DISCREPANCIES IN ACCOUNTS OF JUDGE

Discovered as Result of an Examination in McCreary County.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 14.—State Examiner and Inspector, Nat B. Sewell, filed with Gov. Stanley a report setting forth alleged financial discrepancies in the account of County Judge J. E. Williams, of McCreary county, to the State during the period from April 1, 1914, to December 31, 1915. Judge Williams, he charges, omitted to turn into the State treasury fines which, with interest and penalties, amounted to $108.15.

Judge Williams tendered his check for that amount to the State treasury. A committee of McCreary countians is in Frankfort seeking the impeachment of Judge Williams.

Silage as Winter Ration.

Investigations at the Missouri experiment station show conclusively that cattle can be wintered economically on a ration made up largely of silage, according to F. B. Mumford, dean of the college of agriculture, University of Missouri.

In one experiment a ration of corn silage and clover hay without grain fed to yearling cattle for 150 days resulted in a gain of 200 pounds for the feeding period of 150 days, at a total cost of $11.60, or a cost of 5.5 cents a pound of gain, as compared with a total cost of $15.75, and 7.8 cents a pound, when a similar lot of cattle was fed on six pounds of shelled corn per head per day and clover hay.

These results have been confirmed in other experiments, which all point to the conclusion that when silage constitutes the major portion of the ration fed to wintering stock cattle the cost of wintering is much reduced.

NO CURE FOR ALFALFA WILT

Unlikely That Any Remedy for Disease Can Be Developed—Retention of Crops Is Advised.

For wilt, a common disease of the alfalfa plant in the West, there is no known remedy. According to experts of the Oregon experiment station it is unlikely that any practical remedy can be developed, owing to the nature of the disease. Where it becomes serious rotation of crops is advised. Wilt is most prevalent on heavy soils, particularly where drainage is slow.

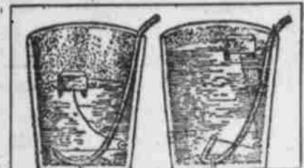

This disease has been reported in New York and California and has recently been identified in certain sections of Oregon. It is most serious where the stand of alfalfa is heavy and spreads fastest in the fall, when the surface soil is constantly wet. It also attacks clover.

The moisture causes rot to develop on the stems near the surface of the soil and this forms a point of attack for the wilt disease. A white cotton-like mold grows over the surface of the stems and leaves affected. The roots of the plant are not, however always destroyed.

REGULATING WATER IN TANK

Device Shown in Illustration Adapted for Use Where Supply Is Secured From a Spring.

There are a number of devices to keep the water in a tank supplied by a windmill at a given height. When one has a tank that is supplied from a spring or supply tank, the device shown in the accompanying drawing is just the thing to use.

The water is emptied into the drinking trough through a rubber hose at the bottom of the tank, as shown. A cord is attached to the end of the hose and runs through a pulley to a float on the surface of the water. As the water rises in the tank this float bends the end of the rubber tubing as shown, and thus shuts off the supply.—Farm and Home.

REDUCE COST OF BUTTERFAT

Result Given of Experiment With Silage at Kansas Experiment Station—Feed Cost Saved.

An experiment conducted at the Kansas experiment station shows that silage reduces the cost of producing butterfat from 30 cents to 21 cents. The herds in this case were of sufficient size to give reliable data and eliminate the difference that might occur between two cows.

The lot which were fed silage gave seven pounds more milk in the summer and 95.5 pounds more in winter per month than the herd which were fed dry feed.

The butterfat was also increased by .46 in summer and .4 in winter. The difference in the cost of feed was even greater. The silage-fed cows saved 60 cents per month in the cost of feed.

Ensilage for Lambs.
Lambs that are being fattened need some kind of succulent food, and for this purpose corn-ensilage is a good substitute for roots. The expense of growing, and the additional labor required in caring for them, make the growing of root crops unprofitable for many of the flock owners, especially when ensilage can be produced more easily and for less cost per ton.

"Greens" for the Hens.
A good substitute for "greens" can be made by cutting up clover leaves and tops. Pour over these enough boiling water to moisten thoroughly. Cover closely and let stand till nearly cold, then add some bran and cornmeal, and well before feeding. Feed this once a week, when green food is not available.

DEATH ENDS BEAUTIFUL LIFE

The Gentle Spirit of Mrs. James Bowling passes from its earthly tabernacle.

Just at the hour of noon yesterday, the gentle spirit of Mrs. James M. Bowling passed away from its earthly tabernacle to "that eternal home"—that home that gives to the weary heart a "perfect peace." For many hours previous her devoted family—husband, daughter, little grandson—had waited at her bedside, hoping for her recovery; but owing to her critical condition for the last few days, friends and relatives felt that the Death Messenger was drawing near. An "unseen host of angels" seemed to hover near her bedside to guard it and hallow it, with gentle memories of "the Christian's home." Although ministered unto by loving hearts and hands, in God's perfect faith, she was taken away in the "afternoon" of her beautiful life.

Sallie M. Sugg was born October 20, 1858. She was the daughter of Col. Cyrus Sugg, Colonel of the 50th Tennessee Regiment. Col. Sugg was killed at the battle of Missionary Ridge. Her mother was Martha Virginia Snaden-Sugg. Mr. James M. Bowling and Sallie Sugg were married Wednesday, January 7, 1878. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. James Whitworth, and her husband, Mr. James Bowling, and little grandson, James Bowling Whitworth.

No sketch could approach justice toward so unflinching a friend and delightful companion as Mrs. Bowling. Beside her tender guidance in her home, her kindly humor and sparkling wit, she leaves a rich legacy of memories which death cannot claim. Hallowed memories of her last hour, dear messages of love to each member of The Students, her much beloved literary club, a gentle good-bye to her life-long friends and neighbors and many whispered words of love and affection to her beloved family. These messages and recollections suggested the thought that pain and sickness were only the chariot that bore her from their sight, and that ere now she is safely over life's Jordan. She was a faithful soldier of the Cross, and counted all things else but dross. Almost her last words were the singing a few lines of her favorite hymn, "The Christian's Home is Glory, and 'There is Rest for the Weary.'" Realizing the end was near, wanting to live, she, with fortitude, could plainly say, "God knows best."

Much poetry, music, happiness came into her life. Great love was hers, of motherhood and wifehood, but at no time of her life did she ask God to multiply her joys, but to make her worthy of the least of them, was her daily prayer.

"Thus thinking o're life's dreams, Its lights and shadows made of hopes and fears, 'Tis said that death is kinder than it seems, And not the King of Tears."

"She is not dead! There is no death! She only went before To help her blessed Christ the Lord, Boost For Brown.

Phil H. Brown, editor of the Hopkinsville Saturday News; and one of the best-known colored Republicans in the State, has announced his candidacy for place as delegate from the State-at-large to the Republican National Convention.

Brown, who was secretary of the Christian County Campaign Committee, in the recent gubernatorial campaign, did some effective work for the party at that time. This county rolled up a majority of 2,038 for Morrow a figure without precedent in the history of the county.

Influential friends are at work in Brown's behalf and it is believed his early entrance in the race and his splendid qualifications for the place will make him a formidable candidate in the convention contest to be staged in Louisville March 1.
