

BABY DROWNS

Little One Falls into Pail of Water and Loses Life While Parents Are Away

Poseyville Ind., March 22.—The little one-year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ramsey, of this place, was drowned in a bucket of water yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Ramsey had been watering his horse in a candy bucket in the yard and had only left the house but a few moments when the little tot walked out while its mother was employed and fell with his head down in the bucket, which was half full of water.

The child had probably been in the water about ten minutes when discovered. All efforts to revive the little one failed and the mother is prostrated with grief over the loss of her loved one.

Especially recommended for Piles—that is DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by J. H. Orme.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes, 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Purgative substances are then absorbed into the blood, as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All vegetable.

New Hampshire's Ice Mountains

One of the natural curiosities of this country is the Hampshire ice mountain on the bank of North creek 26 miles from Winchester. For about a quarter of a mile the west side of the mountain is covered with loose boulders and stones of light color, the mass extending all the way down to the river. By lifting these stones on any day in the year crystals of ice can always be found securely hidden in the crevices beneath.

Little Virginia Hale is Fearfully Burned.

Virginia Hale, one of Mrs. Ethel Hale's little twin daughters, stepped into a pot of hot soap, that was cooling in the back yard, Tuesday afternoon and was painfully burned on about one fourth of the surface of her body. One leg, side and arm were blistered and greatly burned by the heat and lye. The little girl was jumping a rope in the yard when she fell into the pot. The soap was partially cooled or she would have sealed to death. The outcome can now be foretold, but she is resting as comfortable as could be expected. —Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

BRAVE LITTLE GIRL

Rescued Mother and Brother from Drowning at Caseyville.

News reached us just as we were going to press, of the heroic act of little Miss Aikin in rescuing her mother and little brother from drowning at Caseyville. While driving along the levee, the horse drawing the buggy in which was Mrs. Aikin, her twelve year old daughter and six year old son, took fright at a wheel-barrow laden with fish nets, backing off the levee and overturning the buggy in deep water. The brave little heroine jumped as she realized that they were going to their death, saving herself, but seeing her mother and brother drowning she managed to get hold of her mother, and, small as she was, succeeded in pulling her to shore, then never thinking of her own danger, rushed into the water after her brother, and to the astonishment of those watching, but unable to render assistance, she also saved him. Those witnessing the scene claim to have never seen anything like it. The brave little woman should be entitled to a carnegie medal.—Sturgis News Democrat.

EDMUND KEAN.

To See Him Act Was Like Reading Shakespeare by Lightning.

Before the third century after the birth of Shakespeare had reached its first quarter there was born in England to a stage carpenter and a strolling actress a child destined to grapple with the poet's highest thought and interpret it with a vividness that to this day stands unrivaled. Coleridge's terse comment, that to see him act was reading Shakespeare by lightning, reveals him with the fullness of a volume. Edmund Kean, along with most people early trained to an art, had little if any education of the schools. He was when a boy provided with instruction by some benevolent people whom his smartness and beauty attracted, but he rebelled against the tasks of study and went to sea. But life there was too rough for his fine nature. He returned to England and at the age of seven began the study of Shakespeare's characters with his Uncle Moses. This he continued with an actress named Tidwell, who taught him, besides, as well as she knew, the principles of her art.

At an early age he had the credit of originality so surprising as even then to challenge the supremacy of Phillip Kemble. At fourteen he played Hamlet. King George had him recite at Windsor castle, and it is said this incident led some gentlemen to send him to Eton, but there is no record of it. At twenty he was in a provincial troop, a member of which he married, and for six years thereafter, until his glorious night at Drury Lane, his life was one of hardship, struggle, obscurity, but, thanks to the faith in himself, not hopeless. His London debut was made at twenty-eight. He had fought for it hard and long and would then have missed it but for the falling reputation of the theater. London debuts in first roles are not easy for provincial actors, and none knew better how hard they are to get than Henry Irving. Kean seems to have been at his full splendor and made a hit. After that his habits were altogether prejudicial to the refinement of taste or the acquisition of knowledge.

A TREE OF ILL REPUTE.

The Fresh Juice of the Upas Acts as a Deadly Poison.

An evil reputation has long been borne by the upas tree, Antiaris toxicaria, which grows in Borneo and other East Indian islands. It is still a common belief that birds dying within the influence of its poisonous vapors instantly perish and that it is fatal for animals or men to rest beneath its shade. It resembles certain rhus plants (like the poison ivy) in emitting a volatile substance which affects the skins of certain susceptible persons, though others are unaffected. The sap is very poisonous and is the chief substance used by the Dyaks of Borneo for poisoning the tips of their darts.

In this process an incision is made in the bark of the tree and the milky exudation collected on a palm leaf and dried first in the sun and then over a fire until a thick brown mass is left. In this state it can be kept without deteriorating, and when required for use it is made into a thin paste with the juice of "tuba" root, which is used to stupefy fish, or with tobacco or lemon juice, and the ends of the darts dipped into the mixture and dried. These darts are made from the middle stem of the palm leaf and are about six or eight inches in length and of about the thickness of a knitting needle.

They are used with a wooden sumpitan, or blowpipe, which is about seven or eight feet in length and has an internal diameter of about one-quarter inch. A bird struck by one of these little darts is instantly killed, and a pig dies in about twenty minutes. The fresh juice of the upas tree, whether swallowed or injected into the blood, acts as a violent poison, causing convulsions and death.—Chicago News.

Larvæ Nests.

By breaking open rotten logs one can find in midwinter the grubs or larvæ of many of the wood boring beetles, and beneath logs and stones near the margins of ponds and brooks hordes of the maggots or larvæ of certain kinds of flies may often be found huddled together in great masses. The larvæ of a few butterflies also live over winter beneath chips or bunches of leaves near the roots of their food plant or in webs of their own construction, which are woven on the stems close to the buds whose expanding leaves will furnish them their first meal in spring.

He Didn't Hush.

"Mamma," queried little Willie, "what is hush?" "Why do you ask, dear?" said his mother. "Because," explained the observing urchin, "when I asked sister what made her hair all mussed after her beau was here this afternoon she said, 'Hush, dear.'"—Chicago News.

The Caller.

"Mary, has any one called while I was out?" "Yes, ma'am; Mr. Biggs was here." "Mr. Biggs? I don't recall the name." "No, ma'am; he called to see me, ma'am."—Straud Magazine.

Situations Guaranteed.

We do not guarantee situations to prospective students in order to get their parents' money. Schools of merit do not resort to such dishonest practices. Fake schools "guarantee" situations in order to secure students, because they have no other inducements to offer. Our work is so thorough that a guarantee is superfluous. Business men are so eager to get competent help here that a large per cent. of our students take positions before they graduate. See us before making arrangements for your business and shorthand education at some inferior, fake school. We will take pleasure in telling you all about the possibilities in the "position guarantee" of dishonest schools. Catalogue free.
