SOLDIERS

Fired Upon Near Jackson, in Breathitt County

Enroute to Crockettville from Jackson Monday night the soldiers sent to preserve order, were fired upon by a crowd of men on the opposite side of the river and several bullets passed close to the heads of the men in one of the wagons. Capt. Sams ordered some of his men to return the fire and another detail was sent out with a view of apprehending the desperadoes. Only one man was caught, however, and ascertaining that he was unarmed he was allowed to go.

Prizes for Good Menus.

The patient housewife who is trying to cater to the needs of her family on a moderate income, has to solve daily the same old problem, "What shall I cook for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner?" The very monotony of the question gets on one's nerves and there is a lot of real difficulty in planning a wholesome variety for each day. The Chicago Record-Herald has come to the aid of puzzled housewives by printing in each issue a set of three menus, with receipts, under the title, "Meals for a Day!" What is more, it gives four cash prizes every week for the best of these menus, and women all over the country are invited to compete. The terms of award and the names of the latest winners may be found in any Monday issue of the Record-Herald. That is the day, too, when the "Martha's Management" column appears with its helpful hints and advice to cooks and housekeepers. Marion Harland's Sunday page also gives a group of selected receipts, which if cut each week and kept in a scrap book will make a most valuable collection. Women not familiar with the prize menu feature of the Record-Herald should investigate it at once. Many have found it a handy means of getting fresh ideas and securing cash for those they already have.

Choosing a Christmas Present

When you make a present of a periodical to a friend or a family you are really selecting a companion to influence them for good or ill during a whole year. If the acquaintances of your sons and daughters were to talk to them aloud as some periodicals talk to them silently, how quickly they would forbid the companionship! In the one case as in the other, the best course is to supplant the injurious with something equally attractive and at the same time "worth while." A food can be wholesome and utterly distasteful. Reading can be made so, too. But the Youth's Companion not only nourishes the mind, but delights it, just like that ideal human associate whom you would choose. The Youth's Companion fills that place now in more than half a million homes. Can you not think of another family in which it is not now known where it would be joyfully welcomed.

If the $1.75 for the 1910 volume is sent now, the new subscriber will be entitled to all the remaining issues of 1909. If desired, the publishers will hold these back or send them at Christmas time, together with the Christmas number and the Companion's new "Venetian" calendar for 1910, lithographed in thirteen colors and gold.

A FAMILY AFFAIR.

The Drummer Had an Easy Thing and Knew It.

"If that drummer ever puts up at this house again I'll try to make his stay interesting," said the clerk of a hotel in one of Michigan's liveliest towns as he scowled at a bellboy who was trying hard not to laugh.

"He came in here the other day and after registering turned the page back and looked at the names of the day before. 'Say,' he said suddenly, 'I have discovered a funny thing in the last few days, and that is that there are more persons registering under the name of Brown than there are under the name of Smith. I don't know whether the Brown family are more numerous or whether they travel more than the Smiths, but it is a fact nevertheless that there are more Browns to be found on the hotel registers than there are Smiths.'

"That hasn't been my experience," answered, "and you will find that it isn't true at this hotel, for there are six Smiths registered here to one Brown."

"You don't know," he retorted. "Now, to prove what I say and make it more interesting I will wager you that by the time I'm ready to leave tomorrow there will be more Browns on the register than Smiths."

"I thought I had an easy mark, so I took him up. He proposed that I should buy him a twenty-five cent cigar for every Brown whose name went down on the register, and he would do the same for me when the name was Smith.

"That was agreeable to me, and I simply chuckled to myself, for I knew of at least two Smiths who were due and who would undoubtedly be here before the drummer left.

"Well, in less than ten minutes it began to rain Browns. I never saw so many Browns together in my life. The hotel register began to look like a record of the Brown family. Every few minutes the drummer would call around, check up the register and demand the cigars coming to him.

"The truth came out at last. That miserable drummer had discovered that there was to be a reunion of the Brown family in this city, and, learning that most of them were going to put up here, he sprang his scheme on me to get his smoking for a month for nothing, and as if that wasn't enough he has just sent me a collect message reading, 'Done up brown!'—Detroit Free Press.

An Awful Lunch.

Professor William James, the famous Harvard psychologist, was giving to an attentive class remarkable instances of absentmindedness.

"And let us not omit from our catalogue," he said, smiling, "the well known case of John Burdon-Sanderson.

"John Burdon-Sanderson sat at his desk in University college lost in thought. It was noon. Beside the great but absentminded student lay his frugal lunch, a sandwich. Next to the sandwich lay a frog, not dead, but motionless. It had been the subject of a curious experiment in the lecture hall an hour before.

"At noon the assistant left the professor meditating before the sandwich and the frog, and at 1, when the assistant returned, the professor was unattended still. The sandwich was unattended, but the frog—the frog had disappeared."—Washington Post.

A Sensitive Subject.

"You made a grave mistake at Billinger's last night when you offered to teach the Billinger girls how to play auction bridge."

"I noticed that something was the matter. What was it?"

"Why, Billinger used to be an auctioneer years ago. His first wife was a Hammer, and the mother of the girls was a Gawne. They're awfully sensitive on the subject."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Familiar Phrase.

"Drawing on his memory."

Parental Cares.

"One of your daughter's suitors has distinguished ancestry."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrow.

"And the other is a very promising young man."

"Quite true. But I can't help wishing we could make arrangements that based on the present tense instead of the past or future perfect."—Washington Star.

Ground For Appeal.

"You are fined $50 for 'speeding,'" remarked the court.

"What," ejaculated the autoist, "only $50? I shall appeal. I'm agent for the car I was using, and my rival, whose old thrashing machine couldn't go half the clip I was making, you soaked for a hundred."—New Orleans Times-Picayune.
