THE SUNNY SOUTH.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE FROM THE LONE STAR STATE.

Balmy Sunshine in Southern Texas—The City of Galveston Showing the Sights to Visiting Scribes—Overflowing Hotels.

Galveston, Texas., Feb., 17.—One day of the National Editorial Association has passed and the program prepared for this city lasts until Friday night. At that time the party will divide, about half of the members leaving on a two weeks' trip to the City of Mexico, 1500 miles from here and the others returning to their homes.

When the St. Louis party arrived in Galveston they found other parties already here and the total attendance now foots up about 400 men and 150 ladies.

The usual amount of speech-making was indulged in yesterday morning, the Association was organized and at night a second session was held for business.

Galveston is a well-built and flourishing city of about 40,000 inhabitants. Its great drawback seems to be the lack of good hotels. The two principal hotels, the Beach and Tremont, have proven entirely unable to take care of the 600 people who came down upon them Monday night.

Most of the crowd went out to the Beach, on the bay a mile from the center of the city. This big hotel is under the same management as the Tremont and is opened only during the summer months. It was opened earlier this year, especially to take care of this crowd, but everything was confusion and many of the rooms were not ready for the reception of guests. A great many who sought to avoid the rush at the Beach went to the Tremont, only to be met with the bold bluff that the house was entirely full. Some went to the Beach and lost themselves in the crowd, others started out to hunt boarding houses without guide or direction and some registered for supper, or dinner as they prefer to call it, and determined to take their chances over the protest of the clerk that there was no room. The small party of seven, of which this writer is a factor, were, by refusing to leave after supper, finally wedged into small disordered rooms on the first floor—from the top. Yesterday by watching for advantages to be gained we were able to move down one story and get better rooms and the clerk promises us still better accommodations to-day. I must add however, that our party has been considered especially fortunate and some of our traveling companies have accused us of being born to luck.

With this statement of the lack of room, which is perhaps after all not their fault, my criticism of the hotels must cease. It can be said to their credit that they feed well and this has been a redeeming feature in all the confusion that followed our arrival here in the deluge of mud that succeeded a hard rain Monday night. Yesterday was a bright, springlike day and to-day the pretty weather still continues.

Two notable events occurred yesterday. In the morning the city authorities corralled and shipped out of the city a car load of tramps and at night the street cars were all stopped by a general strike, and to-day not a car is running in the city. These happenings have furnished a theme for a new lot of jokes and the editors are having a good deal of fun out of them.

In spite of the fears expressed for the safety of their friends by the fun-makers, one of the editors were sent out with the shipment of Weary Willes, although two intruders who got aboard at St. Louis were put off the special train before it reached this city.

As I am up this morning writing before breakfast, I have not investigated the cause of the strike. Perhaps the electric street car employes are merely demanding extra pay for hauling distinguished people, as a delicate compliment to the men of brains "in their midst."

Yesterday's meeting was held in Harmony Hall, a room well adapted for such meetings, and after President Thomas had called the association to order, Rev. Dr. Harris, a Baptist minister, prayed, and Mayor A. W. Fly delivered a cordial address of welcome. Then President F. B. Bailio, of Cleburne, president of the Texas Press Association, added a welcome in an address that was eloquent, appropriate and well conceived. The President deferred his formal address until to-day, the addresses of welcome being responded to by Ex-President Herbert.

Last night some of the delegates made up parties to visit points of interest, attend the concert at one of the theaters, or indulge in moonlight sails on the bay.

The business session was poorly attended and did not last long.

The social feature of to-day's program will be an oyster roast at 3 p.

m. and a reception at night at a fashionable club garden.

The Western Union Telegraph company is "setting them up" and today the boys are indulging in the almost unheard of luxury of free telegrams to their homes.

Rosser, Craddock and Breeding will go on to Mexico, but my present intention is to start home Friday night and get back Monday.

C. M. M.

Held as a Suspect.

A man giving the name of Chas. Conners was arrested by Chief Fritz Sunday, as a suspect. Conners was near the L. & N. depot when the Chief went after him and seeing the officer advancing he ran and was not overtaken until Wood's mill was reached. He was locked up.

Wets Win in Davess.

Owensboro, Ky., Feb. 20.—Official returns in all the precincts in the local option election in this county show: wets, 3,359; drys, 2,782; majority, 577. Four hundred and sixty of this majority was given in the city of Owensboro. Six thousand votes were cast, which is 2,200 less than were cast in the November election.

The National Editorial Association, Galveston, Tex., Feb. 20.—The National Editorial Association adjourned yesterday. Louis Holtman, of Indiana, was elected President and Denver selected as the next place of meeting. About 300 delegates left last night for Mexico, and the others returned to their homes.

Ah! There, Benjamin.

Indianapolis, Feb. 21.—At 5:30 o'clock this morning a baby girl weighing 8 1/2 pounds was born to Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison. Dr. Henry James was the attending physician. Mother and child are doing well. Mrs. Lieut. Parker, of New York, is with her sister, Mrs. Harrison. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison were married in St. Thomas' church, New York, April 6, 1896. The ex-President is in his sixty-fourth year.

Two Suits Settled.

Two big suits against the L. & N. Railroad were compromised at Madisonville last week. In the case of the administrator of Miss Fannie Morton, who was run over by a passenger train and killed at Morton's Gap about a year ago, the matter was compromised for $175. The road was sued for $25,000 damages for this accident. The other case was that of a boy named Moore, who, while swinging on one of the company's freight trains at Morton's Gap fell and was crushed to death. In this case the railroad company was also sued for $25,000 damages, but plaintiff settled at $175.

Will You Go to Washington.

As the date of the inauguration approaches the question of "which route is the best to reach Washington" is the subject of discussion with many. That popular trunk line, the C. & O., is one of the best equipped roads running trains into the capital and its service cannot be surpassed, while its time is the shortest between the East and West. The scenery along the C. & O. is one continuous plane of beauty, and the eye of the traveler finds rest from the usual strain on the nerves of the tourist. Parties from this section desiring to travel over this elegant line can catch the F. F. V. train either out of Louisville or Cincinnati. Two fast trains over this route leave the cities daily for Washington and the entire trip is made without change of cars. The usual low rate on such occasions will be given and any further information wanted will be cheerfully furnished by the agents of the road on application.

Prof. Louis Favour.

Prof. Louis Favour will give his illustrated lecture on "Electricity" at the Tabernacle March 1, under auspices of the Library Association.

The elaborate and costly display of electrical apparatus, machinery and working models that he uses was designed by him and constructed especially to attain this happy combination, and the large number of interesting experiments performed at frequent intervals during these lectures sustains the interest and enthusiasm from beginning to end and precludes the possibility of dullness. As an experimenter and manipulator Prof. Favour is unsurpassed.

Of the entertainment given a few nights ago in Springfield, Ohio, W. J. Fraser, General Secretary Y. M. C. A. of that place says:

"Prof. Louis Favour give his lecture on "Electricity" here last evening to a large audience, composed of the representative people of the city from the school boy up to the student and those interested in electrical science, and all were pleased, entertained and instructed. The lecture is popular and educational. The numerous experiments were well adapted to illustrate the subject and were all successfully performed. The sly witticisms of the professor added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Jas. Morris, a former clerk at Lacy & Lacy's saloon, was taken into custody at an early hour Saturday morning, on a charge of robbery. For some time the Lacy brothers had been missing sums of money from their cash drawer nearly every morning. Morris was suspected and on Friday night, when the saloon was closed, Mr. C. P. Nolen was employed to watch the premises. He hid near one of the front windows and awaited developments. Just before 3 o'clock Morris entered the house from the front door and was "held up" by Mr. Nolen, who took him in charge. The prisoner was taken to jail in default of a $200 bond, where he will remain until a trial can be had.
