PORTER J. WHITE

In his Famous Production of Goethe's "Faust."

Porter J. White will present his version of Faust at Holland's Opera House, Tuesday night, Feb. 14, re-appearing in his favorite role of Mephistopheles. Miss Olga Verne is the Marguerite. The entire production is liberally staged by Mr. White with special scenery, properties, electrical apparatus, etc., for each act. The story of "Faust" is the embodiment of a most remarkable system of belief which found its culmination in the Middle Ages. "Faust" is at once always old and always new. Man's soul still chafes within the iron restraints in which it is bound; still seeks, as then by supernatural influence, so now by means of theosophy, spiritualism, and what not, to escape from the narrow field of human knowledge, and endeavor to attain at a bound the innermost kernel or things. This type has always existed, whether under the name of "Faust," "Prometheus," "Titan," or whatever it may have been called; and so in this sense "Faust" may still be considered true for us, and always will remain true.

NEXT ENGAGEMENT.

"Roney's Boys" Concert Co. Will be Here Feb. 21.

The date of "Roney's Boys" Concert Company at the Tabernacle has been definitely settled upon. They will appear on Tuesday night, Feb. 21. Nearly everybody in America has heard of "Roney's Boys of Chicago," and their exquisite singing and playing have delighted hundreds of thousands. They render high-class music and old time favorites.

A new feature this season is the "Golden Organ Chimes," nearly two hundred bell metal organ pipes graduated chromatically, played with percussion, and vibrating with the deep and mellow chime of the cathedral bells. Manufactured expressly for "Roney's Boys" and the largest of its kind ever made.

TOBACCO NEWS.

Cold Weather Still Has Depressing Effect.

Sales of the weed on the local market for the year amount to 248 hogsheads. This week the sales amounted to forty hogsheads, all disposed of privately. Receipts for the week, ten hogsheads, and for the year, 110 hogsheads. The cold weather has prevented tobacco being moved to any great extent for the past two weeks and there has been little doing in the loose market.

Mrs. Miliard T. Bartley and little Miss Gwynneth Bartley went to Gracey yesterday afternoon for a visit to the latter's grandmother, Mrs. M. A. Meecham.

SMALLPOX SUITS.

Parties Kept In Quarantine Want Damages From City.

Three suits in county court are the outgrowth of the recent smallpox scare in the county. W. J. Powell, T. J. Guthrie and W. B. Guthrie each filed suit against the city through the board of health for $40, alleged to have been lost by them in salary while they were quarantined on account of smallpox being under the same roof. The case of Powell was tried, and the jury returned a verdict in favor of the city.

In the T. J. Guthrie case the jury found a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $38, to which the city filed motion for appeal. The case of W. B. Guthrie has not yet been called.

MAJ. PHELPS BURIED ON HIS BIRTHDAY.

Body Laid to Rest in Hope-well Cemetery Thursday Afternoon.

WAS SIXTY YEARS OLD

And Was One of the Most Learned Lawyers at the Hopkinsville Bar.

Judge John Phelps died Wednesday night from the stroke of paralysis sustained Sunday. He never regained consciousness. He was buried on the 60th anniversary of his birth. He was born in Hopkinsville Feb. 9, 1845, and was the eldest son of Judge Hiram A. Phelps, long a leading lawyer. He was educated in the schools of Hopkinsville and in 1867 began the study of law in the office of his father. The following year he was admitted to the bar and remained the junior partner of the firm of Phelps & Son until the death of his father. Since that time he had practiced alone. He possessed judicial talents of a high order. He became known as a fine "judge of law" and preferred office practice. It is doubtful if he ever made a set speech of any kind. He could state his case in the fewest possible words and his conclusions were generally correct. He filled the office of city attorney one term and frequently acted as special judge of circuit court. He was a candidate for circuit judge in 1897, but made no canvass. He did not even go to the convention, although his friends assured him that he could win the nomination with proper management. He replied that the people knew he was a candidate and could give him the office if they wanted him to have it. The nomination went to another more active candidate.

He was married Nov. 13, 1866, to Miss Emma McReynolds, who died in 1871, leaving one son, Mr. Hugh R. Phelps.

Judge Phelps was called "Major" Phelps, but the title was a complimentary one bestowed on him by his friends. He was a man of robust physique and energetic habits. For years it had been his daily habit to arise at daylight and take a walk of a mile or more, for healthful exercise, before breakfast.

He roomed in his business offices on Court street and was studious in his profession and attentive to his law business.

Funeral services were held at the home of his son Thursday afternoon and the body was buried in Hope-well.
