WEBER MALE QUARTET

Next Number on The Great Lyceum Series.

The Weber Male Quartet which is to appear here at The Tabernacle on Jan. 20th, is in every sense a high class organization. Composed of four of the well known concert and Church soloists of New York City. An association of several years in successful concert and phonograph work has resulted in the beautiful blending, the clearness of enunciation and the artistic distinction which are the essentials of a really satisfactory quartet.

Few quartets have appeared before such widely varying audiences. The critical assemblage of the Metropolis, the church society, Lyceum and Chautauqua have all received The Weber Male Quartet with that hearty responsiveness which is the artist's richest reward.

The repertory of the Weber Male Quartet is as varied as its audiences. The old favorites sometimes in a new garb, are not forgotten but this quartette is unwearied in its search for interesting novelties. Many of the numbers on its programs are entirely new and unique and some never have been presented by any organization.

The personnel of The Weber Quartette is likewise unique in that each man is a musician as well as a singer. The quartette is sufficient in itself for the presentation of an entire entertainment, and requires no outside assistance for accompaniments or obbligatos.

DEATH OF MRS. TANDY

Beloved Woman Passes Away at Pembroke, of Pneumonia.

Mrs. Tommie Tandy, widow of the late W. H. Tandy, died at her home in Pembroke, Saturday at midnight of pneumonia, aged about 70 years. She was a member of the Baptist church and one of the best of women. Funeral services were held yesterday morning and the interment was at Pembroke.

She is survived by one daughter, Miss Sallie Tandy. Her only son, Gus Tandy, died several years ago.

Cowed in Prison.

"That 'threatened men live long' is an adage as true as it is old," remarked an old New York detective who is still on the job. "I don't know how many crooks I have arrested and sent to jail, neither can I recall how many of them have threatened my life as soon as they were free. Most of them have. But you see, I'm still in the business, though my hair is gray. The fact is that never a one of the many that I have aided in putting where the dogs wouldn't bite 'em has made even an attempt at carrying out his threat." "Don't they hate you more when they get out of jail than when they went in?" was asked. "It's a very desperate man indeed who is not cowed and tamed by imprisonment," answered the old sleuth. "The average criminal is no gentleman. He is as cowardly and as fierce as a tiger. Only fear and force rule him. But his spirit is usually broken, and his inseparable companion is fear when he comes out into the world again."

Practical Side.

Perceval Claude was greatly enamored of Maude Marie. Three times a week he could be found barking at her papa's front gate, and nearly all his salary was turned into cream chocolates by an appreciative confectioner. "You don't know how much I love you, darling!" softly cooed Perceval Claude, putting his arm around the dear girl one night when the moon was shining brightly and crickets were chirping musically. "Gladly would I die for you!" "O Perceval Claude!" ecstatically cried darling. "Do you really, really and truly mean it?" "Yes, dear," was the impressive rejoinder of the other. "Now, next week, any time." "Say, Percy," suddenly exclaimed the fair girl after a moment's hard thought, "do you carry any life insurance?"—Philadelphia Telegraph.

RICHEST BOY IN KENTUCKY

Critically Ill in a Hospital at Lexington, Kentucky.

HOPE FOR HIS RECOVERY

His Mother Outlines His Future For Great Things.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 17.—Mrs. John C. Mayo, who came into control of an estate estimated to be worth all the way from five to twenty million dollars at the death of her husband, the Eastern Kentucky coal and timber baron, told a reporter just how she is going to care for her tremendous fortune. She is going to train her young son, John C. C. Mayo, junior, aged 15 to walk in the business footsteps of his father.

He is destined to assume the management of the estate as soon as he arrives at man's estate, and his education is being mapped out by his mother along lines that will equip him to take the helm.

Mrs. Mayo said she is highly ambitious for her son, and that she feels he will be equal to direct the affairs connected with the many mining companies and development enterprises, and carry to completion the plans for the opening up of Eastern Kentucky that were the dreams, many already realized, of his father.

The heir to the Mayo holdings is now very sick at St. Joseph's hospital with acute nephritis, having been brought here this week from Millersburg Military Institute, but he will be well in a short time his physicians say.

CONVICT THREE AS NIGHT RIDERS

Jurors Find Two Knights and Stirrmen Guilty of Flogging John Moseley.

Creeville, Ky., Jan. 17.—A. O. Knight and son, Edgar, and John Stirrman, all widely known in this section, were convicted in circuit court here Friday and sentenced to serve not less than four years and not more than five years in the penitentiary on charges growing out of outrages said to have been committed by night riders.

The indictment recited that they were members of a band which called John Moseley, a prominent resident, from his home at night near Powderly several weeks ago, and for no reason, severely flogged him.

Night riders for more than a year intermittently have terrorized a wide section in western Kentucky. Their activities first were directed at negro labor in coal mines. Later the authorities were informed, they were endeavoring to regulate the conduct of communities, irrespective of race.

Flogging was a common form of punishment.
