Greece had another earthquake shock Friday and there was additional loss of life.
Judge Bradley overruled the motion for a new trial in the Breckenridge case and an appeal was taken.
There are indications that the Democrats are getting together and will pass the Wilson bill in the Senate within a few weeks.

Editor Black takes more than a column of the Earlington Bee's space to endorse the verdict of the jury in the Pollard-Breckenridge case.

Mr. Thos. Davidson becomes the new owner of the Marion Monitor, just in time to take in the Frankfort festivities, June 6.

The program at the press meeting at Frankfort in June includes a sight-seeing trip, a reception at the Governor's mansion, a river excursion, a speech by President Sam Roberts and several other features worth the entire price of admission.

Five negroes, who murdered a white man named Boyce, near Tallula, La., were pursued with bloodhounds and four of them captured and hanged by a mob, April 26. Their names were Pemp Claxton, Shell Paxton, Colt Harvey and Tony McCoy. Tom Griffin, the fifth, got away. These make 17 for April and 39 for the year.

No man who was not born in the country has ever been elected President of the United States. Andrew Johnson is the only "town boy" who ever became President, and he was made such by election but by the death of President Lincoln while he was Vice-President. Even Johnson was not a city boy, for Raleigh, N. C., was a small country town when he was born there.

Dr. Clardy returned from Union county Friday after spending a week or more making a district canvass in that county. The doctor is greatly encouraged with the reception he met with in that county and we have reliable information that he has substantial grounds for encouragement. Well posted politicians say that he is now the strongest candidate in Union and has an excellent chance to carry the county. McClain will be the leading candidate on the third in the race with most of the strength in and about Uniontown. It is now reasonably certain that Clardy will be the leading candidate on the first ballot and if he continues to show in strength as he has within the last thirty days he is likely to carry the county and win on the first ballot. The people are realizing that he is the best man in the race. He is experienced in legislation and is well equipped for public service. His views are in accord with his platform, he is a fluent speaker, thoughtful student of current events and his moral character is so reproach, which is an important consideration in those days when people are beginning to inquire their representatives spend their money at Washington.

ibner's Magazine for May opens with an article of unusual importance, "Some Episodes of Mountaineering," by Edwin Lord Weeks, which is one of his stirring adventures while mountain-climbing in the same hand. The author and his equally skillful as a picture writer and as an artist of rare gifts in landscape and figure work. In this article giving a reality to a mountain-climbing that no popular article has given. These marvelous illustrations, daring facts, made from a spot when the artist was in a most difficult position showing the pose and action with him while actually ascending a difficult bit of climbing.

Comet Pile Remedy Cures

Organizer of the Christian Endeavor Movement and President of the United Society will be With Us in the Great Convention—A Rare Treat.
In Aymer, Quebec, on the 12th of Sept. 1861, there was ushered into this world a life, the influence of which was destined to encircle the globe, and to whom the praises of more than a million and a half young hearts are now rising.

He was a modest, unassuming boy, possessed with instincts almost womanly in their delicacy and refinement, yet strong, courageous, and full of life and fire.

While his father, Rev. Edward W. Clark, was settled in Claremont, N. H., Francis was sent to Kimball Union Academy in Meriden. He afterwards entered Dartmouth College where he graduated after making for himself a splendid record as a scholar, a Christian and a man. He studied theology at Andover, Mass., and entered upon his first pastorate at Portland, Maine, in Williston Church, which at that time was a mission enterprise, the services of which were held in an old building with anything but a churchly appearance. It did not take the people long to find out that their young minister had enthusiasm and ability, and was, moreover, a devoted, sympathetic pastor, and an indefatigable worker. This was in many respects an ideal church, and it undoubtedly had an ideal pastor. The building soon became too small to accommodate the crowds, and it became necessary to erect a new and capacious edifice. Dr. Clark had always a special love for young people, and in 1881, he organized a society to meet the needs of the youth in Williston Church. This was the first Christian Endeavor Society ever formed, and its motto was "For Christ and Church." It was not intended by its originator for the church at large, but it was self-propagating, as are all great movements which have the elements of universality, and the result is that there are now 30,000 similar societies with a membership of over one and a half million.

Dr. Clark's next call was to the Phillips Church in South Boston, but the demands upon him as President of the United Society, and as editor-in-chief of the "Golden Rule" caused his final withdrawal from the pulpit. We should esteem it the greatest privilege that we shall have an opportunity of seeing and hearing this "man of God," whose services we have secured, with a great deal of effort, for our great C. E. Convention.

Those who have met him at the C. E. Conventions are uniform in their praise of "Father Endeavor Clark" as he is affectionately called. Possessed of attractive appearance, enthusiasm, ability to say the right thing in the right place, and with a wonderfully unselfish and affectionate spirit, he has succeeded in drawing in him all classes and ages. It is needless to say that no one of the great speakers of the coming convention will be more enthusiastically received than Rev. Francis E. Clark. Dr. Clark has recently returned from his second tour around the world in the interest of Christian Endeavor. The whole country is after him now, and our people are wonderfully successful in securing a man so universally in demand. His name alone will draw crowds from far and near, to say nothing of the other great men coming.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

DELEN.—Iron Delin, aged 27 years died near Crofton Friday of consumption.
GUYEN.—Rev. J. W. Gwyn, a prominent Methodist minister, died at his home near Guthrie Thursday aged 63 years.

GAMBLE.—Mr. John W. Gamble died at his home in the Antioch neighborhood Sunday of pneumonia. He was about 25 years old and leaves a wife and one child. Mrs. Gamble, mother of deceased, and also a younger brother, died only a few weeks ago of the same disease.

WHITTAKER.—Dr. R. M. Whittaker, son of Mr. D. M. Whittaker, of Caskey, died at his home in San Antonio, Texas, last Wednesday of consumption, after a long illness. Dr. Whittaker left this county only a few years ago for the Lone Star State to practice his profession and was enjoying a good business when he was taken down with the fatal disease. The remains arrived at Caskey yesterday in charge of Rev. Frank Perry, and were interred in the family burying ground.

ADAMS.—Mr. Thos. L. Adams, a prominent citizen of South Christian, died at his home one mile south of Beverly, at 9:30 a. m. Saturday, after an illness of several months. Mr. Adams was 71 years old and was a man remarkably well preserved, and had enjoyed excellent health until he was taken with the grip. Later on he suffered a complication of diseases which proved too much for one of his age and died relieved him of his sufferings as above stated. Mr. Adams was a successful farmer and a good neighbor and in his death the community has lost a useful man.

McCORM.—Dr. Jeffries McCorm, son of Mr. Lyman McCorm, of Pembroke, died at the home of his parents at 4 o'clock p. m. Friday, after a brief illness, aged 22 years. Dr. McCorm recently graduated in medicine at Louisville with highest honors and had a brilliant future before him. He was a young man of great intelligence and was very popular with all his associates. He had many warm personal friends in this city and all learned with regret the sad news of his death. Typhoid pneumonia was the cause of death. The remains were interred in the family burying ground Saturday in the presence of a very large concourse of sorrowing friends.

HODGSON.—Mr. Samuel Hodgson, one of the oldest and healthiest citizens of Clarksville, was overcome by heat while attending services at the Methodist church that place Sunday evening and was taken home in an unconscious condition, where he died shortly afterward. Mr. Hodgson was 65 years old and had been in very bad health for several months. He was proprietor of the Clarksville Marble and Monument Works and was also connected with several of the large business enterprises. Mr. Hodgson was a very careful business man and had accumulated a handsome fortune. He was widely known and very popular with all and in his death Clarksville has lost one of her most useful as well as best citizens. A wife and several grown sons are left to mourn their loss.

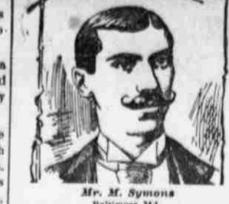

BECKER.—The wife of John Becker died in the city last Thursday after a brief illness.

Take Vitals Liver Pills.
In the Spring
Nearly everybody needs a good medicine. The impurities which have accumulated in the blood during the cold months must be expelled, or when the hot days come, and the effect of heating air is lost, the body is liable to be overcome by debility or some serious disease. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and many words of praise it has received, are the best evidence of its confidence. We ask you to give it a trial. We are sure it will do you good. Read the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla, all from reliable grateful people. They tell the story.

A Difference in Pockets.
(Exchange)
One of the ways of telling whether a man is married man or not is to examine his pockets. In the pocket of a bachelor you will find:
Half a dozen letters from girls.
A tailor's bill.
Three or four old checks for theater seats.
Bills for supper.
Theatrical looking photograph.
A lot of invitations for dances, dinners, and receptions.
A tiny glove scented with violet.
But the married man's pocket will contain:
An old bill.
A couple of unposted letters which were given to him to post a week past.
A sample of an impossible shade which he must match.
A newspaper clipping telling a sure cure for crop.
A shopping list, ranging from a box of blacking to three yards of lace.
Bill.
More bills.

BOOK-KEEPING.
SHORTHAND AND PENMANSHIP.
We have recently prepared books on the above, especially adapted for the use of students in the way of their own publications. They are not only complete, but they are also very cheap. We will send you a copy of our book on book-keeping, if you will send us your name and address. We will send you a copy of our book on shorthand and penmanship, if you will send us your name and address. We will send you a copy of our book on book-keeping, if you will send us your name and address. Run Down
That Tired Feeling—Severe Headaches, No Appetite
Six Bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla
Bring Back New Life.

"Dear Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
I was frequently sick and did not know what the matter with me. One day I would not eat and I could hardly stand, the next I would have a severe headache and so on, and I did not have any appetite for food.

Was Greatly Run Down.
I tried a good many medicines but they did me no good. Having heard a great deal about Hood's Sarsaparilla I decided to try a bottle. I am glad to say I soon felt better. I have now used six bottles and feel as well as ever. It has been of great benefit to me as I have regained my appetite and strength.

Now Enjoy Good Health.
I can strongly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as an excellent blood medicine. M. S. YONKS, 25 ALBANY STREET, BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.

AN ODD RAILWAY.
It is literally on Stilts and is known as the "Peg-Leg."

One of the oddest railways ever constructed anywhere on the face of this planet says the Pittsburg Post, was a little four-mile line that flourished like a green bay tree for two years in the heart of northern Illinois, and then ended its career with a horrible catastrophe. It was literally built on stilts, practically it had but one rail, and passengers got aboard from the second story of stations. It rejoiced in the euphonious yet name of "Peg-Leg," a term that was peculiarly appropriate, and which was bestowed on it by the quick-witted old men, who were its chief patrons. There are a number in this section who will recall it. Its local and baptismal name was the Bradford & Foster Brook, and its terminal was Bradford and Derrick City. It was put in operation in October, 1877.

Traveling Agent Campbell of the Pittsburgh & Western, who was located in the northern oil regions, gave a Post reporter interesting details in regard to its construction and operation. It was there was but one main rail, and it was supported by two or three auxiliary wooden ones. This rail rested on strong wooden beams, which were supported by massive timbers, strongly braced. About every 100 feet there were two or three wooden rails at eight inches in width, which were securely nailed to the supporting stanchions. These wooden rails were chiefly for balancing purposes. The bed of this oddity among railways varied, being sometimes twenty-five feet and sometimes less than half that elevation, according to the "lay" of the ground in the immediate vicinity of Foster Brook, through which it ran. There was no trestle in the apparent madness of this construction, however, for without this elevation the original and peculiar scheme of the road would not have been possible. The cars fitted on the rail like saddle-bags, hanging down on each side, and were really two-story cars, the upper portion being for passengers and the lower for freight. The bags for the storage of freight, stilted rails and peculiarly constructed cars, which seemed to slide along as if on a groove, supported a sufficiently graceful sight, but the strange appearance of a train was increased and intensified by the fact that two engines, or a species of Siamese-twin engines, headed the procession, one being on each side of the rail, the two balancing each other. When the train started, the man "stoked up," he had to descend to the tender by ladders. The engines and the cars ran on a series of central wheels, and as they protruded through the center of the tracks, they were made by which they did not inconvenience passengers. The cars were narrow, the main rail broad, and whenever the car tilted there was side wheels which brought it to wooden rails, and thus added in preserving the equilibrium of the train.

Horses Rank Higher Than Men.
In Prussia "there's such divinity doth engage a king," that even the best beasts in his service must not be lightly spoken of. The captain of a battery stationed in Berlin recently condemned an artillerist to several hours of extra drill daily as a punishment for "besting" a fine horse, a horse in the royal service by calling the noble animal a "pig." Nothing is more common in the German army than for a subaltern to address a common soldier as a stork, a hyena or a rhinoceros, but we are not aware that this vituperative confusion of species has ever been punished or even reprimanded by a superior officer.

A Mint Mystery.
According to a late report of the director of the mint, 19,570 silver dollars with the date 1891 were coined during that year. They less than a dozen of them are known to be in existence and each is worth a small fortune. There were 150,000 half-dollars coined in the same year; at present but one is known. What ever became of the silver coinage of the year is one of the unsolved governmental mysteries. Thirty-two years later there were only 1,000 of the 1851 dollar pieces coined. Yet anyone who has $1 to his pocket piece. A cool $1,000 would not buy an 1891.

Books and Rats.
A clever writer of gossip about books refers to the injury that books stored away in book stores are apt to sustain. The dampness affects them and rats are prone to make a meal of them. Rats gnaw books for the paste that is in them. They sometimes get more than they bargain for. The color of cloth book-bindings, it is well-known, is not of the "fast" variety. Dropping water upon them will readily demonstrate this. There is poison in it sometimes also, as Mr. Rat has found out, and it has been the death of him. He can hardly be called healthy literature, we opine.

A Gentleman Who Got Thoroughly Disintegrated is a Railroad Wreck.
"A month or so ago," said the drummer, "I stopped over night at a small tavern in Illinois and before retiring I sat for an hour in the room used for an office talking to two or three men, one of whom, a lame man, was to occupy the double room with me. I went up to bed some time before he did and when he came I was snugly tucked away but not asleep.

"By the way," he said, "you were talking about pensions downstairs weren't you?"
"Yes, I rather believe in pensions economically administered."
"So do I," he said, carefully taking off his glasses and with them a wax nose, which he laid on the table, somewhat to my discomfort. "But I don't believe in being indigent—that's where he fished out a glass eye and put it in a tumbler of water and then took out his teeth and put them with his eye. I couldn't say anything and he went on."

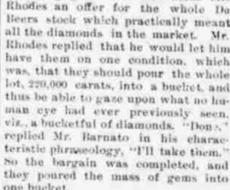

"I know men who are to-day getting from $10 to $50 a month—he removed his wig and hung it up carefully—who do not deserve it any more than my grand-uncle does, and I hate to see any man get a dollar—at this point he sat down, kicked off his trousers and one shoe, took off a cork leg and laid it by the arm, and I was about ready to jump out of the window."

"Good Lord, man, I almost yelled as I sat up in the bed, 'don't you get a pension?'"
"Of course not," he answered with a look of surprise. "I was in the army four years, but I got this in a railroad wreck, and the company had to put up $50,000 damages. That beats a pension out to pieces." Then he put on the cork leg, and went to his own bed, and I had nightmare as usual, and got out an hour before my disintegrated friend did."

A DEAL IN DIAMONDS.
A Bunch of the Brilliant Gems the Subject of a Bit of Trade.
Now that Mr. Cecil Rhodes has become one of the men of the hour, it will be of interest to relate a smart transaction he had with his financial colleague, Mr. Barnato, another of the diamond magnates of Kimberley, and as widely known in South Africa as Rhodes himself. Mr. Rhodes, as chairman of the De Beers company, has often had the managing of the output of diamonds within his control, while Mr. Barnato, on behalf of his firm, Messrs. Barnato Bros., has been one of the heaviest purchasers of the glittering gems. He had made Mr. Rhodes an offer for a whole lot of De Beers stock which practically meant all the diamonds in the market. Mr. Rhodes replied that he would let him have them on one condition, which was that he should pay for the lot, 225,000 carats, into a bucket, and thus be able to gaze upon what whole man eye had ever previously seen, viz., a bucketful of diamonds. "Don't," replied Mr. Barnato, "another of the characteristic phrases of his, "I'll take them. The bargain was completed, and they poured the mass of gems into one bucket."

It is said they gazed long at the unique sight, and after the bucket had been photographed the goods—diamonds are termed "goods" at Kimberley—were duly delivered to the purchaser, and the gemmer of Mr. Rhodes showed respectfully to the diamonds take very careful sorting and classifying, and in this bucketful there were 100 kinds. Messrs. Barnato Bros. were six weeks in completing the sorting, and the gems were kept off the market all that period; and, of course, Mr. Rhodes had the market to himself all the while, and scored one in diplomatic tact over the deal.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.
Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.
Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
