IN CONSTANT FEAR OF SPIES

Inhabitants on Both Sides of Austro-Russian Frontier See Enemy in the Aeroplanes.

Spy fever is once more epidemic on both sides of the Austro-Russian frontier. The mayor of a small town near Ploek, in Russian Poland, declares that he was kidnapped by an Austrian air scout several days ago.

According to his story, he heard the sound of an aeroplane late at night, and when it descended in a field near the town, he went to capture the occupants armed only with the insignia of his office.

He alleges that the two airmen turned the tables by binding him hand and foot and lashing him to the body of the aeroplane. They entered their seats, warned their prisoner not to struggle, and resumed their flight.

The terrified mayor was finally brought to earth near the town of Bar, sixty miles away, and before he could give the alarm his aerial kidnapers vanished.

Frontier guards continually report the passage of Russian aeroplanes at night. An Austrian aeroplane which had to descend in Russia two days ago was confiscated and the airmen arrested.

At Lemberg forty-two Russians, including a number of women, are awaiting trial for espionage.

PLENTY OF ROOM ON EARTH

Little Danger That in the Near Future Inhabitants Will Be Fighting for a Foothold.

According to the censuses and estimates made in 1910 the globe contains nearly 2,000,000,000 inhabitants, an average of forty to the square mile. Leaving out of account the mountains, the desert and the ice-covered land about the poles, there must be at least 30,000,000 square miles capable of supporting a dense population, especially with the aid of modern scientific methods and modern machinery for the cultivation of the soil. If the whole 30,000,000 square miles could be made to sustain a population as dense as that of Belgium the earth would have about 20,000,000,000 inhabitants. There cannot be the slightest doubt that the population of the United States could be increased to an average of 200 to the square mile, making a population for the United States of more than 700,000,000. It is probable that Africa could maintain more than 1,000,000,000 of people, if it were thoroughly civilized. South America covers 7,000,000 square miles, and is rich enough to have at least 500,000,000 inhabitants.

ACCOUNTS FOR IT.

"How are you getting on with Mammie?" asked a girl of her brother, who had been paying attentions to a friend of hers.

"Fine, I think," replied the brother.

"What makes you think so?"

"She calls me Little Boy Blue."

"Ha, ha," laughed the sister, "I'll bet it is because you are always blowing your horn!"

HIS BUSINESS.

"What business are you engaged in?"

"Collecting."

"Collecting what?"

"The living world owes me."

GREAT MAN.

Gape—Jones has a wonderful constitution, hasn't he?"

Steve—Should say so. Why, he can read a whole patent medicine almanac and feel perfectly sound.

SELF-SATISFIED.

He—But you didn't exclaim: "This is so sudden!"

She—No; your proposal did not surprise me; I knew you had excellent taste.

NATURAL WANT.

"What is that heavy wire for they are putting up in the new lunch-room?"

"I guess that's a feed wire."

NO INDEEDY.

"It will require eighteen months to get the new one-dollar treasury note into circulation."

"Not after my wife gets it."

ALL HER RELATIVES.

Wife—You got family when you married me.

Husband—Yes, more family than I can well support.

FINE DEFINITION OF CULTURE

Somewhat Rare Possession About as Valuable as It is Given to Humanity to Acquire.

What is culture?

First, what is it not? It is not anything one may put on. It is not fine manners, fashionable clothes, correct speech, nor skill in the tricks of politeness. It is not "knowing how to enter a room properly," nor sipping soup from the side of the spoon, nor using the right fork, nor having the art of saying pretty nothings. Neither is it knowledge of books, not acquaintance with the last comic opera or play, not having read the latest novel. It is not knowing Greek, Latin and English literature, nor any other mind-stuff. One may be perfect in all these things and be a cad. These arts and accomplishments have their value, but it is not culture value.

What is culture?

It is the harmonious, healthy development of one's personality. It means a brain developed until it thinks clearly, the will until it acts properly and stands firm, and the feelings until they minister to life, not destroy it.

Culture is simply skill in using one's self. It is opposed to awkwardness, stumbling, bungling and the like.

It is not good against bad, righteousness against sin, nor morality against immorality; it is high as against low, fine as against coarse.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Woman's World.

THE REASON

"She looks so discontented and dissatisfied."

"No wonder. She has a husband who gets her everything she wants."

LENTEN CASUISTS.

Lenten fasters in the middle ages were excellent casuists, if rather weak in their zoology. To them all was fish that came from the sea. Whale flesh was roasted and served with peas, the tongue and tail being accounted special titbits; the porpoise, too, was roasted and served as a Lenten dish, even at the table of the king. French settlers in Canada, however, showed the greatest ingenuity in this respect, when, observing that the beaver spent much of its time under water, they determined to lass it as a fish, and dined on roast beaver on fast days with great content, the flesh being sweet and tender, not unlike pork.—London Chronicle.

TWO BIRDS WITH ONE STONE.

"Gold has been discovered near Reno."

"What of it?"

"Might be a chance to go out and dig up the price of a divorce."

TOO FIENDISH.

"I would hesitate at nothing to accomplish his ruin."

"Why don't you present him with an automobile?"

OF COURSE.

"Does your wife talk more than one language?"

"Yes, she talks every language she is conversant with."

NATURAL DEMAND.

"If the women are sent to congress what will happen?"

"Why, every woman will want to be speaker of the house."

ITS CUE.

"The starch trust is now attacked by the government."

"That trust ought to find it easy enough to present a stiff front."

CASUALTY.

Knicker—I hear Jones was in a street car accident.

Bocker—Yes, he got a seat.
