FIVE HUNS AND THREE BOMBS, SO VICTIMS WERE PERMITTED TO CHOOSE UP.

Washington, May 21.—"How many of you are there down there?" cried an American soldier who surprised a group of Germans in a dugout in No Man's Land.

"Five," came back the reply, in perfect English.

"Well, I've only got three bombs; you'll have to divide 'em up yourselves," retorted the American, as he flung them into the dugout, with not unusual results.

This true story of wit in the trenches was told by a Signal Corps lieutenant, returning after several months over there.

FUNERAL OF MAJ. LUFBERY.

Before the body of Maj. Raoul Lufbery was placed in a grave near a certain French village, it lay in state in a room of a small frame building. Around it were hundreds of wreaths of flowers sent by American comrades, French aviators who had known him in the French army, and by French army corps.

Funeral Impressive.

The funeral of Maj. Lufbery was very impressive. The pallbearers, three American and three French aviators, carried the flag-draped coffin from the little frame building to a motor car for the trip to the grave. The procession was led by an American band, a company of American infantry just from the trenches and a company of French infantry. Following the coffin were 300 American and French officers, including all of Maj. Lufbery's companions in the air service, the American General commanding the sector northwest of Toul and a French General commanding an army corps.

The party drew up at the grave and while the service was being read one American aviator after another planned down from the sky, his motor shut off until he was just over head. Each threw out great bunches of red roses, which floated down on the coffin and the bared heads of the officers and caps of the soldiers, who were drawn up at attention. At the conclusion of the services the French General stepped forward and said:

"On behalf of my comrades of the French army, I wish to pay respectful fraternal tribute to one of the heroes of the air who was victorious eighteen times; a son of the noble and generous republic which came to our assistance to save the liberties of the world.

"Rest peacefully, Maj. Lufbery, close by the martyrs to our great cause. Your glorious example will inspire in us the spirit of sacrifice till the day when humanity's enemy shall be finally vanquished. Good-bye."

The American General under whom Maj. Lufbery once served as a private soldier, and the chief of the aerial service also paid homage to the dead aviator. The firing squad fired three times across the grave, a bugler sounded taps and another bugler, hidden in a nearby wood echoed it. As the sound of the bugles died away all was silence except for the droning of the machines of Maj. Lufbery's comrades, patrolling the line high in the air and occasionally the dull booming of distant guns.

ADVICE TO WOOL GROWERS.

Reports from Washington and Boston, Mass., state that the members of the Boston Wool Trade Association have agreed to accept Major General Goethal's proposal to fix the price of wool at present on a basis of the price of July 30th, 1917. The Government will take over all wool in the warehouses on this basis. If holders do not agree to sell, their wool will be commandeered. The greater part of this wool will be used by the Government for uniforms and other Government supplies and that which remains will be distributed among the mills for civilian needs. Major General Goethal advises all wool centers that the 1918 clip should not be disposed of during the next thirty days in order that the Government may have time to determine its exact needs for the coming year. Reports from Washington indicate that the Government will arrange to receive the 1918 clip on the basis of the price mentioned, but urges the producers not to dispose of their wool until more definite information is made available.

It would seem advisable for Kentucky wool producers to pack and store their seasons clip in the best possible way for at least a few weeks until the Government has issued more definite information. Care should be taken by producers to so pack their wool that the quality will not be injured by standing or mildew. In packing wool away either store it in wool sacks or in a clean dry bin.

The Department of Animal Husbandry of the College of Agriculture, Lexington, will be glad to offer further suggestions on storage and the Department of Markets will be pleased to give further information regarding the marketing problem at the earliest date at which it receives further definite information from Washington.

DEATH CALLS "IRON MAN."

(By International News Service.) Bloomsburg, Pa., May 22.—Death has finally claimed the iron man of Bloomsburg, Phenis Thomas. Three times he insisted upon helping in an operation on his left leg. Each time he refused anesthetics and held back the flesh as the surgeon sawed off the bone. He died of gangrene at the age of eighty.

Many of the tanks used by the British armies are manufactured by women.
