"I am not so sure about that," replied the man who was occupying the seat with him. "I have here—and he opened his own valise and took out a bottle—a tonic called Dr. Rybold's Extract, which I have used for several years and consider the very best preparation ever made. No man ought ever to—"

"I have no doubt it is a fairly good medicine in its way," broke in the other, "but if you had ever tasted Dr. Jenkinson's Indispensable you would think that stuff of yours away."

"I know all about Dr. Jenkinson's Extract, sir. I know exactly what it's made of, and I have used it for several years. You do, hey?"

"Yes, sir, and I know Dr. Rybold's Extract is made from precisely the same formula, only from pure materials instead of the vile and adulterated ingredients old Jenkinson uses."

"It's made from the same formula."
