JOIN IN HARMONIOUS WHOLE

What Might Be Described as Crockery Orchestra May Be Heard in Department Store.

For odd musical effects you want to wander through the china department of some great store on a day when they are having a bargain sale and many people are handling the dishes. Customers are constantly picking up single pieces for inspection and then setting them back again among the other dishes on the table and the sounds produced as dish hits dish are many and various.

From some big, heavy platter you get what might answer for a deep bass note and from some thin, tiny, delicate cup the high treble, and you may hear all the notes between, sometimes confused and mixed, sometimes heard running almost in a scale and sometimes with a chiming effect.

These dishes have many sounds. Here is one that has the odd note of a cowbell. Some bigger, thicker pieces of coarser clay give a sound clear but cold. Many pieces of finer quality have a distinct musical resonance. All over the great space, from near and far you hear the various notes, sometimes singly, sometimes in disjointed groups. This is the crockery orchestra.—New York Sun.

Thought His Duty Ended.

The Duc de Raguse once explained to the Countess de Boigne the nature of his connection with the emperor as follows: "When the emperor said, 'All for France,' I served with enthusiasm; when he said, 'France and I,' I served with obedience; but when he said, 'I without France,' I felt the necessity of separating from him."

Accentuating Plant Characters.

It has been found that under red light (light through red glass) plants become more robust than in any other. They also become more pronounced in their chief characters—the leafy plant becomes more leafy, all shades of green become more pronounced, the sensitive plant more sensitive and all in every way become highly specialized.

A newspaper has a legal right to expose a business firm's methods of doing business, providing the motives of its publishers "are open to the belief that they are in good faith exposing those who are overreaching the simple and abusing the confidence of the credulous." is the substance of an opinion handed down in New York by Judge Hand in the federal court.
