

MEN IN MIND IN HOPKINSVILLE

Prominent Factors in The Busy Life of the Pearl City.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH NO. 89

The Oldest of All Human Occupations as Represented In Hopkinsville.

J. H. DAGG.

Unless the making of garments from fig leaves and the skins of wild beasts is entitled to precedence, the oldest of all human occupations is the construction of human habitations.

Whether it was the prehistoric cave dweller with his barricade of stone to keep out wild beasts, or the primitive herdsman with his tent on poles, or the savage with hut of bamboos and thatched roof, or the Esquimeau with his snow house floored with the skins of animals, or the ark to weather the flood of antiquity, the construction of an abode for man has ever been uppermost in the human mind. From the earliest tent-maker to the architect of the tallest sky-scraper, the house-builder has ever ranked among the pioneers of civilization and the leaders of improvement. This honorable calling is well represented in Hopkinsville, a city of modern business blocks and beautiful homes. One of the oldest of these house-builders, whose reputation is founded on a basis as solid as the greatest of his buildings, is James Horsley Dagg, whose well-known features head this column.

Mr. Dagg was born at Cuthbert, Ga., Feb. 13, 1863. His father was Rev. J. F. Dagg, a prominent Baptist minister and scholar, who came to Hopkinsville in 1872 as President of Bethel Female College. His twelve-year-old son came with him and has had the good sense to remain ever since.

The following year, 1873, he became one of the original Ferrell's Boys, and in the school of that noble old educator, Maj. J. O. Ferrell, received the instruction that became the foundation of his honorable and useful career. His first employment was as an apprentice at the trade of carriage making but after two years he decided that house building was more to his taste and started at the bottom round as a bench carpenter with Forbes & Bro. He remained with this firm year after year, working up in every department, from finishing materials to complete buildings. After ten years of mill work he went into contracting on his own hook and later opened a lumber yard and planing mill at Fifth and Virginia Streets, with a saw mill in the country. In 1903 he discontinued the planing mill and lumber yard and has since given all of his time to building and outside work. He also decided to make a specialty of heating and ventilation, which at that time was greatly neglected in this part of Kentucky. Some years ago he made a trip to the northern cities to study and investigate the means used there, where the thermometer hangs around zero for weeks at a time. He returned fully prepared to make any house comfortable in the coldest weather. At the present time every one recognizes that heat and ventilation are of the greatest importance in the erection of a home.

Some of Mr. Dagg's notable buildings in this city were the Planters Bank and Trust Co.'s building, the J. O. Cook block near the L. & N. depot, the Odd Fellows building, the Trice block and many handsome residences all over the city and county.

Mr. Dagg and his wife, who was Miss Adrienne Blackwell, of Henderson, live in a beautiful home on Alumnae Avenue, which is a center of literary life and elegance.

Mr. Dagg is a member of the Christian Church and is guided by the golden rule in all his dealings. No man in the city stands higher for integrity and reliability in his dealings with his fellowman. He is one of the men who has given real character to Hopkinsville as a business town.

New Arguments for Oil.

According to various versions, the oiled streets and roads are playing havoc with the English sparrows, and the beauty about it, nobody seems to care. As soon as the streets of cities are oiled the sparrows leave for the country to get their dust baths. The sparrows in setting get oil on their feet which ruins the eggs and prevents hatching. Oiled streets also knock the fly and mosquito business in the head, which is to say nothing of keeping down the filthy street dust.—Princeton Leader.

Last Hope Gone.

68 HEROES ON HONOR LIST

Three from Kentucky on Roll, Highest Reward for Bravery in Action With Enemy.

Washington, June 16.—Under a recent act of congress creating the Medal of Honor Roll, the equivalent of the Iron Cross of Germany, the Victoria Cross of England, and the Legion of Honor of France, the government of the United States has placed on this roll the names of sixty-eight heroes who performed deeds of great gallantry and intrepidity in actual conflict with the enemy. The placing of these soldiers on the roll automatically gives them a pension of $10 per month for life in addition to any other pension they may be receiving.

The names of the sixty-eight heroes, to which others will be added from time to time as the war department passes upon the various applications, are not being made public in Washington, but the identity of the recipients of this great distinction probably will become known in time in their local communities. One of the first to receive a place on the roll was Joseph O. Gregg, of Columbus, O. No. 9 on the list of successful ones is Orville T. Chamberlain, of 329 West Franklin street, Elkhart, Ind., who was captain of Co. G, 7th infantry, and regimental adjutant in the civil war. Capt. Chamberlain did not apply but the colonel of his regiment, without his knowledge, applied for him.

Under the act membership on this roll of honor, which is the nation's supreme recognition of valor, can only be awarded to those who hold medals of honor for gallantry and intrepidity displayed in actual conflict and the number of eligibles is few. Gallantry and intrepidity are military terms. Gallantry exceeds bravery, while intrepidity exceeds gallantry. Intrepidity implies utter disregard of death.

A list of those to whom medals of honor have been issued and who belong to the Medal of Honor Legion includes the following:

Kentucky—William H. Horsfall, Lindsay Station, Newport; Earl H. Horsfall, 936 Patterson street, Newport; Robert S. Robertson, 2103 Jefferson street, Paducah.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR HONOR ROLL.

Not all of these men who hold medals of honor will be entitled to go on the Medal of Honor Roll. They are ruled out unless their exploits, however courageous, were performed in actual conflict with the enemy.

Only persons who hold medals of honor when the bill passed can get on the Medal of Honor Roll. Up to Feb. 14, 1914, only 3,088 medals of honor had been given by the United States to all her armies and navies in all her wars and it is estimated that in the entire country there are about 305 surviving veterans who would be eligible to apply for recognition on the Medal of Honor Roll.

PONY AND HORSE SALE TO-DAY

D. C. Williams, of Pembroke, Will Offer Herd at Auction in Hopkinsville.

Mr. D. C. Williams, of Pembroke, will have a pony and horse sale here today. He will offer at this sale his entire herd of twenty head of Arabian ponies, consisting of stallion, brood mares and geldings. He will also offer about a dozen head of good business horses. The stock will be sold at public auction to the highest and best bidder. Mr. Williams announces also that he will take a few outside horses and ponies in the sale. He has some fine stock and the sale should draw a large number of buyers.

Out-of-Town Bid.

The bid of Nashville bankers for the deposit of $400,000 of the Daviess county road fund, derived from the sale of bonds, was accepted by the Fiscal Court. The only other out-of-town bid was from the American Southern National Bank of Louisville. Two hundred thousand dollars, the balance of the $600,000 bond issue, will be deposited in Owensboro.

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT

Mrs. Sheldon Spent $1900 for Treatment Without Benefit. Finally Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Englewood, Ill.—"While going through the Change of Life I suffered with headaches, nervousness, flashes of heat, and I suffered so much I did not know what I was doing at times. I spent $1900 on doctors and not one did me any good. One day a lady called at my house and said she had been as sick as I was at one time, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her well, so I took it and now I am just as well as I ever was. I cannot understand why women don't see how much pain and suffering they would escape by taking your medicine. I cannot praise it enough for it saved my life and kept me from the Insane Hospital."—Mrs. E. SHELDON, 5657 S. Halsted St., Englewood, Ill.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, battled with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.
