TREED BY WOLVES.

"Skinned up" a Tall Pine And Lost Gun.

Roosevelt Enjoyed Melancholy Amusement of Killing Few Voracious Foes.

Col. Roosevelt enjoyed a parallel for his San Juan experience Thursday evening, the chief difference being that in this case the doughty Rough Rider was the subject of attack, and not the aggressor. For four hours he was kept in a tree by a hungry pack of wolves, until finally help arrived in the other members of the hunting party, who had been searching for him for two hours.

The weather turned colder at Keystone ranch Wednesday night, which led Guide Goff to prophecy the appearance of wolves among the stock that night. Thursday afternoon Col. Roosevelt wandered out alone, in the hope of shooting something before supper. He espied a small lion, and in attempting to creep upon it lost his bearings, as darkness was falling.

He vainly attempted to retrace his steps, and the peril of his position became apparent to him as he heard the long, melancholy howl of a wolf behind him, followed by others. He soon became aware that a pack of fully a hundred was at his heels.

Several times the Colonel fired at the approaching herds, but a temporary stay was all he gained, and his shots attracted no attention from his friends. The hungry animals were becoming emboldened, and several jumped at the hunter, but were driven off.

Shooting again, the Colonel seized opportunity of "skinning up" a tall pine, while the pack devoured the dead comrade, but in doing so his cartridge belt was torn from his waist by a stub of a bough and and dropped to the ground, his gun being lost also in the attempt to regain the belt.

There was not time to descend, as the pack was now surrounding the tree in large numbers, their eyes gleaming fiercely in the darkness. His six-shooters yet remained, and Roosevelt enjoyed a melancholy amusement in killing a few of his voracious foes in safety. Fortunately, he was beyond the leaps of the most daring wolves, who sprang, snapping viciously, at him.

The darkness came on, and still help did not arrive. He yelled until he was hoarse, but there was no reply, and the cold soon began to benumb him, while hunger made itself felt. His watch apprised him that four hours had been passed in the tree, when shots were heard and his comrades, with guns and torches, appeared and soon dispersed the pack and assisted the half-frozen statesman to descend from his perilous position and return to the ranch for supper and sleep.—(Meeker Col., telegram to the Chicago Times-Herald.)

REPUBLICANS MAD

Because Deputy Marshal Did Not Arrest Democrats Who Are Under Indictment.

Jackson, Ky., Jan. 19.—The Democrats of this county who were indicted by the Federal Court at its last term at Louisville voluntarily met Deputy Marshal Morgan here to-day and gave bond for their appearance at the February term of the court at Louisville. Some of those indicted are the best men in this county. R. D. Hill and Marshal James insisted that Mr. Morgan arrest them, but Morgan simply wrote the accused to meet him here to-day. Republicans here are incensed at Morgan because he did not arrest the men. Those indicted are: Charles Terry, Sheriff, of Breathitt county; Price Terry, Miles Terry, Roger Callahan, Sam Callahan, Robert Deaton, Dan Thompson, Asberry Thompson, John B. Lewis, Lewis Mallon, Henry Hallon, John Griffith and Dan Jett.

Mme. Melba and Jean de Reszkle tell of their lives and art in copiously illustrated interviews in the February, 1901, issue of the American Queen. Following this very interesting article is a story of a celebrated musical composer entitled, "A Bit Mad on Music." Other complete stories are "A Lovers Quarrel," "Why The Museum Was Built," and "There are two Sides to Everything." Fancy dress costumes, evening frocks and the advanced styles in Spring gowns and millinery are shown in effective profusion, and an article on "What Dress Makes of Us" is replete with suggestions from women in all conditions of life.

JAIL BOARD

Paid By Girl Who Was Victim of Slander.

Told Stories Reflecting on Her Character And She Sued For $5,000.

Several weeks ago Miss Mary Baker secured a judgement of $1,000 for slander in the Circuit Court against John Allard, says a Bay City, Mich., telegram to the Chicago Record. Since that time the defendant has shown no disposition to pay. As a result a body warrant was issued for his arrest, and he is now boarding with Sheriff Kinney, at the county jail, his board being paid by Miss Baker, who is determined to get the money or punish her alleged defamer. Allard occupies a room on the third floor of the jail, and declares he will remain where he is until the time expires, which will be six months. Miss Baker and Allard worked on the Williams sugar-beet farm, west of the city, and she alleged that Allard told stories reflecting on her to some of the other men, and she sued him for $5,000.

MINERS CLASH

With Officers and Two Union Men Killed.

Met On Highway Between Boxtown and Crabtree and Carbondale Mines.

Earlington, Ky. Jan. 21.—A clash occurred to-day between two deputy sheriffs and a posse of three men and 150 union miners, who were marching in the highway toward and near Carbondale mines. Organized miners in that end of the county have been for some time threatening to stop the operation of the coal mines of Hopkins county, all of which are being operated by non-union men. In the clash many shots were exchanged and two of the marching miners are dead as a result.

There has been considerable talk about a move of some sort to be made by the agitators this week, and the officers have been on the lookout. Today Deputy Sheriffs J. B. Lindle and Lucien Bassett, on duty at St. Charles and Isley, with a posse of three men from St. Charles, overtook the marching miners, 150 strong, on the road between Boxtown and Crabtree and Carbondale mines. The marchers were halted and sheriff's the proclamation prohibiting the assembling and movement of such bodies of men through the county was read to them. The Sheriff called on them to obey the proclamation, which they failed to do, and he then told them to consider themselves under arrest. His answer was a pistol shot from Bill Cook, leveled at his head. The bullet missed, but Lindle's face was powder-burned by the shot. A fusillade followed, in which most of the marchers are reported to have taken part, running as they fired. The Sheriff's posse stood their ground and returned the fire. None of the officers were wounded.

The names of the men who are dead are Bill Cook, of this county, and John Henry Taylor, of Central City, who has been in the county for some time as organizers.

After the battle parties who visited Boxtown report the village deserted. Deputies are scouring the country to night looking for other leaders and members of the attacking party who escaped.

The Sheriff's posse was armed with revolvers only. District President Jim Woods, of Central City, is out of the county.

Another Corporation Fined $1,000

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 18.—In the Franklin Circuit Court this morning the Ashland and Catlettsburg Street Railway Company, under indictment for failure to make proper report to the State Auditor, confessed and agreed judgment of a fine of $1,000, was entered.

There's a story of a farmer and his son driving a load to market. Of the team they were driving one was a steady reliable old gray mare the other a fractious balky black horse. On the way the wagon was stalled and the black horse sulked and refused to pull. "What'll we do father?" said the younger man. "Well," said the father, "I guess we'll have to lay the gad on the old gray." That homely compliment to women: "The gray mare's the better horse" suggests how often when there's an extra strain to be borne it is laid on the woman's back. How often she breaks down at last under the added weight of some "last straw." Women who are dragging along wearily through life can gain real strength by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It puts back in concentrated form the strength making material which working women use up more rapidly than it can be restored by Nature in the ordinary process of nourishment and rest. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are universal favorites with women because they are easy to take and thoroughly effective in curing the consequences of constipation.
