The first meeting of the K. P. A. the editor of the Kentuckian attended was at Ashland in 1880. So far as we recall, Urey Woodson and Harry Sommers are the only country editors of that day still in the business. Woodson was there 36 years ago. Sommers is on hand this week.

The mangled body of Gilbert Sanders, private in battery B, First field artillery, New York national guard, was found near Springfield, Ill., Friday. It is believed Sanders fell off the second section of the New York troop train which passed and was run over by the third section.

Light Brigade, a famous English race horse, was aboard the Atlantic Transport Line steamer, Minnehaha, which reached New York Friday from London. The horse has been purchased for $50,000 by Senator Johnson N. Camden, and will be taken to his place near Versailles, in Woodford county, Ky.

The discussions over the proposed settlement of the Mexican trouble are about to begin between Arrédondo, the Mexican ambassador, and Counselor Frank L. Polk, of the State department. Carranza on Friday warned Gen. Funston to look out for a possible attack from Villa bandits headed toward the Texas border.

Surpassing even in importance the entente allies' great effort on the western front, the news from the eastern battlefield shows that the Russians have extended their offensive on an unprecedented scale. On the whole line from Riga to Barauovichi, a distance of about 300 miles, the Russians are being hurled against the German lines.

All talk of an early departure for the border for the Kentucky troops was silenced Friday when the latest results from the federal examinations showed even deeper inroads into the strength of the Louisville companies than had already been made. The best opinion in camp is to the effect that the Kentucky boys will not be in shape to start for the border under a month.

Kissing one's divorced wife does not constitute a case of assault and battery, according to a decision of the court at Vincennes, Ind., who discharged John Everhart, of Sullivan county, in the trial case brought by Mrs. Everhart. She alleged her former husband called her to his buggy and kissed her twice. The Everharts, who are the parents of eight children, were divorced recently after having been married thirty-five years.

Mrs. Hetty Green in her will leaves all but about $5,200,000 of her $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 estate to her son, Col. E. H. R. Green, and her daughter, Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks, in a joint ten-year trust fund. Of the remainder of the estate approximately $5,074,000 is bequeathed to the daughter, in a separate ten-year trust fund to be managed by her brother. To her son-in-law, Mr. Wilks, Mrs. Green bequeathed $5,000 as "an appreciation of his having made an ante-nuptial relinquishment of any claim to his wife's property." She

A TWICE-TOLD TALE

Of Interest to Our Readers.

Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitated to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of an Elkton man is confirmed after three years.

W. E. Watson, Produce Dealer, Elkton, Ky., says: "I had pain in the small of my back, which bothered me especially when stooping or lifting. My back ached at night and I was lame in the morning. I tried easily and had head aches and dizzy spells. The kidney secretions passed too frequently and colds settled in my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills did good work."

Over three years later, Mr. Watson said: "I seldom use Doan's Kidney Pills, but when I need them, I would pay $5.00 a box for them. They are worth that much to any one suffering from kidney trouble. Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Watson has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Opera Tenors Peculiar.

"Operatic tenors are the most peculiar persons in the world to get along socially with," remarked a stage manager who was rehearsing a new operetta. "The very nature of their business makes them queer, I suppose. You see, they are under a continual nervous strain, have to take particular pains with their costumes, as well as be under continual guard of their voices at all times. They get snicky. I just had a setto with the tenor who is supposed to look pretty. This fellow had tried on the costume which had been furnished him. He did not like it and came to me with blood in his eye. 'You don't suppose I'm going to show up in this cheesy outfit, do you?' he said. I knew I had to humor him. So I sent the prop boy out and bought a bolt of pink ribbon, had the wardrobe woman decorate him with this in all kinds of fantastic rosettes and bows, and he was perfectly contented and said: 'Now, I look like something.' This is but one of the things a stage manager has to contend with."

DIPPY DUK

Just Half in Bed.

Clyde, Ky.—Mrs. I. A. Decker: "I recommend Cardui, the woman's tonic, to any woman in need of a remedy. For five years, I was unable to do my own work. Half my time was spent in bed. At last I tried Cardui. Now I am well and happy, and can do my own work. Don't suffer from pain, headache, backache, and other womanly miseries, when your own druggist has on his shelf a remedy for such troubles—Cardui. Get a bottle for yourself. As a general tonic, for weak women, nothing has been found for 50 years that would take its place. Try it. It will help you.—Advertisement."

WORLD'S BIGGEST GAS MAINS

Pipes With a Six-Foot Diameter Have Been Placed in Astoria-Bronx Tunnel.

The big gas mains in the Astoria-Bronx tunnel at New York are probably the largest cast iron pipes ever made, says Popular Science. The internal diameter is two feet three-quarter inches and the length twelve feet. The one end has the ordinary bell form; the other the spigot. The weight of one length is about 26,000 pounds.

These mains are laid parallel and run down a shaft at Astoria on Long Island, along a tunnel 225 feet below the surface, under East river, and then up a second shaft at One Hundred and Thirty-second street and East river. They are to carry gas into the Bronx, the most rapidly-growing borough of New York city.

It is not an impossibility that the tunnel may some time be flooded with water. Under such circumstances it would not be desirable to have the long lines of iron tubes begin to float. While the pipes are heavy enough to prevent their floating, the margin is not great. The weight of water displaced by a cylinder twelve feet long and seventy-seven and one-half inches in diameter is between 24,000 and 25,000 pounds. The overlap where bell end encompasses spigot end complicates the matter a little, but after all allowances are made, there would probably be a good solid weight to the pipe lines if the tunnel were full of water.

The amount of lead used to calk the joints is about 225 pounds per joint. The mains rest on concrete saddles set six feet apart.

WORK FOR THE GEOLOGIST

Question of the Origin of Ore Deposits Has So Far Not Been Definitely Settled.

Steamboat springs, Nevada, figure prominently in discussions of the origin of ore deposits. The waters of these springs contain the precious metals in minute quantities, and the sinter deposited by them contains several minerals that are common constituents of ores, as well as small quantities of many of the rare metallic constituents of ore deposits, including gold and silver. Such springs, therefore, suggest to geologists that many and perhaps most ore-bearing veins have been formed by hot waters rising from a great depth, which have brought their metal contents up in solution and deposited them in open spaces or fissures in the rocks through which the waters passed, the deposition of some ores being influenced by chemical reaction with the surrounding rock. On the other hand, many ore deposits are undoubtedly formed in other ways, for some are unquestionably of sedimentary origin and the metal content of some others has been carried down, redeposited, and concentrated by rainwater that descended into the earth's crust, but the "hydrothermal" origin—that is, their deposition from ascending hot water—of many of the more valuable ore deposits is indicated by the close relation observed at many places between mineral veins and eruptive rocks.

Arctic Adventure Overlooked.

In saying that Bradley Land has already appealed to one explorer, I must tell briefly of an attempt to reach it which was made in 1914 and 1915 by Messrs Rudolph Franke and Arthur Haack and which failed partly on account of unusual ice conditions. They sailed from Quebec on July 4, 1914, on the S. S. Guide, with the Canadian arctic explorer and fur trader, Capt. J. Bernier, who agreed to leave them at the entrance of Jones sound. On account of bad ice, they were unable to reach either Etah or Jones sound. After a summer spent in fighting the ice floes of Baffin bay, they were finally tipped just south of the entrance of Lancaster sound and forced to winter there. While out hunting one day a great blizzard came on in which Mr. Haack was frozen to death. This ended Mr. Franke's hopes of trying to reach Bradley Land and he returned to Quebec with Captain Bernier to find himself a prisoner of war, a unique ending to an arctic voyage of exploration.—From a Letter by Edwin Swift Balch in Scientific American.

Stenographer Saved Employer's Family From a Long Summer Without Fresh Bread.

This is a tale wherein the stenographer was not only of vast assistance in the husband's office, but was invaluable to the wife, as well, for at least the summer months. The family bought one of the attractive camps in the Maine woods, well out of reach of real helpful civilization and never realized until they arrived and unpacked all the groceries that the one thing necessary to their happiness was not among them—a compressed yeast cake. And, what was worse, there was no place where they could get one; a summer of crackers stared them in the face. The wife, in despair, wrote to the stenographer to look up yeast data of all kinds at once.

This valuable young person solved the problem with her usual promptitude by going to a first class grocery shop and leaving an order to have three perfectly good yeast cakes sent by mail three times a week at the market price of two cents each and two cents for first-class postage. The cakes arrived in perfect condition at regular intervals during the summer, and for once the wife joined the husband in giving full praise to a stenographer who justly deserved it.
