TUESDAY, JULY 6

No invasion of Russia has never amounted to a rush.

No wonder Evelyn does not want to get on the witness stand. The subject of her six-year-old son might be brought up.

The pictures of Col. E. M. House, the man President Wilson sent to the war zone, shows that he was at no time in danger of suffering the fate of Absalom.

The United States is determined that General Victoriano Huerta shall not re-enter Mexico from American territory while he may continue a factor for the disturbance of the the political or military situation.

Teutonic successes in Galicia, the slowness of the Dardanelles operations, and the failure of the allies to inaugurate the much discussed offensive in the west are responsible for a feeling of discouragement throughout England.

Judge Jim Mulligan, of Lexington, was one of Kentucky's best known men. He was famous as an orator, lawyer, poet and above all as a wit and after-dinner speaker. There is no one in Kentucky to fill his place in all respects.

Judge J. R. McBeath, aged seventy-six years, one of the best known lawyers in the State, died at Leitchfield after a prolonged illness. For twenty-four years he was Circuit Judge of his district, and also was at one time law reporter at Frankfort.

German submarines and mines sank a total of 103 steamers during the month of June, according to an announcement by the Board of Trade. As a result 111 lives were lost. Sixty-eight steamers, with a total tonnage of 28,090, were sent to the bottom, and thirty-five sailing ships.

The intense prejudice against Frank by a certain class at Atlanta is still showing itself in organized hostility to Jews generally. Thousands of small cards, bearing the following words, printed in red ink are being distributed in Atlanta: "Carry me in your purse. Stop and think. Before you spend your money, shall it go to a fund to protect the murderers, to buy a Governor. Stop and think. Now is the time to show your colors, to show your true American blood. It is streaked? Can't you buy clothing from an American? Can't you buy the necessities of life from an American? Gentiles, it is up to you. This little card is only a little anthill to start with. Help it to grow into a mountain."

The people outside of Atlanta are more than ever convinced that Gov. Slaton acted with courage and wisdom in saving Frank from the rabble.

The latest issue in the gubernatorial race is the charge by Stanley that McChesney is a corporation attorney who solicited employment by corporations to resist tax increases by the state board of equalization. Copies of letters proving the charge were shown last week. The Princeton Leader, a Bosworth organ, says: "With McChesney a known representative of the corporation in the fight against a just proration of the tax burden before the State Board of Valuation and Assessment at Frankfort, it is very evident that the people should get away from him in this campaign. Bosworth recommended the raise in the corporation franchise assessment, and McChesney fought the raise and in fighting the raise he did so as an attorney after soliciting the job."

"Catching" Tuberculosis, or Infection.

TO the man who works for his living, falling sick with tuberculosis means a very real danger not only to his own life but to the lives of his wife and children as well. His wealthier neighbor may lay aside his routine cares and "take the cure" for tuberculosis without materially affecting his family's health or income. The consumptive workingman, on the other hand, must give up his job and with it his only income, and at the same time he is frequently compelled to remain at home, a constant source of danger to his family, unless he is properly instructed. It may save you who read this article considerable money and suffering if you learn from it how to avoid the entrance of tuberculosis into your body.

Tuberculosis is infectious and communicable from one person to another. It differs in some respects from scarlet fever, measles, or smallpox, so-called "contagious" diseases, in that tuberculosis requires repeated exposures and certain special conditions to pass the germs from the sick to the well. It is not inherited, but must be communicated through one of the following sources from one person to another:

- (1) The infection is derived in the very large majority of cases from the sputum discharged from "open" or ulcerating tubercles in the lungs.
- (2) A certain number of persons, chiefly infants, estimated variously from one to ten per cent. of all cases, receive the infection from the milk of tuberculous cows.
- (3) A very few others may possibly obtain the infection from the urine and fecal discharges of consumptives or from the pus joints or other parts of the body which are the seat of ulcerating tuberculosis.
- (4) In a few extremely rare instances the infection is conveyed through the blood of the mother to an unborn child, but the offspring seldom survive long.
- (5) No infection can be conveyed from tuberculosis of the "closed" or non-ulcerated variety, or after ulcerations are completely healed.

With regard to the manner of infection, still bearing in mind that tuberculosis must be communicated from one person to another, we find that by far the most frequent mode of infection is by inhalation; the second is by swallowing, and the least common, by inoculation of a wound or abrasion. Considering each of these modes of infection a little more carefully, we learn that:

- (1) The bacilli are inhaled most often in dust. The dust is most often contaminated by careless spitting; but the germs may also be given out in the act of coughing (with the mouth unprotected) or hawking, sneezing, loud talking, singing or laughing. Quiet breathing carries no infection.
- (2) The bacilli may be swallowed with food which has been contaminated with infected hands or otherwise, and also with the milk, butter and other dairy products derived from cows suffering from bovine tuberculosis.
- (3) Inoculation by the infection of cuts, scratches, or abrasions is not frequently observed.

While no age, race, or class is immune against infection from tuberculosis, children are more susceptible than anyone else. At the age of 15, frequently as high as 75 per cent. of the population may show the presence of the germs, though not that many may be sick with tuberculosis. In view, however, of the fact that these germs may lay quiet in the body of the child for years, until with unfavorable surroundings his resistance is lowered, causing the disease to develop, it is extremely important that fathers and mothers do everything possible to keep their children away from danger of infection in their earlier years.

Everything should be done at home to keep the child rugged and healthy. The father and mother, whether they have tuberculosis or not, should be scrupulously careful in their habits of spitting and person hygiene. The working father owes it not only to his own health, but to that of his children to avoid tuberculosis in every possible way.

Intellectual Conviction.
The phrase "intellectual conviction" is misleading. There can be no conviction (or mental conclusion) without the intellect. One may have a notion born of fancy, or a sentiment arising from desire; but a conviction means the result of a logical process—a process which is, from beginning to end, an affair of intellect, and nothing else.

JOB FOR THE PSYCHOLOGIST

Probably Will Keep Him Guessing for Some Time, If He Can Work It Out.

At last an eminent psychologist has made an important discovery which does not upset all our previous notions. President G. Stanley Hall of Clark university is the discoverer. And his discovery is, assuming him to have been correctly reported, that the typical American girl of eighteen years is so interesting that he would be almost willing to go on his knees to her, not as a man, perhaps, but as a psychologist.

Now it happens that plenty of people are, as a matter of fact, doing every day as men what President Hall suggests doing as a psychologist. But at just this point the puzzles begin—and also the task of the psychologist.

It is presumed that the job of the psychologist is to figure out how our brains work. If he can figure out how the brains of the typical American girl of eighteen operate and revolve, he will have conferred a vast and lasting benefit on bewildered masculinity—particularly on those who have knelt, not as psychologists, but as men. The distinction may not look important, but it contains all the difference between being or not being "in the know."

Mr. Harrington Emerson, the famous efficiency engineer, classes among the greatest organizations of human history the organization of woman.

Love—And Understanding.
"To know all is to pardon all," our French friends tell us. Yet love and trust will supply the lack of knowledge and produce the same happy end. In spite of the fact that the natures of men and women are different, it is possible for a man and a woman to live happily together, although not understanding each other. This lack of understanding is for their good. If a man knew every thought, feeling and motive of a woman, what would his love be worth? Love is faith. True love knows no jealousy, no doubt. It is because a man does not know a woman, but has faith in her purity and honesty, that he is so dear to her. She knows that he is taking her upon trust, as she takes him, and it is their faith in one another that binds them. There are no rifts in the rosy cloud of true love, for true love is perfect faith, and the cloud that is riddled by the shafts of doubt and jealousy is a ragged cloud that reflects only a little of the sunshine of life, while the greater part filters through and is lost in the mists beyond.
