PHONOGRAPH IN THE KITCHEN

Some Suggestions That May Be of More or Less Interest to the Modern Cook.

The New York Sun gives the following amusing receipt to illustrate how popular talking-machine records may be utilized in correctly timing all culinary operations, while at the same time adding pleasure to labor:

German Coffee Cake—Set the instrument going, and cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and a pinch of salt while the instrument is rendering Siegmund's song from "Die Walkure"; add one-half of a cupful of flour and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Work to a smooth consistency during the playing of the "Tannhauser" overture. This will last just long enough to get the mixture ready to be poured into the baking pan. Put into a quick oven and bake as long as it takes Gadsdi to sing "Mild und Leise" from "Tristan und Isolde."

Italian Curry of Mushrooms—Stir one can of button mushrooms as long as it takes Caruso to sing the "Lament" from "I Pagliacci." Add a tablespoonful of butter and curry powder, and boil slowly while the sextet from "Lucia" is being sung. That will bring it up to a beating consistency. Add a cupful of cream at the last note, and beat in strict time until Tetrazzini has finished singing "Ah, fors' e lui." Serve with spaghetti.

French Rabbit—Put a record of a Farrar singing the "Carmen" "Habenera" on the instrument, and at the first note begin heating one-third of a cupful of milk. Remove at the last note. Stir in the finely chopped Gruyere or Parmesan cheese, salt and cayenne. Stir briskly to the enthusiastic strains of the Metropolitan singers doing the "Soldiers' Chorus" from "Faust." Then add the yolks of two eggs and cook as long as it takes Ysaye to play the "Meditation" in "Thais." Serve hot to the singing of Seguro's air from "Mephisto."—Youth's Companion.

SHE KNEW PAPA

"Well, now, what does your papa do?"
 "Oh! whatever mamma says."

SAME OLD TROUBLE.

"Darling," said the melancholy wife, "if you should die first, you'll wait for me on the other shore, won't you?"

"Oh, I suppose so," rejoined the weary husband, "I've always had to wait for you every time we went any where."

A REAL SURPRISE.

"I was much impressed by Professor Diggers' discourse on Egyptology."

"What seemed to strike you most forcibly?"

"The fact that I expected to fall asleep and didn't."

ITS NATURE.

"Do you think a telephone operator could look on his business as a profession?"

"Well, it certainly is a calling."

TAKING BOTH.

"Take my advice, boy, and see the girl you marry is a good plain cook."

"But why couldn't I marry a good pretty one, dad?"

HIS DREADFUL CONDITION.

"How's the patient this morning?"

"The doctor says he's got potato poisoning and is in a catatonic condition."

INDEFINITE.

Patience—A kitten has to become fat before it jumps at a mouse.

Patience—Perhaps, but a woman

Not an Experiment.

Paint Lick, Ky.—Mrs. Mary Freeman, of this place, says: "Before I commenced to take Cardui, I suffered so much from womanly trouble. I was so weak that I was down on my back nearly all the time. Cardui has done me more good than any medicine I ever took in my life. I can't possibly praise it too highly." You need not be afraid to take Cardui. It is no new experiment. For fifty years, it has been found to relieve headache, backache, and similar womanly troubles. Composed of gentle-acting, herb ingredients, Cardui builds up the strength, preventing much needless pain. Try it for your troubles, today.—Advertisement.

WHAT HE DISPLAYED.

Lady of House (to tramp who has just jumped over picket fence)—You've got a tremendous nerve to come over that fence.
 Tramp—Not only nerve, madam; I think I displayed considerable ability as well.

Like Trouble.

"Jim, you had better not go into this spelling bee."
 "Why not?"
 "Because, with your limitations, you'll find yourself in a hornet's nest."

Twin Souls.

Female Twin Soul—"Pardon my disheveled appearance; I have but just come from the bath."
 Male Twin Soul—"Another habit in common. How sweet!"

Appropriate Ending.

"Those joy riders certainly did me with a fitting finish."
 "How so?"
 "They collided with the electric trouble wagon."

Simple Matters in Poet's Diary.
 The manuscript journal of Mr. Gray, who wrote a very well-known elegy, has been found. Favorite remarks went like this: "One of my beans is nine inches high," or "On the first day of the month the rooks had young ones; on the second the swallows appeared."

DONKEY-LIKE.

Redd—What kind of an engine have you got in your new car?
 Greene—A donkey engine, I guess. It's awfully stubborn.

NATURAL EXPECTATION.

"Here this writer says the horse has got to go."

"Of course, he has. What else are race tracks for?"

SEEK TO REDUCE TYPHOID

Federal Authorities Take Steps to Prevent the Spread of the Too Prevalent Disease.

There were 36,000 deaths from typhoid in the United States last year and 400,000 people were incapacitated by the disease, according to a United States health report. The necessity is pointed out for precautionary measures to prevent such inroads in the future.

The United States health service is starting a campaign of education to reduce typhoid. It is pointed out that few communities in this country having a population of 2,000 or more have remained free from this disease for a year at a time.

In many American cities there has occurred within the last twenty years a considerable reduction of typhoid fever. Due in a large part to improved sanitary conditions in the cities, the typhoid rate for some entire states has shown a material decrease. For the country as a whole, according to available figures, the rate has been reduced about 50 per cent in the last 40 years. But the present rate is about the same as that which prevailed in some of the other advanced nations of the world 30 years ago. In other words the United States is a generation behind the times, in respect to the reduction of its typhoid rate.

LET'S A PECULIAR PEOPLE

Branch of the Lithuanian Nation That Has Not Been Absorbed Into Life of Russia.

Among the interesting, still persistently individual peoples of Russia are noted the Letts, a branch of the Lithuanian nation, a Slavonic division whose past in the marshy swamps of Lithuania lies as deeply hidden as the mystic ritual of the Druids. Lithuania was once a great kingdom. The Lett is taciturn, morose, little given to welcoming the stranger. He dwells apart, not as the communistic Russian in villages whose houses closely press one another. The Lett preserves his own tongue, traditions and dreams, and remains in this twentieth century more than half a worshiper of nature and a believer in omens and black craft. The old gods whom he cherished and revered the longest, whom he sought long after Europe all around him had accepted the teachings of Christ, will exert an influence upon him, still survive for him in a thousand superstitions, even though he is as devout as any of the other present day Christians.

Digestion Affects Eyes.

Some light is thrown on the question of the extent that eye troubles have to do with digestion by the discoveries of an English oculist. He recently found that poisons which enter the system as a result of colitis, inflammation of the mucous membrane of the large intestine, often causes a less of ability to see well at a distance or close by.

Eye weaknesses are thought to have little to do with digestion, but digestion plays an important part in diseases of the eye, many of which have been traced back directly to an absorption of poisons from the intestinal canal.

In one case reported from England a man who had suffered from recurring inflammation of the eye was cured by the removal of his large intestine. Such radical treatment is not regarded advisable or necessary, but it is a clear indication of the close relation existing between intestinal and eye disorders.

Travel of the Solar System.

Science has demonstrated that our solar system is traveling toward the brilliant sun Vega, in the constellation of the Lyra. We know that from the spreading, slight within the grasp of scientific observation, of stars ahead of us and the equally slight closing in of stars behind us; but Vega is also traveling with inconceivable speed in some unknown direction, as Arcturus is speeding across our line of vision at a rate of some 200 miles a second. The wise scientist, the practical scientist, and there is none other worthy the name, will be content with the demonstrable and hold his imagination absolutely within leash of demonstrable bounds. All great astronomical discoveries have been so made.

Poison in Shark Meat.

A kind of intoxication produced in both dogs and men by the flesh of the Greenland shark has been investigated by A. S. Jensen of the University of Copenhagen. The fresh meat seems to contain an unidentified compound acting like alcohol, the poisoning lasting two hours to two days, and the symptoms including tiredness, dullness, uncertain gait, cramps and diarrhea. By increasing quantities of the poison, which is soluble and removed by boiling, dogs are made immune.

When Courage Comes.

Knowledge is an antidote to fear—Knowledge, Use and Reason, with its higher aids. The child is as much in danger from a staircase, or the fire grate, or a bathtub, or a cat, as the soldier from a cannon or an ambush. Each surmounts the fear as fast as he precisely understands the peril, and learns the means of resistance. Knowledge takes the fear out of the heart, knowledge and use, which is knowledge in practice. They can con-
