

Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

PUBLISHED TUESDAY AND FRIDAY MORNING.

CHAS. M. MEACHAM, SUBSCRIPTION $2 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Local reading notices 10 cents per line. Special local notices 15 cents per line. Advertising rates furnished on application.

Office 18 and 20 Ninth Street. TUESDAY, JULY 22, 1892.

ANNOUNCEMENT. We are authorized to announce BUCKNER LEAVELL candidate for the office of Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For President, GROVER CLEVELAND, of New York. For Vice President, ADLAI E. STEVENSON, of Illinois.

Electoral Ticket. At large—W. B. Kinney. At large—Claude M. Thomas. First district—Chas. K. Wheeler. Second district—War I. Headley. Third district—J. B. Richardson. Fourth district—W. F. Hayward. Fifth district—Jno. B. Rankin. Sixth district—Jno. T. Hodges. Seventh district—J. A. Scott. Eighth district—J. M. Rankin. Ninth district—W. G. Deering. Tenth district—J. C. Lykins. Eleventh district—N. B. Hays.

The Tariff Plank. "We denounce the McKinley tariff law enacted by the Fifty-first Congress as the culminating atrocity of class legislation; we denounce Republican protection as a fraud, a robbery of the great majority of the American people for the benefit of a few. We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the Federal Government has no constitutional power to enforce and collect tariff duties except for the purpose of revenue only, and demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of the government, honestly and economically administered."

Speaker Crisp has been renominated for Congress by acclamation.

There seems to have been a good deal of Frick-tion at Homestead.

The Carnegie lockout is worse than Burchard's break to the high tax ticket.

Carnegie now knows what it is to be "between the devil and the iron works."

Mr Haydon C. Snoddy has severed his editorial connection with the Greenville Muhlenberger.

Carnegie's men have brought their trouble on themselves by not voting as they shot at the enemies of labor.

Senator Hill's bill changing the date of the opening of the World's Fair from Oct. 14 to Oct. 21, passed the Senate last week.

Clarkson and Campbell having declined, perhaps Frick could be induced to take the Chairmanship of the Republican Committee while his works are shut down.

The Glasgow Times has gobbled up its local contemporary, the Herald, and Jim Richardson is now monarch of all he surveys and a monopolist of the first water in his line of business.

The Tennessee Supreme Court has affirmed the death sentence of Col. H. Clay King, of Memphis, who killed David H. Paston, a brother lawyer, and the date of his execution has been fixed for August 12.

The Four Tickets. President. Vice President. Grover Cleveland, A. E. Stevenson, Ben Harrison, Whitelaw Reid, Jas. B. Weaver, Jas. G. Field, John Bidwell, J. B. Cranfill.

Talk about your Rum, Romanism and Rebellion, what is the matter with Rum, Rottenness and Rat? It is a watchdog that will prove equally as effective as the first named dog.—Owensboro Inquirer.

The nomination of Weaver puts the third party in the attitude of taking up where the greenback party left off. Weaver is a political hawk who has followed every new-fangled craze and fallacy set on foot for twenty years.

The Democrats have endorsed the People's ticket in Kansas, state and electoral, and a similar fusion will be made in South Dakota and Nebraska. This will almost certainly lose these states to Harrison. The three parties are almost equally divided in these states.

The Henderson News expresses the opinion that the L. & N. will own the O. V. Railroad within a year. Just how this is to be made possible under the present condition of Kentucky the News fails to explain. Section 201 prohibits any railroad from buying, leasing or operating a competing or parallel line doing business in Kentucky.

Hardin county has won a suit against the L. & N. railroad for $241,000, interest for thirty years on $200,000 stock subscription, upon which the county was to have the interest until the road paid a cash dividend. The suit has been pending since 1890 and the interest gradually accumulating. More than $70,000 will go to the attorneys in the case, of whom Judge W. P. D. Bush will get $30,838, J. F. Hobson $24,170, the widow of the late Judge Martin Coffey $7,251 and the widow of the late Chas. Winter-smith $7,251. The attorneys took the case on contingent fees.

A GOOD CITIZEN GONE.

Ripe In Years Mr. Geo. O. Thompson Pays the Debt of Nature.

A Citizen of Hopkinsville For 57 Years. He Died Without an Enemy.

For some months the venerable Geo. O. Thompson's friends have realized that the sands of his long and useful life were fast running out. For many months he had been confined to his room, though he could be seen occasionally about his store or riding about the streets. Only a few weeks ago he rode along the river front showing his son who lives in Texas the great changes recently made by the advent of the O. V. Railroad. He spoke of the "burying" of the old Rock Spring in a tone of regret, for few citizens of Hopkinsville had known this beloved feature of the city longer than he. Both were "old landmarks" and together they have passed away. No wonder the good old man witnessed the interment of his old friend with a feeling of sadness. It must have been to him a forcible reminder of the end of all earthly things and of the grave that even then was opening to receive his feeble body.

Geo. O. Thompson was born in Virginia on the 23rd day of December 1836 and six years later removed with his parents to Pembroke, where with them he continued to reside until 1834, when they removed to Hancock county, Illinois. Here both parents died and in 1835 Mr. Thompson came to Hopkinsville and began the manufacture and sale of furniture. He remained in this business till a few months before his death, accumulating a large estate. Mr. Thompson was twice married; in 1835 to Miss Margaret Phaup, daughter of John and Sarah Phaup, of this county. Again in 1848 to Martha J. Thomson, a daughter of the late Roger Thompson. Five children by his first wife grew to maturity and most of them still live. Mr. Jas. J. Thompson, of Collin county Texas, and Mr. Chas. A. Thompson, of this city, his two sons, survive him. His three daughters became the wives of Dr. Jas. McElwain, of Trenton, Prof. V. A. Garrett, of Pembroke, and Mr. W. C. Graves, a former merchant of this city. The latter has been dead some years and her children made their home with their grandfather at the time of his death.

Mr. Thompson had been a member of the Baptist church for nearly 60 years and for many years had been a deacon and one of the pillars of his church in every way.

He was for a long term of years a Commissioner of the Western Asylum and served several years as a City Councilman and was Mayor for one term. In every department of life, public or private, Mr. Thompson was the same honorable high-minded man, who merited and received the respect, confidence and esteem of his fellowmen. He was a man of strict integrity, of the kindest impulses and the noblest traits of character. He was perhaps the largest tax-payer in the city and though a man of large fortune he was always liberal in his dealings and charitable to the deserving. His fortune was made by the industry, economy and perseverance that characterized his business career, and was not accumulated at the expense of his unfortunate fellowmen, as is too often the case with riches.

His funeral was preached at the Baptist church Saturday afternoon and a large concourse of sorrowing friends followed the body to its last resting place. The clouds broke away a short time before and the gloomy weather of the whole week was followed by a bright, beautiful afternoon. It seemed that even nature was determined to throw no obstacles in the way of the people in paying their last tribute of respect to one whose life exemplified the teachings of Christianity and left behind him the noble heritage of a good name.

Latham Light Guards. A squad of sixteen Latham Light Guards with two guides and three officers, left for Columbia, Tenn., this morning to attend the festivities, on the occasion of the opening of the Arsenal at that place. They go upon an invitation from the Springfield ladies, and will join that company at Springfield and go as a part of the company. It is hardly necessary to mention that the Springfield company will be very much strengthened by the addition of our boys, who are well drilled and in excellent condition.

Cartier Dry Goods Company.

We have been informed by a circular letter to the trade that the reliable and long established firm of Carter Bros. & Co., Louisville, has been re-organized as a stock company to be known as the Carter Dry Goods Co. The new organization is composed of members of the old firm, embracing several of the heirs of the late Jas. G. Carter, with a number of the employees of the late firm and a few additional stockholders. The new firm will have ample capital and all modern facilities for increasing their business to a much larger volume than that enjoyed by the old firm, and will carry in stock the largest and most complete lines of dry goods, notions and furnishing goods kept by any house in the South. We are pleased to state that Mr. Robt. Fletcher, the well known and popular representative of the old firm, has associated himself with the new company, which he will represent in this section as formerly. In this connection Mr. Fletcher desires to extend thanks to all his merchant friends and the trade generally for the very liberal patronage that they have extended to him in the past, and desires to say that he will endeavor to surpass his efforts for them in the future.

The indictments for embezzlement against Maj. Wm. Tillman, who took $37,000 from the Falls City Bank, have been dismissed, a settlement having been made by his friends.

A BAD MAN BEATEN.

The Unstable Quality of a Vicious Reputation. Where he got his reputation of being a bad man nobody knew, but he had it. No one had ever known of his hurting anybody or doing anything worse than getting drunk regularly every day. O. yes; sometimes he did whip his wife. But finally when the Wabash railroad was struck by a "bum" epidemic and every freight train and most of the passenger-carried two or three hundred dozen "wray beaters" he found a place. It was to stand around the train yards and capture those gentry traveling on an "axe pass," after which to hale them before the nearest police justice whenever they would find their way to a pile of raw macadam material. As he always carried a large revolver and a club of corresponding size, his duties were performed without interruption, and he gradually became a name being dreaded by all evil-doers. That bad-man reputation of his former days was much appreciated, to an enormous extent. The "gun" helped. Frequently he drew it on some drunken stranger, and it had even won a search in the shape of a bullet as big as a marble after some fleeing malefactor.

And still the reputation grew. Realizing this fact, he was dubbed "detective" by the railroad, and in time was placed at the head of that important branch of a great transportation company's business. "Chief detective" he was, and the reputation was now complete. Persons on whom he frowned now walked around with their heads down. Once he came to Chicago and was mugged in heavy damages while engaged in meeting some Chicago detectives in a faro game, and the reputation of his prowess now spread to Illinois who wrote about it had the nightmare every morning for a week. The bad man threatened to kill him on sight for it. But he didn't.

And now to better sustain the magnificent reputation he had acquired, he had his evil deeds and he really had. He shot, he clubbed, he arrested, and all with the beautiful indifference of a newly appointed member of the "force." One night at midnight he was sitting on the stool of a cheap lunch counter near the depot of one of the central cities of the state, not far from Springfield. He had just encouraged an immense appetite by "pinching" three tramps from the platform of the blind baggage car, and was now rewarding himself with a plate of baked beans, two hard boiled eggs and a dish of krawt. The sleepy night waiter behind the lunch counter had found enough to let his eyes express admiration for the burly detective who was known the length of the road, when there came an interruption. To this day it is told in railroad circles that that region as the nervous thing that ever happened.

On the stool next the bad man sat another man, a stranger. That is, the detective and the waiter did not know him, but of course he must know the detective, everyone did. The stranger was little, and his appetite was correspondingly delicate. No beans and krawt for him, but chicken—boiled chicken, right out of the gravy where it was keeping hot over the steam table. The chicken was not tender, nor were the knives sharp. Driven by the necessity of gnawing hunger, the little man seized it firmly in his various fingers and by steady application of teeth and hands the bones were at last stripped bare.

Then what was he to do? His hands were smeared with gravy and no finger bowl was placed before him. Of delicate and refined nature, he then asked the waiter to furnish upon which the delicate waiter scornfully said: "Ah, what yer givin' us? Dis ain't no Delmonico's." What could the gentleman do? But one resource was left him. He turned quietly to the side where sat the detective, the bully, the man who gently took in his fingers the loose sleeve of the detective's coat and wiped upon it all the gravy and grease that had been clinging to his hands.

For an instant the bad man was paralyzed. That it came to him that but one thing was left to do. "Hi!" went his flat and the little man went to the floor. When he rose, however, he had a gun in his own hand. He had command the ex-little man's back out of the door, the little man paid his check, and the scene closed.

But it was not the bad man's heart and reputation were broken. It did not seem to him that he had broken down the offender. The sting of death lay in the fact that the little man, the stranger, should have wiped gravy and grease on his, the big bad man's, coat, and was not afraid.

And today that once bad man is mild as a baby. Little children actually come near him without fear. English sparrows hover over him, and reporters say of him what they please. He is bad no more. But it was the nervous thing ever done in Jacksonville.—Chicago Times.

Buck's Budget of News.

Cnorrros, Ky., July 10.—Tobacco on flat lands is being damaged very much by the late rains through this section, but the outlook for a corn crop is very flattering.

The scramble for old field schools has fairly begun and the dissatisfied patrons can now sweat in the collar for a few more days and it will all be over.

A young legal light, of Madisonville, Ky., whose astuteness is unquestionable, has found attractions in our town and he may frequently be found directing his steps in this direction.

Miss Mattie Gray, of Madisonville, is visiting Miss Lula E. Clark.

Miss Lula Rice, of White Plains, Ky., is visiting Mrs. L. D. Burkholder.

The Crofton Mills are soon to have a metal roof.

It is hoped that the frame buildings which were destroyed last week by fire will soon be replaced by brick ones. We hope our town trustees will decide on a limit and not allow any but fire-proof buildings to go up in said limit. It might seem hard at first to those contemplating building, but one-third added to a frame will build the brick and the less rate of insurance will soon pay the difference.

Again were to have an old-fashioned barbecue here some time in August, where you can get a good dinner (if you will bring it) and enjoy a few hours with old friends. Beck.

For Boils, Pimples, carbuncles, scrofulous sores, eczema, and all other blood diseases, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will relieve and cure dyspepsia, nervous debility, and that tired feeling.
