"I was taken with a severe headache and cold, which finally brought on constipation and bowel trouble. Physics of all kinds were used, and we were obliged to resort to the fountain syringe for help. I could drink castor oil like water, but it did no good. Salts were of no use. The doctors were puzzled. After using three bottles of Peruna I consider myself entirely well." Mr. John B. Capers, No. 610 Pecan St., Fort Worth, Texas.

A Marriage by Proxy.

Marriage rites have varied, in various countries and periods, but the purpose, at least in monogamous countries, has been about the same under varying conventions. A Denver girl has just been married, in Denver, to a Dutch engineer of Samarang, Java, who went through the ceremony under Javanese skies, facing a young woman who represented the bride. In Denver the bridegroom was represented by a young man from Brooklyn. The marriage thus performed, under a dispensation from the Queen of Hel and, and for the purpose of the bride's avoiding certain undesirable provisions of the Dutch immigration laws as applying to the Dutch colony of Java, is as binding as any other. The bride sails from San Francisco for Samarang, a married woman, although the bridegroom was among the antipodes when she went through the ceremony.

Sundry persons who have objected to customary marriage rites have formed alliances deemed freer because of their being less solid and done in solemnization of the mutual agreement. The most freakish of the marriages of the self-advertising advanced persons has not seemed quite so fanciful as the union made between a man in Java and a girl in Denver with, literally, the world dividing them.

The sanctity of marriage—or the stability of the term is preferable—rests upon intention rather than upon the form of the ritual. The shipwreck of many matrimonial ventures based upon avoidance of the conventional forms is not due to the manner of the marriage, but to the temperament which rebels at the customary and insists upon novelty, even in the matter of a marriage ceremony.—Courier-Journal.

Susan Simpson.

Sudden swallows swiftly skimming,
Sunset's slowly speeding shade;
Silver songsters sweetly singing
Summer's soothing serenade,
Susan Simpson strolled sedately,
Stifling sobs, suppressing sighs,
Seeing Stephen Slocum stare 'y
She stopped, showing some surprise
"Say," said Stephen, "sweet singer,
Say, shall Stephen spouseless stay?"
Susan, seeming somewhat shyer,
Showed submissive straightway.
Summer's season slowly stretches—
Susan Simpson Slocum she;
So she sighed some simple sketches
Saul sought soul successfully.
Six September seasons swelter—
Six sharp seasons snow supplied—
Susan set in sofa's shelter
Six small Slocums side by side.

Killed Four, Spared One.

Herman Auerbach, a wealthy real estate operator at New York, dependent over financial reverses, shot and killed his wife, two grown daughters and himself, using a magazine rifle equipped with a silencer. The women were all shot while asleep. He spared his son, a boy, leaving a note telling him to inform relatives.

SPRING IS COMING

Now Is The Time to Prune Fruit Trees and Vines.

At this season of the year it becomes imperative that the man who intends to produce fruit of even fair quality and in reasonable quantity or in abundance turn his attention to the correct pruning and spraying of his trees or vines. In view of his fact it is thought reasonable to offer a few suggestions on pruning.

WHY WE PRUNE.

1. To modify the vigor of the plant.
2. To produce fruit that will be larger and better.
3. To keep the tree in proper and convenient shape.
4. To change the habit of the tree.
5. To remove superfluous or injured parts.
6. To facilitate spraying and harvesting.
7. To train the tree in some desired form.

PRUNING FRUIT TREES.

Pruning is a necessity where good fruit is desired. An unpruned tree can never be expected to produce fruit of high quality. With the best tilled trees if we cease pruning for a few years the fruit has a tendency to grow smaller, and loses its color and flavor because the air and sunlight cannot pass through the thick branches.

Many old orchards have been neglected for some time and as a result are choked with water sprouts and dead limbs.

Trees in this condition should not be pruned all in one year. The first year remove the suckers, and all of the dead wood and the most objectionable crossing branches. The second season more of the unnecessary crossing branches may be cut out. After this a light pruning each year will do.

Prune regularly, not spasmodically.

Head in young trees, thin out old trees.

Prune during the dormant season. Prune close, do not leave stubs. Paint all large wounds.

Keep the tree free from suckers. Do not allow stock to prune your trees.

Water sprouts are the result of too heavy pruning.

An axe or hatchet is not a pruning tool.

Unpruned, unsprayed and uncultivated orchards are not money makers.

The orchard is not a profitable source of firewood.

In pruning grapes, remember that the fruit grows on the new wood of the present season's growth, which springs from wood grown the preceding season. Wood that bore last season will not bear again. For this reason grapes should be cut back very severely in order to stimulate plenty of new healthy good growth. The fruit is borne near the base and ordinarily one shoot should not be allowed to produce over four clusters.

Robbed Pawn Shop.

Three auto bandits entered a pawn shop on the East side, N. Y., bound and gagged the three clerks and stole $15,000 worth of jewels in pawn, but really worth much more. They put them in suit cases, left the men locked in and escaped in their car, also taking $170 in cash.

Listen Daughter.

Listen Daughter. Your mother tells me that you and she have been talking over the matter of getting a hired girl to do the housework. She says that she feels sure that you two could get along with the work all right, but that the young fellow who is coming around here evenings will think we are not swell enough if he knows that you and mother do the housework. Don't you worry about that. If he thinks such stuff, he is not good enough for you. But he looks pretty good to me and if he is half the fellow I take him to be, he'll think all the more of you when he knows that you not only know how to cook and bake and mend, but that you are on the job. So let's put up a little game on him. The next time he comes, receive him in your kitchen apron. Tell him to amuse himself in the parlor for a moment until you finish manicuring the supper dishes. I won't be here, you know. He picks out my lodge nights to make his calls. So I won't be in the parlor to embarrass him. Then along about ten o'clock, ask him if he wouldn't like a bite of lunch. He'll insist that it will be too much trouble, but you tell him he may come along and help. Any man in the world will fall for that. He'll trail along after you to the kitchen. You'll have the stage all set and the proper costumes ready. The costumes will consist of two aprons, one for you and one for him. Oh, he'll put it on. If there is anything a young fellow will fall for it's the kitchen apron and a job doing nothing but keeping out of the way. Then you get the lunch ready. Tell him to slice the bread and no matter how he butchers it, tell him it's fine. Ask him if he can make a salad dressing. If he says he can, let him go to it. And you praise it to the skies. Ask him for the recipe. Tell him you'll keep it a secret. What would you like for a wedding present?—Providence Enterprise.

Judge Moss at Bowling Green has reversed the county court in a liquor case, ruling that express agents are not required to show to the public the names of persons receiving liquor shipments from other states. He says it cannot be presumed that liquors so received are to be used in violation of law and this being the case, they are protected by the interstate commerce law.
