The Weather.

FOR KENTUCKY—Tuesday increasing cloudiness, with showers in west portion.

The King of Saxony went up with Count Zeppelin in his airship last week and staid up for an hour.

A ship's crew of eleven men were captured and eaten by cannibals in the New Hebrides recently.

Ashbell E. Newell, of Chicago, has been elected president of the Tennessee Central Railroad to succeed Geo. W. Ristine, resigned.

Col. W. E. Hobson, of Bowling Green, a veteran of the Federal Army, was found dead in his bed at the Mansard Hotel.

Mrs. Alice Webb Duke, divorced wife of Brodie L. Duke, the tobacco magnate, was committed to the asylum for the insane at Kankakee, Ill.

Cook says the North Pole is a cake of floating ice in a frozen sea and Peary says that he nailed the American flag to the Pole.

The higher up the North Pole Commander Peary climbs the plainer he shows his envy and bitter jealousy of Dr. Cook, who beat him to the goal.

Henry E. Rosevear, the Y. M. C. A. worker known all over the country, died in Chicago a few days ago. He had frequently visited Hopkinsville.

A party of school girls in a special sleeper near Bristol, Tenn., stopped the train by hanging their clothes on the brake cord that applies the emergency brake.

It is well that Roosevelt is out of the country, since the North Pole has been discovered. It will not suit Teddy to have Cook and Peary claiming a bigger stick than his.

The funeral of E. H. Harriman, at Acden, N. Y., Sunday, was private. Sixteen workmen acted as a guards of honor, walking beside the hearse and the carriages containing the mourners.

The international aeronautical conference opens at Nancy, France, on Saturday. Orville Wright and Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviators, will make exhibition flights in Germany this week, Wright at Berlin and Curtiss in Frankfurt.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, who won the international cup at Rheims, France, took the grand prize at Brescia, Italy. Bouzier, the French aviator, was his only opponent. Curtiss' share of the prize money was $6,000. Curtiss also won the prize for quick starting.

A dispatch from Chicago says: "Chicago is face to face with a serious race problem. The negroes who flourish there have invaded the best residence districts, crowded into the schools, in some cases to the practical elimination of white pupils, monopolized one traction line and have become so active generally that a climax is at hand. Taking a lesson from the South, it is proposed, in all seriousness, to segregate the races in schools. Long and bitter experience here shows that neither race does well when they are bundled together in the schools."

LATEST IN THE POLE SQUABBLE

Germany and France Come Forward With Full Recommendations.

COOK HOME FIRST

Controversy is Exciting Interest All Over the Civilized World.

Little progress has been made toward the settlement of the Peary-Cook controversy over the discovery of the North Pole. Germany and France came forward Sunday with recommendations for deciding the quarrel by the appointment of a scientific arbitration commission. Dr. Cook's adherents are still firm in the belief that he was first to reach the pole and are producing many things to the discredit of Commander Peary. Peary's friends say that the Commander has proofs that Dr. Cook is an imposter. Wireless dispatches last night told of Dr. Cook's homeward journey on the steamship Oscar II., which is gaily decorated in his honor. In New York, the Arctic Club of America, is completing arrangements for a banquet to be given to Dr. Cook on the evening of September 23. Commander Peary was still at Battle Harbor last night repairing the Roosevelt, which will probably be delayed for five or six days before reaching Sydney, Cape Breton.

DR. COOK MAY YET BEAT PEARY HOME

Report That Steamer Roosevelt is Badly Disabled at Battle Harbor.

St. Johns, N. F., Sept. 13—According to Capt. Neilsen, of the fishing steamer Taff, which arrived here from Battle Harbor, Labrador, Commander Peary's steamer Roosevelt was badly damaged by ice in the north, and may not get to North Sydney before September 25. The Roosevelt struck a rock while entering Battle Harbor and was fast for six hours, but was not seriously damaged by this accident. Dr. Cook is due to arrive in New York Sept. 21.

PEARY'S STORY

Corroborates Cook's and Both Men Have Same Kind of Proof.

Washington, Sept. 13.—In an interview Saturday Anthony Fiala, the Arctic explorer, declared that Dr. Cook was the first man to reach the North Pole and that his claims are given much weight by the subsequent statements of Commander Peary, that the conditions he found at the pole were exactly as those described by Dr. Cook.

In addition he declared that unless Dr. Cook is a past master in the art of using scientific instruments, he could not possibly "fake" observations that would stand any kind of a scientific test. "Dr. Cook has sufficient technical knowledge, I think, to 'fake' a series of observations that would pass muster. When Dr. Nansen returned from the Polar regions his figures, when submitted to experts, proved to be correct, and when they were carefully figured out it was found that Dr. Nansen had gotten one-sixtieth of one degree closer to the pole than he had himself thought. When Capt. Cagni's figures were examined he was given a mile more than he figured himself."

"A scientist can sit back in his chair and riddle faked figures. If Cook's figures prove to be what he thinks they are they cannot be proven fakes. His observations will speak for themselves."

"I think Peary's story substantiates Cook's. If Peary had found a mountain, or land, or life at the North Pole, Cook might have been discredited. But he did not; he found just what Cook found. People doubt Cook's fast progress across the ice; this is confirmed by Peary's even faster time."

"Peary says he can discredit Cook, but there has been nothing in the statements so far that will discredit the Brooklyn explorer.

"Cook was stamped as an imposter because there was no white man with him at the pole. Peary's last white companion turned back when he was 150 miles from the pole. And Peary kept on with four Eskimos and his negro valet, Matt Hansen. While there can be no discounting Hansen's bravery he knows nothing of scientific instruments. So, if Cook's solitary achievement is to be doubted, what are we to say as to the value of Peary's statement?"

"Peary returned from the pole much faster than Cook. Peary had left supply bases, Cook had none."

"At first I was skeptical of Cook's report of minus 89 degrees Fahrenheit. I communicated with Willis L. Moore, Chief of the Weather Bureau at Washington, and he told me there were official records of 107 degrees below in Siberia."

PEARY OPINION.

What Peary Thought of Dr. Cook in 1898.

"To Dr. Cook's care may be attributed the almost complete exemption of the party from even the mildest indisposition, and personally I owe much to his professional skill and unruffled patience and coolness in an emergency."

"In addition to his work in his special ethnological field, in which he has obtained a large mass of most valuable material concerning a practically unstudied tribe, he was always helpful and an indefatigable worker." — Extract from "Northward Over the Great Ice," by Peary.

This Won't Do, Mr. Peary.

A dispatch from Battle Harbor, Labrador, dated September 10, says: "Commander Peary will say nothing about Dr. Cook's claim to the discovery of the North Pole April 21, 1908, unless Dr. Cook makes a full statement of his journey over his signature to some geographical society or other competent body. It is intimated by some of his companions that in the latter event Commander Peary will undertake a complete refutation."

This won't do, Mr. Peary.

You have publicly proclaimed Cook a fraud. You have announced that he has never been near the pole; that, indeed, he has not been out of sight of land. You have, in short, branded him as the most conscienceless and spectacular faker of the age. As an honest man yourself you cannot now dismiss this matter and refuse to say anything more about it.

You must prove your charges or place yourself in a position as unenviable as that in which you would place Dr. Cook. You cannot expect to blast the reputation of a rival by your unsupported and certainly not disinterested word, for while you have been more prominent in Arctic exploration than Cook your personal reputation is no better than his.

Moreover, if you would have the world believe that your charge is true you must prove that it is true, for Cook's conduct and spirit in this affair have been in every way so much manlier and fairer than yours that the world is to-day properly prejudiced in his favor.—Courier-Journal.

"BLACK MAMMY"

Probably Oldest Woman in Kentucky Died Saturday.

Caroline Thompson, colored, probably the oldest person in Kentucky, died in this city Saturday. Well authenticated records show her to be about 109 years of age. She was born in Virginia and was brought to this part of the country by John Meadow, one of the pioneer planters, and was bought and sold as a slave several times.

She remembered distinctly all of the important occurrences of her life, and especially the "fall of the stars," which was after she became a mature woman. She was the last of a family of twenty-five children. Up to a week ago her health was remarkably good. She was a typical Southern mammy, and had many devoted white friends in the city.
