Insects as Voyagers.

Among the things that furnish occupation for the eyes and minds of transatlantic voyagers are the houseflies which accompany the great steamships from one side of the ocean to the other. In fine weather the flies buzz cheerfully about the sheltered places on the decks, and when the wind blows high they take refuge in the cabins and saloons. The flies often remain with the ship while in port, and return with her on her next trip, thus crossing the ocean several times in succession, and perhaps spending the entire season at sea.

Spooning at Close Quarters.

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

One of the most unique and popular figures ever appearing on the baseball field will soon be wielding the indicator in the National league circuit, according to a recent report.

"SLATS" DAVIS.

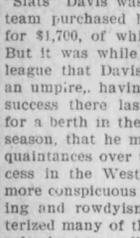

Should the rumor prove true, it is safe to assume he will constitute as much of a drawing card as "Rube" Waddell, Hans Wagner, Napoleon Lajoie and Christy Mathewson, in the games wherein he umpires. Reference is made to Ira J. Davis, known as "Slats" or "Dixie" Davis. He is now an umpire in the Western league, and, some say, by far the best umpire on western fields. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1894, and the same year made his debut as a professional ball player in New England. Since then his eccentricities and "clown stunts" have made him known to fans from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He left first base to become an umpire, because of an accident to his wrist three years ago. His service in the big league has been confined to brief seasons with the Washington and New York teams, but he knows all the big league stars. It was while he was manager of the Danbury, Conn., team, in 1898, that he developed and brought out Sheppard, Parent, Howell and Phelps. While with New York he was in the employ of John B. Day, Adrian C. Anson and Buck Ewing. While playing in the Western league, "Slats" Davis was with St. Joe, which team purchased him from New York for $1,700, of which he received $500. But it was while in the Pacific Coast league that Davis made a showing as an umpire, having achieved a notable success there last season. He asked for a berth in the Western league this season, that he might renew old acquaintances over the circuit. His success in the Western league has been more conspicuous by reason of the rioting and rowdiness which has characterized many of the games, and a dead calm has generally settled down when "Slats" went into the game. This caused him to gain the attention of President Pulliam, of the National league, who has been having his troubles with many umpires. Davis is a comedian, and while he holds the players right to the rules and don't have to take time to look it up in the books, he enjoys good nature on the ball field. If his decisions are questioned he calls, good-naturedly, "Buy a book of rules, ten cents," and if the player persists, it is "to the bench," and perhaps a fine. But he likes to see something on the field besides fighting and gloom.

Citizens of Canada treat their athletes different than they do in the United States, as is instanced by the case of William Sherring, of Toronto, who won the Marathon race at the Olympic games at Athens. Sherring returned home recently.

When he left for Greece he was brakeman on the Grand Trunk at $60 a month. When he returned he was made a present of an aggregate of something over $7,000 in coin of the realm, in addition to full and clear title to a house and lot. The Canadian government took judicial recognition of the importance of his feat and appropriated $500 out of the federal treasury. The city council of Hamilton, Ontario, did the same. Then to top it all the Dominion government, benignant in the reflected glory of her plucky son, has appointed the racer to an inspectorship—a sinecure in which certain government property is investigated, and which will require only a part of his time, at a salary of about $750 a year, which means a great deal in a country where a dollar goes twice as far as it does in the United States. All honor to Sherring. He deserved all he got. If you don't believe it go out and try to run 25 miles. Then recall that Sherring not only ran 25 miles, but raced the whole distance and won from the best long-distance runners of the whole world—all for the glory of the Dominion of Canada. Sherring won but one race. All along the route through the extreme east of Montreal and other towns he was greeted by cheering mobs, who surrounded his train much as they do the presidential special in the southwest. Our own athletic team returned from the Olympic games, where they made almost a clean sweep of the events in which they competed. Sheridan alone won several world's championships. Yet how do we greet them? One lone Coney Island steamboat, chartered by the Irish-American Athletic club, goes down the bay and hurls a helle at the conquering heroes. Saturday night the Irish club gave them a banquet at the Hotel Astor. That's about all. Therefore, the poorest American athletes, as fine a body of men as ever walked forth to battle and delivered the goods, return to their native health practically unheralded.

Moral—When about to be a hero, move to Canada.
