Allied Governments' Purchases in the United States

Arrangements were entered into shortly after the beginning of the war by the secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the president, with the governments of Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Serbia, whereby Bernard M. Baruch, Robert S. Brookings of the war industries board, were authorized to make purchases in the United States of materials and supplies by order of these governments.

Under this arrangement these governments in common, through their requirements for materials and supplies to the commission through their designated purchasing agents in this country, and the commission then uses its best efforts to obtain offers of the materials and supplies required at the best obtainable prices and terms, and delivery and otherwise, and submits the same to the purchasing agent concerned, it being no part of the commission's duty to prepare and sign contracts, or to supervise their execution, or to determine technical details, or to carry out the inspection of materials, all of which matters are cared for by the governments concerned.

The foreign governments have agreed not to make purchases in the United States otherwise than through or with the consent of the commission. The arrangements provide that nothing expressed or implied, nor anything done or omitted by the commission, shall impose any obligation or liability upon the United States whether to advance moneys, to establish credits, or otherwise. The purchasing commission in carrying out the terms of this agreement, says Commerce Reports, is endeavoring to see first that the wants of the governments associated with the United States in the war are supplied as promptly as possible, and without interfering with the requirements of our own government. This necessarily involves the finding of a source of supply from which articles needed by the allies can be obtained without prejudice to contracts placed with the United States government for articles of the same kind, and in many cases it has been found necessary to develop new sources of supply—that is, to induce some one who has not been previously making the articles needed to produce them.

Movies Showing Methods of Increasing Country's Pork Supply—Boys' Pig Clubs

As a means of helping to increase the pork supply, the United States department of agriculture has released to the motion picture theaters, through one of the large motion picture companies, a film showing the work of the boys' pig clubs which the department is organizing in all parts of the country in co-operation with the extension divisions of the state agricultural colleges. The film shows methods of instructing farm boys, and in some instances girls, who have joined the agricultural clubs, how to raise better pigs and the methods used by club members in carrying out instructions. The first lesson taught in the film story is that it costs no more to feed and care for the pig of carefully selected stock than the scrub, while the results in meat produced is greatly in favor of the well-bred animal. The picture shows further how to feed and care for the pigs, how to protect them from disease, and how to shelter them from the inclemency of winter and the heat of summer. The results of wise selection and intelligent care are shown in the well-groomed, fat, healthy porkers wearing the prize ribbons they have won. The first pig club was organized in Louisiana in 1910. Now approximately 45,000 members are enrolled in the pig clubs throughout the country.

Timber Sales on National Forests Doubled in Year

Sales of national forest timber in the fiscal year 1917 were more than double those of 1916, according to the annual report of the government forester. The total amount sold exceeded 2,000,000,000 feet and is valued at more than $3,715,000. During the same period about 727,000,000 feet were cut and removed, for which the purchasers paid $1,507,303 into the federal treasury. The largest sales were made in Oregon, where about 688,000,000 board feet were disposed of.

In addition to the timber sold, approximately 113,000,000 board feet, valued at almost $150,000, was cut under free use permit by more than 41,000 settlers living near the national forests and depending on the forests for firewood and building material to improve their homesteads. The timber business on the eastern purchase areas, while still small as compared with the western forests, showed a decided increase. More than three times as much timber was sold and more than twice as much cut as in 1916. The material disposed of is largely of poor quality and its removal will improve the forest growth.

Of Interest to Women.

British women are proving successful as veterinary surgeons. The original model of Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty is now in possession of Mrs. Oliver Bacon of Paris. New York's subway has colored woman porters who wear a quite natty uniform. Mrs. Blanche Wagstaff, poet and traveler, has been appointed to the state charities board by Governor Whitman of New York. Members of the New York woman's motor messenger corps receive first aid instructions at St. Luke's hospital.

NOVEL VIEW OF SKYSCRAPER

This is not an Egyptian obelisk but a woman's eye-view of New York's latest skyscraper—the Bush Terminal, on Forty-second street near Broadway. It is 450 feet high and has 30 stories. The effect produced in this photograph was created by placing the camera on the sidewalk and pointing it toward the top of the building.

UNDER NEW METHOD.

Twenty Americans have been killed in action according to the first expurgated casualty list, which gave only the names of the officers. In the lists issued it was shown that two airmen had been killed in action and twelve had succumbed to natural causes. The expurgated list, it is explained, is a precautionary measure taken to prevent information reaching the enemy. It was authorized by Gen. Pershing at the request of the French Government.

COL. MUNDAY DEAD.

Col. James A. Munday, prominent lawyer of Vancouver, Wash., native of Hawesville, died this week. He was prominent in Kentucky politics and editor of the Owensboro Messenger at one time. He went West as land agent under Grover Cleveland. He joined the Confederate army at the age of 17 and fought all through the Civil War.

FORMER SECRETARY DEAD.

George von I. Meyer, former cabinet member and diplomat, died at his home in Boston, Saturday after an illness of several weeks, aged 59. He was Postmaster General under Roosevelt and Secretary of the Navy under Taft.

WEDS ARMY FLIER.
