

Anxious for Prize Money.

Some of the sailors are already applying for their prize money, much to the annoyance of the Navy Department. During the last few days several attorneys have called in the interest of certain members of Sampson's fleet but upon inquiry it is discovered that they have been sent by the wives or other relatives of those entitled to this reward of valor. In several cases it has been disclosed that the applicants are in need of funds and hope to obtain relief from this source. It will be a long time, however, before there will be any prize money to distribute.

The proceeds of the sale of the prizes captured by the Cuban fleet have been deposited to the credit of the secretary of the navy, and when the war is over the money will be apportioned among the officers and men according to the provisions of law—one twentieth to the commanding officer of the fleet one-fifth to the commanding officer of the division of the fleet, $1 in every $1,000 to the captain of the ship and the remainder among the officers and men according to their rank. The secretary of the navy will not recognize attorneys in these matters, and warns all persons interested against making contracts for collecting prize money, on the ground that it is entirely unnecessary. The money will be distributed by a prize court after the war, when reports of all engagements and captures have been received. At present the officials of the department have too much on their hands and minds to attend to such matters.

High Lights.

One variety of joy is the discovery that your last nickel is a quarter.

No man ever believes that a woman in a white frock can be anything but angelic.

The young man can't hide his egotism any more than he can hide his mustache.

Some people go away to rest and take with them other people who make them tired.

The summer girl looks happy, but the cow standing knee-deep in a pool looks happier.

Society needs protection from people who talk about books which other people haven't read.

Some men go home on a hot day and quarrel with their wives because they look comfortable.

You can tell by looking at some women that they would make black-berry jam in flytime without a cover on the kettle.

The Evening Newspaper.

The value of the evening newspaper is not exhausted when it has given the news of the hour, or has helped the business man at his office or home. Copies are seldom found littering the seats of steam or electric cars, as it is taken to the household for perusal by the whole family. Of course, the evening is the time when it can be most thoroughly read and discussed. Moreover, so rapid has become every medium of intelligence from world's end to world's end, that the evening paper is more favorably circumstanced than its morning contemporaries for keeping pace with the genuine news of each day. The facilities for extracting the best essence of the world's history for the day and the world's thought upon passing events, have been brought to such a high state of development that it is enabled to keep even pace with daily events, furnishing a brief resume of such morning news as may have been expanded by other sheets beyond real value and keeping the record clear and unbroken.—Boston Transcript.

Sweet Simplicity is Now the Rage

The summer girl will wear her hair in two braids hanging down her back this season in the country. It is, of course, a style of wearing the hair which will be popular only for morning, or up to times to dress for dinner or supper. The reason for this fad is easily understood. It rests the hair gives the short and broken growth of the already long ones. The girls also pretend that this mode of wearing the hair is becoming and cool, and a great preventive of headache. The ends of the braids are tied with ribbons to match the shirt-waist or morning gown. Many of the most fashionable girls have taken up this fad, and it promises to be one of the most popular ones at the summer resorts this year.—From "Society Fads," by Patty de Peyster, in Demorest's Magazine for August.

Rations for the Army.

Paymaster-General Stewart of the navy has three months' rations for 7,000 sailors in store at Key West. He has three months' rations on every one of the ships in Cuban waters and three months' rations for 4,000 men on the steamer Celtic, which is now on its way to Santiago and will go as a base of supplies for the Puerto Rican fleet. Included in the Celtic's cargo are 300,000 pounds of frozen Chicago beef of the best quality.

Comodore Watson's squadron will be accompanied by a transport containing six months' rations for 3,000 men while each one of his vessels will be fully provisioned for three months.

Walking as a Tonic.

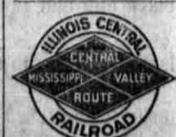

The lack of proper outdoor exercise walking briskly and inhaling plenty of fresh air, is the cause of fully one-half the ills that feminine flesh is heir to.

Walking, which also means standing erect with shoulders thrown back, lungs expanded, and head well poised, is the best tonic that can be prescribed for exhausted brains, weakened muscles and threadbare nerves.

And appropriate dressing is an important item, in order to secure the fullest possible benefit. To walk in tight shoes, a snug fitting corset, and trailing skirts is disastrous rather than beneficial to womankind.

Club women, who have studied the situation, prepare for their walks, by donning short bicycle skirts, short, jackets, low heeled, square-toed boots and light hats. The corset is wholly discarded.—From "Why women Should Walk," in Demorest's Magazine for August.

According to the latest official figures Italy has 50,135 public schools, of which 21,254 are for boys, 18,703 for girls and 10,173 mixed.
